DAILY THOUGHT.

Men are deceiving themselves when they fancy that they may understand everything and consider all else impossible that they cannot perform.

ALTRUISM.

By L. H. Kelsey, S. R., Kansas City, Mo.

In this, my brother's keeper must I be,—
That no self-love of mine his progress bars;
His rights be not denied because of me,
Nor my rash act result in wounds and scars;
'Tis not enough to stand aloof and see,
With pitying eye, a thing that dwarfs and mars,
And selfishly refuse to hear the plea
Of brotherhood, that points men to the stars.
My brother's keeper? Yes, to this extent—
That helpless sorrow's lonely tear be dried,
And kindly ears hear misery's lament,
With abrogation of self-centered pride;
That courage be diffused where hope is spent,
And cheery aid to weary ones supplied;—
In short, I must not merely be content
In having just my own wish gratified.

WOMAN TAKE ACTIVE PART IN GOVERNMENT, NEW REPUBLIC.

While so many states in the south are considering whether or not to ratify the national woman suffrage amendment, suffragists might well point to an example in the newly born republic of Czecho-Slovakia.
Here, write members of the American Red Cross unit which is distributing food to thousands of undernourished children in the new republic, the women came into the same privileges as men when the democracy was declared.
The Red Cross workers have written back to America that the women will not only vote at the next elections, but many of them will run for office. A number of them are already in city councils to which the Red Cross appeals for cooperation in organizing soup kitchens and food distribution.

In a weekly review of activities published at Prague, this comment is made on women in politics: "The five years of war have had a disastrous effect on the physical welfare of both mothers and children—a fact quickly grasped by the American Red Cross which has organized and is carrying out with characteristic energy a timely system of relief for children. This, however, is only a passing phase of material assistance; the real problems will have to be faced by the republic itself and it is here especially that women will find due scope for true social service. If the women of Czecho-Slovakia exercise their rights, they will be able to play the same beneficent role in politics that they do in the home."
