THE FLORIDA FEDERATION OF MUSIC CLUBS.

The Florida Federation of Music Clubs will hold its annual convention and young artist contest at Tampa, March 16 to 18. Mr. John C. Freund, editor of Musical America; Mrs. Anne Faulkner Oberdorfer, chairman of music, General Federation of Women's Clubs, and other well known speakers and musicians will appear on the program.

This meeting is of great interest to all musicians and delegates and members of music clubs and music departments of women's clubs throughout the state are planning to attend.

MRS. FISHER ENTERTAINS AT TEA IN HONOR OF MRS. MASON.

Mrs. William Fisher entertained very delightfully at tea yesterday afternoon at her home on W. Jackson-st. in honor of her daughter, Mrs. C. P. Mason of Coronado Beach, Cal. Quite a number of guests dropped in during the afternoon and enjoyed this pleasant hospitality. The rooms were most attractive with vases placed about, in which were pink roses and white japonicas. Mrs. W. B. Ferris poured tea and Mrs. F. M. Blount coffee during the afternoon.

CIVIL SERVICE ASSOCIATION DANCE MONDAY EVENING.

In a brightly decorated auditorium, the Civil Service Association will entertain at a big carnival dance Monday evening. The committee has decided that masking will not be permitted. Punch will be served throughout the evening and carnival favors will be distributed. The music will be furnished by the Anderson Douglas seven-piece orchestra. The chapters for the evening will be Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Coulter, Mr. and Mrs. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Kirkby.

UNIQUE BON VOYAGE WISHES TO ENSIGN AND MRS. GEORGE.

The unusual activity of the "B-1" and the "B-17" in the neighborhood of St. Michael's church and the Louisville & Nashville station yesterday morning was the occasion of a great deal of comment and interest on the street. The maneuvering of the "ships" was directed by pilots of the lighter than air division of the naval air station, who were endeavoring to secure the most opportune time to shower Ensign and Mrs. Hulbert George with the score of so pounds of rice, which were in the "car." With the rice went down a flood of congratulatory messages, for there is probably no more highly regarded officer in the personnel of the air station than Ensign George.

JUNIOR AND JUVENILE MUSIC CLUBS.

The National Federation of Musical Clubs, an organization which has worked the past 23 years for the recognition of American music, given prizes for American compositions, the composers' work a hearing, assisted the young professional artists through state, district and national contests; entertained the soldiers in the cantonments during the past war and gave them thousands of small musical instruments; done more than any other organization to establish credits for music in the schools, is now organizing junior and juvenile music clubs in the grammar and high schools. The children of today make the adult audiences for our concerts of tomorrow and the National Federation of Musical Clubs is trying to teach the American public that there is no better way of seeking to lift the average appreciation of music and to develop the cultural side of the American people than by forming these junior and juvenile clubs and teaching the young people to like the best in music and art. Music students often find their lessons flat, stale or unprofitable because of the hours of solitary labor, with no opportunity to share their joys and accomplishments with others. A well organized and well conducted club furnishes just the stimulus needed to carry the work along. The National Federation of Musical Clubs has issued books of special programs for these clubs. Mrs. Frances Elliott Clark of Philadelphia, chairman of the educational department, is author of the programs and suggested order of procedure and constitution for the meetings. The boys and girls conduct their own meetings, which gives them practice in parliamentary proceedings. The aims of the Junior and juvenile music clubs is to reach as many young people as possible, in an effort to encourage them in developing and expressing a love, understanding and appreciation of music in all lines and its sister arts, drama, literature, drawing and the dance. These clubs for young students will be a source of much profit to those who participate in the work, and of much delight to parents

FIVE HUNDRED CLUB ENTERTAINED AT GULL POINT AT ONE OF MOST DELIGHTFUL MEETINGS IN ITS HISTORY

The members of the Five Hundred club, that plays for the benefit of the Woman's Home each fortnight, had a complimentary party extended them yesterday afternoon that proved to be one of the most delightful in the long history of pleasant meetings of the club. The hostesses of this gracious courtesy were Mrs. Edward King, Mrs. T. C. Wilson, Mrs. E. P. Wilson and Mrs. L. H. Smith.

The home of Mrs. King, at which the ladies entertained, was beautiful, not only within but also the grounds were most attractive with their banana trees, oaks, festooned with Spanish moss, and great orange trees, laden with golden fruit. It is always most interesting for a Pensacolian to visit the site of these homes, as it was in this neighborhood that Andrew Jackson called the first legislative council in Florida. The historic building in which that meeting occurred, at the time the residence of the late Dr. John A. Bronnham, has since burned.

Inside, the house, with its great open fire and lovely japonicas and roses, presented a most inviting scene. The seven tables at play were placed in the big living room, which commands a most beautiful view of the upper bay. The brightness of the room within seemed all the cheerier from the mistiness of the sea without.

Although the rules of the club did not govern at this meeting, quite a nice sum was received through the voluntary offerings of the ladies present. It was decided to present this to the ladies of the home to use for individual spending money.

An unusual record was made at this meeting, from the fact that every member of the club was present except one, and she is not now in the city.

Among those enjoying this very pleasant meeting were the following ladies from Gull Point and Pensacola: Mrs. John Cornell, Mrs. Gertrude Abbe, Mrs. O. H. L. Wernicke, Mrs. J. C. Clendenun, Mrs. J. H. Clendenun, Mrs. J. C. Potter, Mrs. Blanche McGuire, Mrs. F. C. Higgins, Mrs. W. E. Smythe, Mrs. H. L. Graham, Miss Blanche White, Mrs. Frank Marston, Miss Florence Marston, Mrs. Wade Morgan, Mrs. John Stokes, Mrs. James Van Ausdale, Mrs. Lois K. Mayes, Mrs. Charles Driver, Miss Genie Bogart, Mrs. Charles Cottrell, Mrs. Frank Welles, Mrs. Walter White, Mrs. Howell Brazil, Mrs. Adria Langford, Mrs. V. R. Nobles, Mrs. W. H. Northrup, Mrs. Charles Born, Mrs. C. S. Bonacker, Mrs. W. H. Goulding, Mrs. Ed Gale Quina, Miss Oecle Clubs, and the hostesses, Mrs. L. H. Smith, Mrs. E. P. Wilson, Mrs. T. C. Wilson and Mrs. Edward King.

MRS. HOLSBERY HONORS MISS PARSONS

Mrs. Leroy Holsberry entertained at the Country Club yesterday afternoon at a delightful party in honor of her sister, Miss Parsons of Clarksville, Va., who is her house guest. This pleasant occasion served not only to introduce Miss Parsons to many of Mrs. Holsberry's friends but also was the occasion for the renewal of several friendships made on previous visits in Florida. A delicious salad course was served the guests after the games.

and teachers, who realize the value of socializing the study of music. Music and music lessons become the most important part of the play and communal life of the child. There is immediately a reason and purpose for diligent practice, for "does not the club want me to play something special for a special program?"

Mrs. Ralph Polk of Miami, Fla., chairman of junior and juvenile music study clubs, will forward these books to any one interested.

AMERICAN WOMAN WHIPS 20 TURKS

Used Horsewhip With Good Effect on Would-Be Thieves in Armenia.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Dramatic and humorous experiences are described in the stories just received here from three American girls who protected the Armenian orphanages in Kars, Armenia, when the Turkish troops captured that city in October last.

The American young women not only had to calm the panic-stricken orphans but to fight off Armenian refugees who wanted to hide in the orphanages and Turkish soldiers bent on looting the buildings. One of the girls, Miss Elsie M. Kimball, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., put to rout a group of about 20 Turks who were attempting to steal the blankets from the children's beds. She attacked them with a whip and being unarmed they fled. Her two companions were Miss Cora L. Beach, of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and Miss Frances Anderson, of New Canaan, Conn. All three are workers for the Near East Relief, which conducts the orphanages.

Miss Kimball tells in her letter of the panic situation which existed in Kars when the Armenian defense collapsed and word was received that the Turks were coming in. "Just imagine," she writes, "a great mass of 1,000 women and children huddled together in uncontrollable fear, momentarily expected to be massacred by a conquering army and with absolutely no possibility of escape from what they had reason to believe would be certain death."

Miss Kimball had just managed to quiet them when the Turks arrived at the door of the orphanage—three vicious-looking soldiers.

"I ran to them and explained through the interpreter that I was an American woman and this was an Armenian orphanage. Two of the fellows who were evidently bent on mischief started toward the building where the children were gathered. I snatched the arm of the other fellow and begged him to protect the children. Immediately he ran after the two soldiers and dealt them ferocious blows with his heavy whip and his gun, cursing them all the way to the gate. They were loathe to go, but he whipped them clear out of sight and I thanked him for his help. Then came more soldiers and I repeated my speeches until I was about worn out when along came a fine-looking Turkish officer. I explained the situation to him and asked that Turkish guards be placed at our gates and he put two of his men on guard to police the place.

The guards drove back all would-be invaders vigorously and mercilessly with the butts of their guns, their fists and the toes of their shoes. Many of the fellows who came through our grounds from the open field in the back were the wildest looking individuals this wild country could possibly produce, and believe me, it produces some mighty evil specimens of humanity and in generous quantities. The most treacherous of all are the Kurds, the boldest and most blood-thirsty and most ruthless tribe in the Near East. The Turkish guards had their hands full in pushing them back. They regarded me with great curiosity, never having seen an American and my goggles interested them exceedingly. "The shooting went on all day, but probably not over 300 people were killed altogether in the city and the valley. Once when I was standing near the gate a shot struck within a few feet of me. It was the closest shave I had that day though other shots were flying all around.

"In making my rounds of the four buildings, I found a Turk rifling one of the rooms of blankets. I yelled at him to get out of here quick, Heidy! and to my surprise, he jumped through the window like a shot, leaving his loot behind. I had not expected such quick action for I was alone and he was a big burly man."

A little later another Turkish soldier held up Miss Kimball at a lot of a rifle and compelled her to give him a blanket.

"Cora, (Miss Beach) was the only American in one of the other orphanage buildings last night with bands of Turks knocking at the door at intervals and prowling about for loot. One rough Turk took hold of her and said 'gel' (come) but she made him 'gel' instead.

Miss Kimball was hastily summoned to the orphanage on one occasion by the announcement that a lot of Turks were trying to drag out through the windows the blankets from the beds of the orphans." I grabbed my whip and started out for some trouble," she writes. "Sure enough there was a gang of about 20 Turks, one at each window, reaching through for blankets. I was alone. I seized myself horse 'heidy's and other things and made a dramatic dash at them with my whip flourishing in the air. Who would have thought they would have paid the least bit of attention to me? All but one of them made a get-away, some speedily, some reluctantly, but the one kept pulling away at the blanket while one of the personnel clung to the other end of it. The Turk was getting the upper hand when I gave him a lash right where he ought to be lashed and he gave up the struggle and joined his fellows over the fence. That incident was the most amusing of any that occurred—just to see those looters run away from a woman.

"Cora had the nerve to refuse to give up her diamond ring to a looter who came to her orphanage the first night. She just walked around his gun as cool as you please and still has her ring."
