Miss Fleurine Madden returned last night from a visit to her sister, Mrs. S. B. Hatcher, of Columbus.

Rev. W. F. Hollingsworth is back from a short visit to Waynesville.

Master Frederick Walter is ill, to the regret of many friends.

Two charming young ladies who will visit Miss Fleurine Madden in December are Miss Smith, of Griffin, and Miss Bragg, of Mobile. Miss Bragg is a niece of General Bragg.

Gus Hoffman and wife, of Brunswick, are spending a few days at the Windsor.—Jacksonville Metropolis.

A wedding which occurred near Columbus last Thursday is of interest to Brunswick people, to several of whom the young people are well known. The contracting parties were Mr. Frank Graves Lumpkin and Miss Annie Leonard Garrard, and the wedding occurred at Wildwood, the home of the bride. Both families are very prominent, and the young lady is an heiress to quite a large fortune. The wedding was a brilliant affair, followed by a reception, after which the couple left for Virginia and the North on an extended wedding trip. Prominent among those who attended the wedding were Miss Fleurine Madden, who was one of the bride's maids, and Mrs. S. B. Hatcher, who assisted in receiving the guests.

The following is clipped from the Albany Herald of Friday: "The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Brown, in East Albany, was the scene of an enjoyable gathering last evening, the occasion being a reception to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Hudson. Mr. Hudson, who is Mrs. Brown's brother, claimed for his bride Miss Donnee Traylor, on Wednesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Traylor. Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will spend a week or ten days with Mr. and Mrs. Brown in East Albany, after which they will return to Brunswick to make their home. Mr. Hudson is one of the popular engineers in the employ of the B. & W. railway, and has a host of friends in Albany who congratulate him and his bride on their marriage.

Last Thursday night a sumptuous dinner of 15 covers was tendered by five leading society young men to their lady friends. The breakfast room of the Oglethorpe hotel was where it took place. The table was beautifully and artistically decorated. Broad yellow ribbons swung in graceful festoons from the chandeliers to the table in the center of which was a large vase of superb chrysanthemums of gold, banked with maidenhair ferns and tendrils of asparagus vines. At each plate were dainty favors. The mantel was ornamented with roses and chrysanthemums, their brilliant colors strikingly brought out by a background of sombre green hued vines. Exquisite pieces of valuable bric-a-brac effectively heightened the display. In the corner of the room were tall jardiniere of palms and ferns. On the buffet were delicious delicacies coyly hidden in a profusion of roses.

The party was composed of the following well known society people: Mr. F. Elmore Twitty and Miss Mary McCullough, Mr. George Smith and Miss Bettie Nightingale, Mr. Howard Smith and Miss Fannie Grant

Nightingale, Mr. Morton Mayre and Miss Leslie Butts, Mr. W. Jennings Butts and Miss Josephine duBignon, Mr. Ed Allen and Miss Lucille Butts, Mr. Malcolm McCullough, Mr. N. Emanuel. Mrs. Miller Nightingale was the party's chaperone.

Four charming young debutantes graced the occasion with their presence—Misses Lucille and Leslie Butts and Miss Mary Lilla Blanton, handsome brunettes, all three in white organdies over white silk taffets and white ribbons, and Miss Mary M. Callough, a dream of loveliness, in white liberty silk and chiffon.

The toilettes worn were as follows: Miss Julia Wilder, in blue satin, overdress of silver gauze; Miss Gertrude Allen, in pink; Mrs. Miller Nightingale, in mauve and white; Miss Dorothy Green, pink and blue ribbons; Miss Bettie Nightingale, white with cherry ribbons; Miss Rainey, in blue; Miss Crutchfield of Virginia; yellow muslin de soie over yellow satin; Miss Josephine duBignon, in black muslin de soie with spangle jet of sequins; and Miss Fannie Grant Nightingale in white organdie.
