PROF. SWING.

A MORE THOUGHTFUL CHRISTIANITY.

Prof. Swing preached yesterday morning at the Central Methodist Hall, taking as his text: 'What became of me I put away childish things.' I, Car. III, 11.

It is conceded that nations, and races, and systems of thought follow the type of the physical man, and pass through an infancy and childhood, and attain to a maturity, and then to a decline, and finally to a death.

There has been much danger lately of an infantile faith, and of a childish faith, and of a faith that is not a faith at all, but a superstition.
