Attempted to Murder Succeeded in Suicide.

PASADENA, Oct. 8.—Jas. P. Treadwell, son of the late J. P. Treadwell, the well known millionaire mining man committed suicide here this morning at 11 o'clock, after having attempted unsuccessfully to kill his handsome young wife. He chose as the scene of his terrible deed picture-que Rubio Canyon, at the foot of the world-famed Mount Lowe Railway, and passengers on the road arrived just in time to see Mrs. Treadwell rushing away, blood dripping from her forehead, while her husband lay dead beside a little spring.

Mrs. Treadwell will recover. She is the former Mrs. Abigail Nay Driver, the Sonoma county belle, who married Treadwell in Petaluma in June. As the issue of her first marriage she has two children. Her year-old son, a flaxen haired little fellow, was at home in charge of a colored nurse at the time of the tragedy. The other child, a girl, is with Mrs. Treadwell's mother in Petaluma. The family reside at 31 North Euclid avenue in this city.

Mr and Mrs. Treadwell took the early electric car for Altadena this morning and got off at Rubio Canyon, a resort at the foot of the Mount Lowe incline. It is a picturesque nook in the Sierra Madre mountains, about five miles from here. At 11 o'clock the incline car was coming down. The passengers, among them Prof. Larkin, who has charge of the telescope and searchlight, heard a pistol shot just as the car neared Rubio. Looking up, they saw Mrs. Treadwell running, with blood streaming from her forehead. They presumed that she had fallen and cut her head on a stone. She exclaimed that she had been struck by her husband, who, she feared, had shot himself, as she had heard two shots. She would not tell her name or give any particulars. They took her to a spring and washed her wound and then summoned Dr. Charles D. Lockwood and had him meet the car at Pasadena.

Treadwell was cold when the passengers reached him. Two bullets had pierced his head, one passing through the brain. On the ground were found a .32 caliber revolver, hairpins and signs of a scuffle. The revolver was broken about the butt and the trigger guard.

THE INDEPENDENT 50 cents per month.
