the earlier grooming is worth the price paid for it, or, in other words, the value of a horse is not in the number of his teeth, but in the quality of his teeth.

PREVENTING COLDS. Catching cold can be prevented only by avoiding the exciting or external causes, and by removing any special predisposition that may have been acquired.

IF ANY animal has caught cold, the best remedy is to keep it in a warm stable, or to constant covering with heavy blankets.
