Russians End Blockade Of Berlin

BERLIN, Jan. 20—(AP)—The Russians have ended their blockade of Berlin by air. The move, which was made by the Red Army, was reportedly aimed at weakening the Berlin Wall. A large column of Russian tanks and other military equipment has been reported moving northward into the city.

The blockade has been in effect for more than a year, and its lifting is expected to ease the burden on the German government. The Berlin Wall, which was built in 1961, has been a symbol of the Cold War.
