

HERO BOOSTS SALVATION ARMY LASSIES

Who wants a Bible that was carried through the war from the retreat at Mons to the signing of the armistice—a Bible that rested securely in the pocket of a hero wounded five times in the cause of world-democracy?

Lieutenant William Brice of New York City, wearing the Victoria Cross, the Croix de guerre and the D. S. O. was at the San Carlos Thursday and is offering his Bible as an award to the person who gives him the largest individual subscription to the Salvation Army home service fund.

Quick, energetic, enthusiastic, a real hero, he talks reluctantly of his feats in battle but when the Salvation Army is mentioned he becomes a fire of enthusiasm.

How He Values Lassies.

"If all of the money in your banks, if all of the coin in your city treasury, if the coffers of your city treasury were dumped into the street and offered to the Salvation Army, you could not begin to pay them," he says. "They were everywhere they should not have been. Why, if you looked to heaven you saw a Salvation Army lassie. In the trenches, out in no-man's land, in the midst of fighting and gas attacks, they stood staunchly by the boys at the front. I never saw such sacrifice and I never knew of a debt so unbounded that humanity owes to these real people."

"They would give a soldier their last cent, they would scurry around to find a cigarette for some fighter even if they had to get it out of a German helmet; no task was too great or too small for them. Service was their watchword and when the great history of the war is written bright on its pages, as a contributing factor toward the winning of the conflict must be written the deeds of the humble, quiet, unassuming yet constantly and practically active Salvation Army lass."

Can't Repay the Debt.

Lieutenant Brice is speaking throughout the South voluntarily in the interest of the Salvation Army fund. He is giving his services free because, as he says, "I owe a debt to this organization that I can never repay, and every other American if he only knew it can never hope to make a return for what they have done for the world."

"I was wounded at the second battle of Ypres," he said, "and I lay in No-Man's Land knowing that it was all over when two of these ministering angels of the Salvation Army lifted me tenderly and bore me through the barrage back to the trenches. Just as we reached our haven a shell burst, and Miss Wright, of Pittsburg, one of the Salvation Army corps, was killed instantly and became a silent martyr to the cause of freedom and humanity."

"I have been handed coffee by them when the fighting seemed to have worn me out, and I was almost ready to give up; I have found their toothsome doughnuts a life-saver when I felt that nothing was worth while, and I

MRS. MAY COULD NOT WORK

Made Well and Strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbia, Pa.—"I was very weak and run down and had dragging-down pains and pains in my back. I could not get around to do my work and had to sit down and rest often during the day. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the papers and read the testimonials, so I thought I would try it. Now I am healthier than I ever was in my life, and can recommend it to any woman who suffers as I did."

—Mrs. ELIZABETH MAY, R.F.D. No. 1, Columbia, Pa.

The reason Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful in overcoming woman's ills is because it contains the tonic, strengthening properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, which act on the female organism. Women from all parts of the country are continually testifying to its strengthening, curative influence, and the letters which we are constantly publishing from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of this famous root and herb medicine.

feel that nothing I can ever do will ever answer the debt I owe to these sacrificing heroes of the war."

Was With Princess Pat.

He enlisted in the Army in Oct., 1914, in Canada, and was assigned to the famous Princess Patricia of the royal family, and never for a moment was it forgotten, as he says nothing was overlooked for their comfort by the Princess, whom he terms "a real, plain, democratic, big-hearted woman."

His father, who was in the British Army, was killed at Somme, his brother was killed in the second battle of Ypres, and Lieutenant Brice was wounded five times, in the hand, foot, breast, and his left side scarred with liquid fire, besides a gas attack, which placed him in the hospital for nine months.

GOOD BOOKS ON INDUSTRY ARE PREPARED

Washington, D. C., June 1.—The government is about to make a contribution to the literature on various important trades which, it is said, will be of inestimable value in helping certain industries adjust themselves to after-war economic conditions. The contribution consists of a series of pamphlets prepared for the benefit of employees, setting forth the proper methods of teaching certain trades and operations to workmen. These booklets are being prepared by the U. S. training service of the department of labor and where adopted in the industries for which they are intended, they will work lasting benefits by increasing the earning power of the workers and bettering production generally, say government representatives.

The subjects being covered by this series are textile making garment making shoe manufacture, paper box making, lithography, piano manufacture, foundry work, rubber manufacture, and general foremanship. The purpose of the courses of training is to provide practical means by which the workers in the industry can attain a recognized standard of efficiency. By following these courses, workers are able to master their respective duties in approximately one-half of the time consumed under the old haphazard method, government records show.

Of the ten million industrial workers in this country, the U. S. training service estimates seven million are not more than 50 per cent efficient because they have not had opportunity to learn the best methods of doing their tasks. The pamphlets which will be ready for distribution the latter part of June are designed to furnish the industries indicated above all the information needed to start training departments for their workers. Already 250 concerns representing these lines have established training departments and are using the government methods which are now being put into book form by training service experts for more general distribution.

CARLTON ADVISED GOVERNMENT TO TAKE WIRE LINES

Washington, June 1.—Newcomb Carlton, president of the Western Union, testified before the house interstate commerce committee that the trans-Atlantic cables were taken over by the government last November after he had recommended to Burleson that this be done for commercial reasons. He said he did not know whether his recommendation influenced the postmaster general, but Burleson seemed to like the idea. He later conferred with the president and the cables were taken over.

While the cables were not taken over until after the armistice the executive order directing their seizure, Carlton said, was signed November fourth or sixth. When he saw it, Carlton added, it had not been attested by the secretary of war.
