TRIBUNE BRANCH OFFICES.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE has established branch offices for the receipt of subscriptions and advertisements at the following places:

AMUSEMENTS.

McVicker's Theatre. Grand Opera House. Grand Opera House. Grand Opera House. Grand Opera House.

THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1881.

We have no doubt that people generally (all except the privileged ones who read THE TRIBUNE) are complaining nowadays at the dullness of the newspapers.

Mr. CHARLES A. DANA of the Sun, formerly managing editor of the New York Tribune, declares that the Sun is becoming more and more a newspaper.

His succession to the vacancy on the Supreme Bench occasioned by the recent death of Justice Clifford is already discussed by the newspapers.

No summer in years has so conspicuously justified Chicago's claim to superiority as a summer-resort as the present season.

The Tribune has already presented to its readers many interesting facts concerning the development of American railroads during the past few years.

ceeding year. The combined stock and debt per mile reported at $69,650 for 1880, which is an increase of $1,041 in stock and $1,531 in debt per mile.

THE NEW HEAT PRODUCER.

The invention of the French chemist, M. Carrière, of the thermometer, an instrument for storing up heat, the details of which were printed in the last issue of THE TRIBUNE.

FALSE REPORTS ABOUT THE PRESIDENT.

There is good ground for hope that the President will recover. It is plain that the consulting surgeons, Agnew and Hamilton, have great confidence in a final favorable issue of the case.

A FREE PRESS.

What is known as the liberty of the press is one of the most sacred rights of the people. This privilege has made more progress in the United States than in any other of the constitutional Governments.

But decent people, who are not speculators, will conclude that operators on the Stock Exchange, or anywhere else, who seek to influence the market, up or down, by publishing and circulating false reports, are rogues.

There is no wiser offense normally than that of lying. In respectable business circles the word of the known liar is no better than the word of the unknown liar.

of Wall-street gamblers could his pulse-beats as they would count gold eagles and try to cheat while they count.

There are no popular rights where there is not an absolutely free press, accountable to the laws of public morality and public safety only as individuals are.

POPULAR EDUCATION IN ENGLAND. The report of the National Committee on Education in England for 1880 has just made its appearance, and contains some very interesting statistics as to the progress of popular education in England and Wales, especially since 1870.

PERSONALS.

A London paper says that Tennyson's head is wider than Gladstone's. This is upon the ground of the fact that Tennyson's head is wider than Gladstone's.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Mr. Conkling can take care of himself. In view of his course during the past few months, it is not surprising that he should be so confident.

THE NEW YORK NEWS.

The New York Tribune anxiously asks: Where is the man who has been so long in the United States, and who has been so long in the United States?

into place and shot. His negro-stealing was only a part of the business of Murray's gang.
