ZELAYA'S HELD WITHOUT BOND BY MAGISTRATE

Former President of Nicaragua Who Was Arrested at Midnight is Jailed and Will Be Given an Examination Monday.

New York, Nov. 27.—Jose Santos Zelaya, former president of Nicaragua, arrested in bed at midnight on charges of having committed murder, was held today without bail for extradition to Nicaragua and he was remanded to prison.

General Zelaya was arrested as a fugitive from justice on a complaint of Roger B. Wood, an assistant United States attorney. Mr. Wood charged that a warrant for Zelaya's apprehension for murder had been issued in Nicaragua but did not name the alleged victims.

Zelaya was arrested at midnight in the apartment of Washington St. Valentin, and made no effort to escape and went uncomplainingly to the police station asking them to give him what conveniences they could.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Official documents asking for the extradition of former President Zelaya for the alleged murder of two countrymen in Nicaragua had not been received at the state department today and what was to have been a hearing became merely a conference between Zelaya and a prisoner in New York, where he was arrested last night.

Conferees Flatly Refuse to Attend the Scheduled Night Sessions.

SLIM ATTENDANCE AT DAY SESSION

More Than One-Third of the Bill Goes Over, But the Important Provisions as Reported by the Administration Democrats Remain Unchanged—The Leaders Think They Will Finish by Monday Night.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The lure of Thanksgiving turkey tonight made the first break in the democratic senate program to rush the administration currency bill through that body before the holidays. After working all day on the measure with a slim attendance, the conferees flatly refused to attend tonight's scheduled session.

More than one-third of the bill was gone over today, but the important provisions as reported by the administration democrats on the banking committee, remain unchanged. Minor amendments, changing the wording, were adopted, but the administration plan for regional banks, owned and controlled by national banks, was untouched.

The leaders are confident tonight the conference would complete its consideration by Saturday night, according to the program, and the measure will go to the senate floor as a party measure when the regular session begins Monday morning.

Among the important matters allowed to go over for future consideration was the number of regional banks. The original senators secured delay, fearing Atlanta would be handicapped if a regional bank were created in some other southern city.

HITCHCOCK ABSENT

In the absence of Senator Hitchcock, no one presented the amendments he and the live republicans of the committee had prepared and introduced through section after section, endorsing the Owen-Glass bill practically without change.

During the morning session the conference received the reference to yesterday's action of the democratic senators on the currency bill.

THANKSGIVING IS FITTINGLY OBSERVED HERE

An Immense Congregation Gathers at First Methodist for Union Services.

DR. WM. ACKERMAN PREACHES SERMON

Rev. M. H. Holt Presided Over the Services and the Pastors of Practically All of the Protestant Churches of the City Participated—Beautiful Music Rendered.

Thanksgiving day was fittingly observed in Pensacola yesterday with a union service at the First Methodist church. Probably not in the history of that edifice has so large a congregation gathered to give thanks, practically all of the pastors of protestant churches of the city participating in the service.

Prayer—Rev. R. G. Haslow. Offering for Woman's Home. Sermon—Dr. William Ackerman. Hymn—Choir.

Closing Prayer—Rev. A. S. Moffitt. "America"—Choir and congregation. Benediction—Rev. Thomas Lennox.

DR. ACKERMAN'S SERMON. Dr. Ackerman had as his subject "How Shall We Be Thankful," and his text "And He afflicted the people, so that they should hunger, and He gave them the manna to eat which thou knowest not and which thy fathers had not known, in order that He might make thee know that not by bread alone does man live, but by everything that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord."

The speaker said that at first sight it would seem that if the idea involved in this text teaches one lesson more than another it is the imperative need for food, but the apparent contradiction vanishes when a person looks upon the matter a little more closely.

DR. ACKERMAN'S SERMON. Dr. Ackerman logically came to the conclusion that the most effective means to teach mankind that there is something more needful to the human soul than bread, something a man can more worthily fix his thoughts and his desires upon, and in the obtaining of which he may find the true elements of a righteous life, and for the gift of this he has to be thankful.

HUNGRY FOR WEALTH. The speaker pointed out that in this age of materialism men are dominated by hunger for wealth, for luxury and for sensual joy, and for this men and women give up their health, their peace of mind and very often their honor, but instead of this they would be a universal famine—not for bread and all it stands for to eat—not a thirst for pleasure, but an unquenchable desire to measure human duty in all its height, breadth and depth—then would men live instead of existing, and then would they draw water of joy from the wells of salvation.

DIGNITY AND HAPPINESS. Dr. Ackerman appealed for a life of dignity and happiness and stated that dignity is not to be found in the restless pursuit of luxury, but in the struggle for the world's prizes, but in the ceaseless effort to crush out every noxious yearning of the human breast and in extending a hand that helps to those that are needed; to lift up those that are sorrowful, no matter what their belief or what their creed.

"True happiness," he said, "is possessed only by those, whether rich or poor, who have peace in their hearts."

Unusual Event Featured Opening of the Italian Parliament At Rome

Rome, Nov. 27.—Two socialists and a republican took the oath in the presence of the king, a form unprecedented in the Italian parliament, where socialists and republicans hitherto had stayed away from the opening.

The king's speech from the throne was greeted for the first time by representatives of all classes of the nation, made possible by the introduction in Italy of universal suffrage.
