FOODS FOR HOT WEATHER

Matter That is Worthy of the Most Careful Attention That Can Be Given It

Much of the irritability of the human race is caused by overindulgence in unbalanced meals composed of badly cooked foods.

The modern, thrifty housewife plans her meals so as to secure the best diet for her family. During the hot months heat-producing foods—fats, sugar, starches, heavy puddings and pies and fried things should not be eaten, but rather those which are easily digested and cooling to the blood.

The business in which the breadwinner of the family is engaged must be considered when planning the meals. The man or woman leading a sedentary life requires foods easy of digestion and assimilation. This class of people does not require as much food as that engaged in muscular labor. The latter class needs heavier meals, but these should be less burdensome than in winter.

For both classes too much cannot be said about masticating one's food. The teeth were made for this purpose and many ills would disappear if food was not bolted into the stomach, which is too often overtaxed.

Salads rich with mayonnaise or boiled dressing should never appear at dinner, but be served for luncheon or supper. Green or fresh vegetable salads with a simple oil and vinegar dressing are the proper thing for dinner at all seasons. Potatoes can be eliminated from the menu some days and in their place substitute macaroni, rice, hominy, beans, peas and other starchy vegetables.—Woman's World.

BABY'S NEEDS IN SUMMER

Lightness of Clothing is One of the First Requisites During the Hot Weather.

Warm weather is a dangerous period for children, and all mothers dread the summer for their little ones. As the weather grows warmer and warmer, fewer and lighter clothes should be worn by the baby. So many mothers have a mistaken idea that flannel bands must be kept around baby's abdomen, next to the skin, no matter what the weather. The treatment is not only wrong, but actually cruel.

To keep flannel next to the young sensitive skin when the weather is so hot that every turn of the little body against the flannel causes severe irritation is almost barbarous. Yet how many mothers believe in it! There are fewer each year, for which we should be grateful, but still there are left a large enough number of such deluded mothers to keep a great many babies in comparative torture during the summer time.

The little body should feel nothing but the sheers, softest materials next to it. When it is very hot the young baby may be totally undressed, except for his little shirt. During the hottest hours of the day the little one should be placed on a wide bed dressed in this garb, or rather lack of garb, and allowed to play or sleep until the sun is setting.

DAY OF THE PARASOL

SOME REALLY PRETTY EFFECTS ARE BEING SHOWN.

One May Select a Practical Shade and Formation, or, to Be Modest, One That Borders on the Eccentric—Each is Permissible.

(BY MARY DEAN.) Parasol days are surely here. In fact a few promenaders have even carried them for the past few weeks, possibly because they gave the required color notes to the toilettes, possibly because of the modish narrow-brimmed or brimless hat, which leaves the eyes exposed to the glare on a sunny day.

Many of the new parasols are certainly lovely. Those most practical are of course the plain one-tone effects, in dark or medium colorings, and of these there is ample supply in all the fashionable colorings.

Taffeta is much in evidence among parasols, as it is everywhere, changed into taffetas, plain or shirred, being used for the cover, pinked frills, ruffles or cordings and puffs forming the trimming. One taffeta parasol was trimmed with three larger puffs. Another was entirely covered in narrow ruffles. In line with some of the quaint taffeta sunshades are the frilled effects in ariest materials.

A parasol may have a foundation of the finest white or cream shadow lace with covering of filmy black lace, which reaches almost to the edge of the parasol, leaving the shaped points of the white lace to form a border. The lace covering is so transparent that the ribs of the parasol are visible. Or a shirred foundation fon caught here and there with clusters of silken roses. Others have a plain silken rose trimmed. One parasol, in stance, has a foundation of with a deep border of shirred fon shaped in deep points at There are large roses of chiffon at the lower point of the shirred fon border.

Another tub shaped parasol has a deep border of chiffon and flyings of narrow frills of chiffon. feta is often used in combination with chiffon and maline.

One remarkably attractive of taffeta and chiffon had the part of gray with a deep shirred of soft rose chiffon which grayish tinge. At each rib, joining line of the taffeta and fon, there is placed a small of the rose chiffon. A chiffon edges the parasol.

Hand-painted motifs are some of the handsomest parasols.

Printed Lawn Trimmed With

parasol of taffeta, for instance, wreath of roses in each panel, ed in natural colors. There is a frill of chiffon finishing the the parasol.

Silver and Gold Laces. Silver and gold laces, worn an extremely open mesh and at large flower designs, are favored trimming the evening frocks of more expensive class.

Tassels of silk or beads of large proportions appear on afternoon frocks and evening costumes. The latter are adorned with white silk tassels.

Buckles play an important part in trimming the pretty frocks. They are jeweled with brilliants or colored stones and enameled in designs suggest the dainty Dresden china terms. Other buckles are embroidered with heavy silk or braid, or of silk in odd design.

Chiffon and Taffeta. of soft silk may be veiled in chiffon.
