

A KIWANIS SERMON

To those who value "the other fellow":

"Self-satisfied" is the deadliest foe of Kiwanis. I know the president of two banks ($5,000,000 on deposit.) This man is mechanical in every detail, cold and icy in his conversation, limp and expressionless in his handclasp, with a small eye that can see about as far into a rat hole as any man in that state. He is given credit for being able to account for every postage stamp used in his institutions. Thoroughness, Efficiency, Dollar-Success are as truly his name as the three he could sign to a $1,000,000 draft. But—HE LIVES APART FROM HIS FELLOWS! His assistant cashier gets and holds more business in a year than he ever did with his own personal touch.

Contrast this small large man with a certain postman in that same town. The latter is a genial, wholesome "live wire," active in every needed public demand, the leading factor in the biggest lodge in the city—A MAN AMONG MEN.

The one knows the value of the warm handclasp, the helpfulness of the other fellow. The other knows the satisfaction of a recluse—of a Silas Marner, if you please.

Question: Which will be missed more when the last rites are said?

Which personality do you prefer? Seek out a stool at some lunch counter, lay down your 13 cents, and get back to your office in 9 or 7 minutes—if you choose the first man's characteristics. If it is worth $5 or $10 a year to be met with a familiar greeting by several dozen fellows who have one common bond of interest—"K"; if other men interest you more than do your own attributes, then cultivate our weekly meetings.

The spirit of any club is developed and wrought out of the warp of woof of "that something" that comes from mixing. "That something" can not be bought in cans, but it may be had merely by the desire for it. It is like the sunshine and the shadow—it may be had by the poorest corner.

Jump in or get out. Don't keep the sunlight off the other fellow. Go over your own record—are you the man sitting on the edge of the stool, feeding indigestion and becoming a dyspeptic, or are you feeding more than your stomach?—Springate of Oshkosh.

FINANCING OF FOREIGN TRADE IS DISCUSSED

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 21.—Government financing of America's foreign trade should be ended and the pre-war course of private financing and enterprise resumed in order to solve the difficulties in international commerce, according to James S. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, who addressed the International Trade Conference here today. Mr. Alexander, who is chairman of the committee on credits and finance of the conference, advocated as other measures of reform in all nations the necessity of "the greatest possible number of people doing a day's work and of the greatest possible conservation of the results of that work," and the interchange of goods between the United States and Europe on a better balanced basis.

"The exports and imports of one kind and another in the commerce of the world do not, from the point of view of any one nation, give evidence of trade—of exchange of commodities on a reciprocal and balanced basis," he said. "Therefore, I think we can be specific in our agreement that the chief abnormal international factor is this alarmingly unbalanced interchange of goods—that the balance of trade is too favorable to the United States and too adverse to Europe for the best interests of both, and that the correction of the exchange situation resulting from this one-sided balance will find its natural and permanent solution through a reduction of our exports or an increase of our imports until a point of approximate equilibrium is reached."

Mr. Alexander asserted that the re-establishment of our commercial relations with Europe should be accomplished on a business basis. "That basis will be best for the United States, and it will be best for every country in Europe," he said. "We do not need to say to our guests that there is unlimited good-will in America toward England, France, Belgium and Italy—just as large and warm a heart beats in this country as during the war; but with the return of peace the minds of the people have turned again to the normal pursuits of business and industry which were completely interrupted during war-times. We are trying to put our house in order."

"The nations of Europe want credit," he continued, "but they are not seeking primarily credit for today but rather a fundamental credit understanding, a system of credit which they can trade upon and make commitments upon." He added that "any commercial arrangement grounded solely upon the uncommercial and shifting element of good-will and friendly sentiment, no matter how true and firm that sentiment may be, will in the end prove unsatisfactory." Mr. Alexander referred to the doctrine of working and saving expounded by the Federal Reserve Board, asserting that this advice "enunciates for the people of the United States by the most important financial body in the nation may well be repeated to the people of the whole world. "It is a thought that will give us sound guidance," he said, "for in a sense never before so universally applicable, industry and thrift are in this aftermath of war's destruction essential not only to the happiness but even to the existence of the human race. Never was an economic proposition more simple and self-evident."

BAPTISTS SEND WORKERS OVER INTO SLOVAKIA

IS FIRST STEP IN CAMPAIGN FOR THE SPIRITUAL RECONSTRUCTION OF EUROPE.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 22.—As the first practical step in the program of spiritual reconstruction of Europe, made possible by the Baptist $75,000,000 campaign, seven native missionaries are being employed in the foreign mission board of the Southern convention to do special work in the new republic of Czecho-Slovakia. Dr. T. B. Ray, associate secretary of the board and survey director of the Baptist $75,000,000 campaign, announced here today. At a recent conference of Baptist leaders from all parts of Czecho-Slovakia, held at Prague, volunteers for the preaching of the gospel in that country were called for, and twenty-seven of the ablest young men of the new nation responded, it is said. Appointment of these volunteers is now in process by the foreign mission board, and these men, a majority of whom are university graduates, all of whom have been engaged in more remunerative occupations heretofore, and all of whom have demonstrated their usefulness as Christian workers, Dr. Ray announces. Another move by the mission board was to appropriate a sum sufficient to complete the modern church building at Prague, the capital of Bohemia, and pay of all indebtedness against it. This building was launched just before the war and considerable money had been put into it by the mission board prior to the war. Not daunted by the conflict, however, local members of the church continued to push their building project throughout the struggle and the remainder of the obligations in the completion of the edifice. The commission of prominent men representing the Baptist $75,000,000 campaign in the formulation of a general program of Southern Baptist effort in the reconstruction of Europe, is now in France studying the general situation there. From France it will go, in succession, into Belgium, Italy, Czecho-Slovakia, the Ukraine and such other important parts of Europe as are open. Later it will go into Palestine for a study of the work in Syria, Persia and Gallilee, this work, formerly carried on by the Illinois Baptist Association, having been recently committed to the foreign mission board.
