WELCOME TO CITRA-BIG BARN AND GLOW MEETING

The citizens of Citra and other surrounding communities turned out in force last night for the annual meeting of the Citra-Big Barn and Glow. The hall was jammed with people who were eager to hear the latest news and learn about the future plans for the town.

The meeting began with a brief address by the mayor, who welcomed the crowd and thanked them for their support. He then introduced the guest speakers, who talked about a variety of topics, including finance, education, and community services.

After the speeches, the floor was opened for questions and discussion. People asked questions about everything from the town's budget to its long-term goals. The mayor and the guest speakers responded with thoughtful and informative answers.

The meeting lasted for several hours, but everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. The crowd dispersed at the end of the night, leaving the hall quiet and dark. But the energy and enthusiasm of the people who had gathered there would not die. They had come together to help build a better Citra, and they would continue to work towards that goal.
