That was a beautiful tribute President Taft paid to Archie Butt in Augusta the other day.

Now we are in shape to give Messrs. Slaton, Hudson, Parker, Walker and Henderson at least one ear.

It has been observed that Buncombe county, North Carolina, has gone for Roosevelt. A most natural thing.

Roosevelt says he won't have those eight Massachusetts delegates and the delegates say they won't vote for Taft. Well!

Arizona has done one thing to her credit, anyway. She sat down good and hard on the woman's suffrage proposition the very first dash out of the box.

Old veterans will march on Macon next week and incidentally the Central City is arranging to give them a real Georgia welcome and that's the best kind there is.

Are the prominent financiers and business men of Brunswick afraid of a bond issue for internal betterments or are they afraid to be quoted on the subject.

There should be a thousand small truck farms in Glynn county. The land is fertile, conditions are fair and good money is to be made by the practical man who knows the game.

Chairman Smith might as well wind up that Titanic investigation. The real reason of the disaster has long since been established and the long drawn-out sessions will add little information.

"Bibb is on the Wilson honor roll," says the Macon News. Yes, but my what a narrow escape. A change of sixteen votes and she would have been in "dishonor" along with some 112 other Georgia counties.

The people have a perfect right to do as they please with their own money and when the county commissioners escape personal responsibility and personal liability, what else should they wish?

No, Pauline, dear, Tom Watson will not be a delegate from the state of Georgia to the Baltimore convention and no one knows it better than those gentlemen who are making the statement.

And Edwin D. Lambright won out along with the Underwood wave in Florida and will go to the Baltimore convention. If they want a real speech in the nomination of Underwood why Lambright can deliver the goods.

"Brunswick is improving more substantially right now than has been the case in years," remarked a visitor yesterday. And it is, the truth. It is to be seen on all sides and the tendency is to the permanent and not the temporary kind of improvement.

The local camp of Woodmen of the World of this city has invited the order to hold its annual encampment in Brunswick this summer. Their coming would mean the presence of some fifteen hundred people here for ten days. The people of the city should get behind the movement and cooperate with the local camp.

OUR ADVANTAGES FOR WOODWORKING PLANTS.

One of the very first things to which the new Chamber of Commerce should turn its attention, when it shall have been organized, is to attract the attention of the vast number of people in the country engaged in carriage, wagon handle and other wood manufactures, and exploit for their benefit the manifold advantages Brunswick possesses for such factories.

Here are some of the material facts, and figures which should be placed before these people. The chances of woods suitable for both in the immediate vicinity of Brunswick and in the swamps of the Altamaha, Ocmulgee and Oconee rivers, which can be brought here by the cheapest of all methods of transportation, water. The choice of rail and water transportation for the finished product to market. The market easily reached in Cuba, Porto Rico and the other West Indies and Central and South American for furniture and wagons, has dies and other lines of wood manufacture.

The fact that much capital engaged in their manufacturing interests at the North is now working at a disadvantage, having exhausted the woods near them suitable for their purposes, and now being compelled to come South for their lumber and pay freight on it, and some of such capital, by a persistent effort can be brought to see the advantages of Brunswick, as a location for such manufacturing enterprises.

Such manufactures can be started also with comparatively small capital. The 255 establishments in North Carolina are capitalized upon an average of $26,000.

The 125 establishments in Georgia upon an average of $34,000.

The 104 establishments in Alabama, upon an average of $8,099.

While many of them are capitalized at a capital not exceeding $5,000 each.

The difference between cost of the raw material and the finished product is very great in these factories. The number of employes for capital employed surpasses that for nearly all classes of manufacturing as well as the pay per man, making good payrolls.

The live oak all about us sawed into quartered oak, makes the highest class of furniture. Years ago the Vale Royal Works in Savannah were shipping it to the North, it commanding $108 per thousand feet.

Many of the furniture factories in North Carolina and Georgia were originally started with capital of from $5,000 to $10,000, which now have about $50,000 capital.

By persistent and intelligent effort, it is certain that our advantages will induce foreign capital now engaged in the business elsewhere to locate here. The field is inviting, the raw material is near, factory conditions are favorable and the real necessity is to show the proper people what we have to offer.

THE REAL MEANING OF IT.

Many and varied have been the causes assigned for the Underwood landslide in Georgia on Wednesday. The News does not regard it as having been a factional fight, nor does it agree with the edict of the Macon Telegraph and other factional newspapers, that it was the "second Brown victory in six months." Thousands of very warm Smith supporters voted for Underwood and, of course, the same conditions existed with reference to old Brown voters lining up for Wilson. The principles involved were greater than the mere lines of any factional fight and the people realized it.

The result is a testimonial Georgia's loyalty to Southern statesmanship and to that sort of democracy which works faithfully and untiringly, day after day and year after year, for the success of the party and for the triumph of its principles; which does without the desire to dictate, which achieves without attempt to dominate.

It is, further, a refutation of the silly twaddle indulged in by the advocates of Woodrow Wilson that the democrats of Georgia were about to be made victims of a "frame-up," that they were to be "delivered" to the predatory interests. If it was a "frame-up," the democrats of Georgia evidently liked the plans and specifications and if their "delivery" was contemplated, they evidently concurred heartily in the designs of the "deliverers."

Mr. Underwood's victory in this state is all the more creditable to himself and friends, because of the strenuous and unusual efforts made to "hurrah" the people into departing from true democratic standards. Governor Wilson was brought into the state to impress the voter with his ponderous mentality. Wilson emissaries were numerous and frequent visitors, covering every part of the state. And finally, that great and only paragon of democratic virtue, William Jennings Bryan, was sent to warn the people of the South against voting for a Southern democratic leader, because Mr. Bryan didn't personally approve of him. Mr. Bryan denounced Mr. Underwood as a tool of the interests, without doing him the justice of offering proof!

The delegates from Georgia to Baltimore are instructed, by the vote of the presidential preference primary, to cast their votes for Underwood for president and the democrats of the state do themselves credit by giving such instructions. No man in the party has done more for its success, more to make it a party of performance rather than of promise, than the chairman of the ways and means committee of the house. That he is a citizen of our neighbor state, a Southerner in his every fibre, makes the duty of Georgia representatives all the more agreeable.
