CANKER WORM.

When the leaves begin to grow the canker worm may commence to move up on the trunks of fruit and other trees. Bands of tar or printer's ink, if put on the tree trunks in time, will catch many of the pests.—Farmers' Home Journal.

PRUNE EVERY YEAR.

It is better to do some pruning every year than to let the trees go two or three years and then prune heavily. A very heavy pruning has a tendency to make wood growth, and is usually at the expense of the fruit. After the orchard gets to bearing keep it so by doing a little pruning every year.—Farmers' Home Journal.

MONKSHOOD.

There are a number of the various species of aconitum that do well in ordinary garden soil, napellus, the true monkshood being one of the best. It is also one of the earliest flowering and does well either in sun or shade—although the flowers will last longer if partially protected from hot sun. It responds readily to high cultivation. It is one of the most charming of the long list of hardy perennials, and should be in every border, although not too near the vegetables nor where children are likely to be playing, on account of the poisonous characters of its roots.—Indianapolis News.

TEST FOR SOUR SOIL.

This sure test for "sour" soil is given by a writer in an agricultural exchange:

"I should advise you, however, before using much lime on your land, to try the following simple experiment. Select two square rods in a field the soil of which you believe to be sour. Plow the land. To one square rod apply twenty pounds of builders' lime freshly slaked. Work it in thoroughly with the harrow. Then manure and fertilize both square rods heavily and equally. Plant common table beets. If these grow much better on the plot to which the lime is applied, it is a certain indication that the application of lime to your fields will be profitable for many crops, and if this seems to be the case you will find it will pay you to apply lime at the rate of about a ton to the acre, and the best method of application is to spread it on freshly plowed land and work in deeply by the use of the disk harrow. Lime by itself will not sustain fertility. It is useful in neutralizing free acid, improving the mechanical condition of the soil, and in increasing the efficiency of fertilizers which may be applied."

BEETS A PAYING CROP.

The data obtained in investigations reported in the Cornell bulletin on the value of root crops for stock feeding are based on extended experiments on the total dry matter yield per acre of a number of the more important root crops. The results obtained indicate that such root crops as mangel-wurzels, beets, carrots, rutabagas and turnips yield a profitable stock feed under usual conditions.

A greater average yield of dry matter per acre may be obtained from mangels, half-sugar mangels, sugar beets and rutabagas than from an average yield of dry matter. It should be remembered, however, that because the sugar beets grow in the ground they are more difficult to harvest, and, furthermore, they do not keep so well as mangels. It may seem that the yield of sugar beets is more uniform than that of mangels, but this is due to the fact that the yield of different varieties of mangels varies more widely than that of the varieties of sugar beets.

The rutabagas produce profitable yields of food material, and the fact that they are well adapted to early feeding, and also to the feeding of swine, as well as to sheep and cattle, adds to their value.

Turnips, as a general rule, do not yield as well as the above mentioned roots, and, furthermore, they are more liable to attacks of disease. However, they are useful for early feeding, and are especially valuable for sheep.

Carrots and parsnips, while yielding a fair percentage of dry matter, do not yield a sufficient quantity of food material to warrant general planting for stock feeding. However, they are exceptionally good as a condimental food and for horses.

The results of the experiments carried on in 1904-5 at Cornell, the authors believe, show plainly that early planting of roots for stock feeding is desirable. "Rutabagas, however, may be planted a little later than the others. It has not been shown that the more fibrous and heavier rutabagas of a longer growing season are less digestible or palatable than the more succulent roots of the shorter growing season."—American Cultivator.

MEN RIDES IN AUTO.

C. M. Wing Has a Fowl Which Is Fond of Motoring.

A hen which has become an automobile enthusiast is one of the possessions of C. M. Wing of Greenville, S. C. She haunts the garage, and many times has been taken on trips about the city in her owner's motor car. No place in the tonneau is hers when she travels; she is a sightseer, and she takes a perch upon the fold of the wind shield. Of her Mr. Wing says:

"The hen is called Pet. She has chosen the garage as her loafing place, and is always ready for a ride, having driven over the city many times. As some one remarked, 'At the Wings' even the chickens like an automobile.

Mr. Wing is the owner of a touring car, which carries seven people unless his bulldog Jack is along; then it carries only six. And Jack picks his seat; he must have the place beside the driver, or there is trouble. "Our friends always deem it wise to humor him without delay," says Mr. Wing, who declares that the dog is an "enthusiastic motorist."

AIRSHIPS MADE AT HOME.

"How did you come to have an airship? Really, I don't see how you can afford so expensive a luxury."

"I made it myself from the broken machines that have fallen on my lands."—Meggendorfer Blaetter.

INVALID FOR YEARS

Made Well by Curing the Weakened Kidneys.

R. A. Davis, 700 Third Ave., Columbus, Ga., says: "A slight irregularity of the urine accompanied with pain in the back made me aware that I had kidney trouble. I neglected it, and finally got so bad I had to stop working. My back ached terribly. I could not rest well at night. I had rheumatic pain and lost all energy. The urine was in an awful condition. I ran down and down until I was an emaciated wreck and an invalid, in bed and out of bed, but in it most of the time. At the time I started with Doan's Kidney Pills I weighed only 125 lbs. As they helped me I kept on until well again and up to my old weight, 170 lbs. In five years I have had no return of kidney complaint."

AGONIZING ITCHING.

Eczema For a Year—Got No Relief Even at Skin Hospital—In Despair Until Cuticura Cured Him.

"I was troubled by a severe itching and dry, scurfy skin on my ankles, feet, arms and scalp. Scratching made it worse. Thousands of small red pimples formed and these caused intense itching. I was advised to go to the hospital for diseases of the skin. I did so, the chief surgeon saying: 'I never saw such a bad case of eczema.' But I got little or no relief. Then I tried many so-called remedies, but I became so bad that I almost gave up in despair. After suffering agonies for twelve months, I was relieved of the almost unbearable itching after two or three applications of Cuticura Ointment. I continued its use, combined with Cuticura Soap and Pills, and I was completely cured. Henry Searle, Cross St., Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 8 and 19, 1907."

Fear of Premature Burial.

The fear of premature burial, which prompted the late Lord Burton to direct by his will that his heart should be removed from his body, has caused many well-known men and women to order a surgical operation to be performed upon their bodies. Harriet Martineau left her doctor £10 to amputate her head, and Lady Burton directed that her heart should be pierced with a needle. The late Edmund Yates left instructions that his jugular vein should be severed, with a provision that a fee of 20 guineas should be paid for the purpose. Literary persons appear to have been particularly afraid of premature burial. Bishop Berkeley, Lord Lytton, Hans Andersen and Wilkie Collins all took measures to protest themselves from it.—Westminster Gazette.

YOUR BACKACHE WILL YIELD
