After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me."
"I saw the Compound advertised in our paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters. Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. open executive session for debate on the peace treaty, proceed to legislative business.

Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, who was presiding temporarily, ruled the Sterling motion was debatable.

Urging that the President's veto be sustained, Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, said war time prohibition was unconstitutional because it involved confiscation of private property without adequate compensation.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, remarked that as a result of President Wilson's statement on the coal strike and his prohibition veto message "he was utterly bewildered" as to the ending of the war.

"The President's statement to the miners declared the war is not ended and their contracts are in effect," said Mr. Borah, "while this message declares the war is closed."

Senator Underwood said the war was over and that in good faith war prohibition should be ended. He conceded, however, opponents of the bill would be overruled, declaring the Senate was "not going to defy the organized prohibition sentiment in this country."

BELGIAN KING PAYS RESPECTS TO AMERICANS

both sides of the Atlantic the same ideal inspires us. The exchange of ideas, the commercial relations, the visits to Belgium of eminent American citizens, of whom many sit in this assembly, are so many means of tightening the bonds between the two nations.

"Our two peoples have fought and triumphed together. The intervention of the American army was the decisive factor in determining the victory. I pay my respectful and sincere homage to the officers, the soldiers and sailors, who fell for a great cause on the battlefields of Europe and in the defense of the seas.
"The hearts of Belgians whom these heroes helped to liberate from the domination of the enemy go out in profound gratitude to the wounded. In their name I address to the wounded of the great war the assurance of our affection and sympathy. I express the gratitude of Belgium to those distinguished American citizens who gave themselves with such a spirit of sacrifice to the task of lightening the sufferings of the Belgian people.
"In this noble assembly I solemnly thank the members of the commission for relief and the innumerable committees that helped it in its admirable efforts. I salute in particular the names, graven forever in our memories, of Herbert Hoover and Brand Whitlock.
"May this splendid American nation,
