the deserving poor of this community.

"No one knows better than I, of the many visitations, both night and day, you made to the deserving poor and sick people of this city, you furnished them with shelter, food and clothing, cheer and comfort in their distress; and at the bedside of the dying, you gave to many a disturbed soul, assuring consolation and repose, by pointing them to a merciful and loving God.

"From these virtues in the make-up of your character we see the consummation of a pure and irreproachable Christian manhood. Your name and character are so interwoven with all that pertains to St. Paul's church that we find it impossible to disassociate them—indeed it would be as impossible to think of St. Paul's church without its pews, and its sacred altar, as to think of it without associating the name of H. B. Restarick.

"Brother Restarick, while your influence for good extends beyond local limits, it has not yet reached its zenith.

"When the Episcopal church, with its ministry of thousands of scholarly men, came to choose from its number one qualified for the office of bishop, you were unanimously chosen to fill the highest position in the gift of that great church. San Diego lodge of Elks has the distinguished honor of having your name enrolled on its membership list. When your name was presented there was general rejoicing, and the members of the lodge can testify to the fact that you endured the ordeal of your initiation with Christian fortitude, and you undoubtedly at times felt the force of the adage, 'A little nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men.'

"Brother Restarick, in view of your departure, I desire to present you a token of our love and esteem. The lodge feels keenly the loss it will sustain in your removal—and in all candor, and frankness—we confess to you that there was an element of selfishness mingled with the higher motives in the choice of the gift we tender to you, and in order to alleviate our fears of the possibility of losing you entirely, we have aimed to assure ourselves of a continuance of your membership with us.

"And now, in behalf of San Diego lodge, No. 168, I present to you this beautiful life membership card, which fittingly combines the elements of purity and durability.

"Accept this token of our love and esteem, together with our best wishes for a long life, health, happiness and prosperity for yourself and family."

Not only was the lodge room itself decorated, but the reception room as well, the billiard and pool tables being wreathed in smilax, with the balls and cues tastefully arranged on the table. There were bouquets everywhere in both lodge room and reception parlors. (The answer of Bishop Restarick to the above address will be published in to-morrow's issue.—Ed.)
