$2,000,000 Raised Here in First Day Of Y. M. C. A. Drive

Returns Show Cities of Country Are Taking Active Interest

Official returns for Monday, the first day of the nation-wide campaign to raise $25,000,000 for the war work of the Young Men's Christian Association...

$2,000,000 Taken Here While no official estimate of New York's subscriptions to date was made, it was generally understood that the city subscribed at least $2,000,000 on the first day of the drive...

These figures do not represent the totals pledged, as soliciting subscriptions began Monday.

The reports of the sectional campaigns, divided similarly to the United States Army departments and exclusive of New York City subscriptions, showed that the central division, with headquarters in Chicago, was in the lead with $1,862,401; the northeastern section, with headquarters in Boston, came next with $417,660.

Bankers Raise $500,000 Contributions aggregating $500,000 were announced yesterday at the noonday meeting of the war fund workers at the Bankers' Club.

Horse Show Attracts Long Island Set and Other Society Folk

Another fairly representative gathering of society was present yesterday afternoon and evening at the National Horse Show. Most of the boxes were occupied at both sessions, and members of the fashionable world were seen promenading about in the arena seats back of the boxes.

The Long Island set in particular was well represented in the gathering. There were many from Tuxedo and Westchester County, and also from Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other cities.

One of the boxes that attracted much attention at the afternoon session was that of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, who had as their guests, Dr. and Mrs. Preston P. Satterthwaite, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Susan Fish Dresser, Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Frederick Bull and Miss Emily Ford were with Mrs. James Cox Brady in box 61.

With Mrs. David Wagstaff in box 13 were Mrs. Dave H. Coddington and Miss Susan Fish Dresser.

Ladies' Hunters Are Big Feature Of Horse Show

Miss Lida L. Fleitmann's Palmetto Gets Blue Ribbon in the Class

Judge Moore's Entries Among the Winners

Famous Whip Tools His Four Grays-to-Coach to Victory

By long odds the lion's share of applause and most of the glory which featured the second day of the National Horse Show went to the ladies' hunters class. In groups of three, twenty-four hunters, ridden by women, swept about the tanbark circle in Madison Square Garden to cheers.

The event was distinctly novel, and despite the interest which was aroused by a number of the other classes during the afternoon and evening, nothing could compare with the enthusiasm which greeted Miss Lida L. Fleitmann, who rode her Palmetto, when the judges finally awarded her the blue ribbon for the class.

Judge Moore Wins Ribbons Early in the afternoon Judge William H. Moore won applause as he drove his coach, the Rockmar, around the ring. It was a splendidly appointed equipage, the coach, with its black body and primrose running gear, and the horses with their elaborately appointed harness and smart tan-trimmed collars.

The animals were Judge Moore's famous mottled grays. Judge Moore was the whip. Later he took the blue ribbon in Class 55 with his Stanhope phaeton, drawn by his two dark bays, Micah and Boutwell.

Billy Wales whipped the twelve Belgian draught horses exhibited by James Hanley, of Providence, around the ring again yesterday. Cheer after cheer swept the galleries as these splendid spirited animals, great roan fellows, perfectly matched, swept through the arena.

One road four may make something of a sensation on Fifth Avenue, where it is now more or less of a novelty, but it doesn't make for very keen competition in the show ring, so William H. Moore had nothing to fear as he put his handsome grays through their paces on the tanbark.

The judge had the same team which he drove last year, with the exception of the rear wheeler. A handsome gray which answers to the name of Tip was put in the wheel in the place of last year's wheeler, which since the last show has given up his equine ghost.

Competition for Judge Moore Every one said, "Isn't it a pity there is no competition?" and just then two roan noses appeared in the open door, and every one supposed that it was Campbell Thompson's four, which was entered in this class.

Well, four roans appeared, and then four more, and then four more, and it did look as though an army of cavalry was advancing into the Garden, and then it turned out to be Walter Hanley's twelve roans in front of their quickly had the blue ribbon fastened on the bridle of their near leader and left the ring to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne," played on the horn.

The horses were not shown over the jumps, but were judged on conformation, quality, substance, manners and gait. Joseph H. Collins won the huge silver trophy and $100 cash prize with his chestnut gelding, Crawgood.

Hunters, Jumpers and Shetland Ponies Win Horse Show Honors

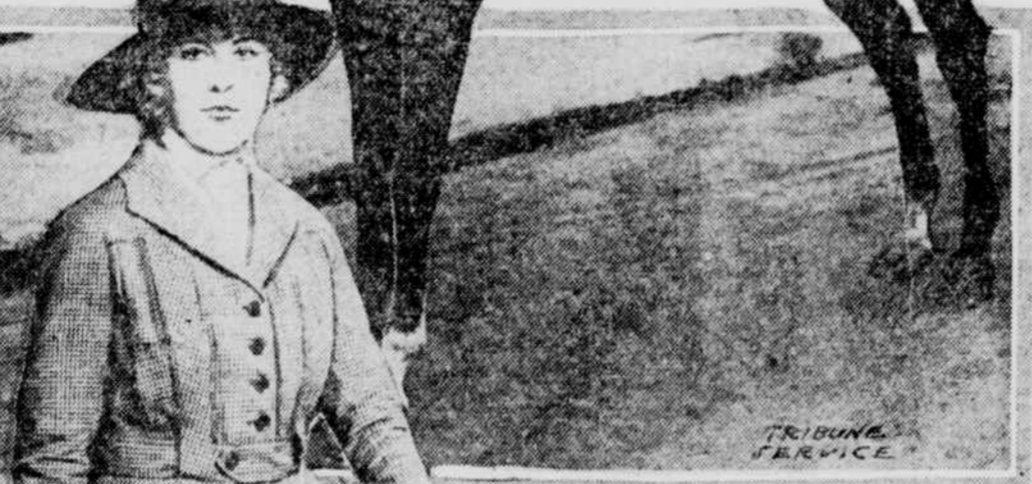

The second prize was a substantial one, also; it was the same value as that of the blue ribbon winners. Charles Lanier took this with his roan chestnut gelding, Lookout.

Pen Jump in Afternoon

The afternoon session opened with the pen jump. This contest is always amusing, for it proves the trend of the equine mind. "King Horse," as some of his chroniclers love to call him, likes to get in the pen. It looks like a little race, but it is not. There is no real reason for getting out, so sometimes he doesn't, and it always is a question whether the horse that is the most tractable has the greatest intelligence or none at all.

Walter Hanley showed a novice pair which were so good that every one stopped talking to watch them. They were the bay mares Rainbow and Sunshower, and they had the pleasure of defeating William H. Moore's Medes and Mona.

Decies. It was competed for by officers of the United States army or militia. Last year it was won by 2d United States Cavalry's brown gelding Pete and it did look as though he was going to become the permanent owner of the cup, when Captain D. O. Nelson's chestnut, Ginger, jumped in and took the victory away from him. Pete won the reserve.

State to Sue for $25,000,000 Back Franchise Taxes. Martin Saxe Is Appointed Special Counsel to Prosecute the Cases. Some Due 15 Years. City's Failure to Act Compels Attorney General to Start Suits.

ALBANY, Nov. 13.—The state, through Attorney General Merton E. Lewis, will institute proceedings immediately to collect special franchise taxes in New York City, some of which have been unpaid for more than fifteen years.

Taxes which depend upon the determination of 256 proceedings now pending, amount to upward of $25,000,000 upon assessed valuations of more than $1,250,000,000, Attorney General Lewis said.

All Taxpayers Affected. "The cases pending," Mr. Lewis said, "affected every taxpayer in the city. To the extent that the corporations assessed are successful in reducing these assessments an additional burden will be cast upon the property-owner."

Must Retain Specialists. "After two years trial of the city's choice of procedure," Mr. Lewis said, "it is apparent that not only must more forceful measures be taken, but also the services of experienced specialists must be retained to safeguard the interests of the people and collect the just taxes."
