Paradise in the Pacific.

BY WILLIAM M. BAKER.

[The following letter, which we copy from the New York Observer of March 19th, shows that there are some travelers who can appreciate Honolulu. Mr. Bliss had the fortune not to fall into anyone's hands on arriving here. He came to enjoy himself during the winter months, in a quiet way, and this letter, which gives his impressions of our city, does credit both to himself and to us--Ed.]

Sailing from the northeast, behind the trade-wind, on a sunny morning, we had passed beyond the latitude 127° west, and latitude 22° north, when before us rose the ISLAND OF OAHU.

By noon the land was under our lee, and we ran along its eastern shore, not enough to discover a wide and grotesque landscape, which to
