Rumors circulating among the natives would indicate that many of them are still inclined to look upon President Cleveland as not particularly friendly to the Republic.

To what extent the issue at stake should be kept alive in the minds of the people, as brought out in the discussion of the preamble of the indemnity law, is a feature of the recent rebellion which cannot well be overlooked. There is a fine medium between "rubbing it in" and sweeping the whole affair into the forgotten past, which must of a necessity be maintained. It is always a good plan to search for the silver lining of the cloud, but it will never do for the brilliancy of the reflection to blind one to each and every aspect which the cloud may present. It would be most despicable to constantly flaunt the red flag of the past in the faces of those defeated, but there are hard, cold, undeniable facts which, in justice to those who are to come after, this country cannot afford to pass, trusting to luck that the situation will always be understood as it is today. It is much better to look matters squarely in the face, rather than depend on gilt-edged hopes that stand an even chance of having little more than a theoretical foundation. This is no time to back and fill, though there is no necessity, nor is it desirable, to go to extremes.

PRECEDENT FOR INDEMNITY LAW.

The act of indemnity and oblivion introduced in the Advisory Councils yesterday, is a natural and necessary measure growing out of the extraordinary conditions thrust upon the community by a rebellious body of men. Precedents for such action may be found in English and American history, where the Executive and their supporters have been called upon to rule with a high hand, performing acts which under civil law would not be countenanced.

An instance particularly pertinent to the present situation in this country, is found in a case brought before the Queen's bench as a result of the Jamaica rebellion of 1865. Martial law had been declared in those portions of the country where the rebel spirit centered. In the course of the suppression of the uprising the Governor of the island subjected a British subject to imprisonment, flogging and deportation from the colony. After martial law had been revoked, this man brought suit against the Governor of Jamaica, who sought protection under an indemnity act the legality of which was upheld by the court. In rendering the decision of the court the judge called attention to the fact that for the Governor to act, during a time of peril, within the precise limits of the law of ordinary peace would be a difficult and impossible task and to hesitate or temporize might entail disastrous consequences. "It is manifest, however, that there may be occasions in which the necessity of the case demands prompt and speedy action for the maintenance of law and order at whatever risk and where the Governor may be compelled unless he shrink from the discharge of a paramount duty, to exercise de facto powers which the legislature would assuredly have confided to him if the emergency could have been foreseen, trusting that whatever he has honestly done for the safety of the state, will be ratified by an act of indemnity and oblivion. There may not be time to appeal to the Legislature for special powers. The Governor may have, on his own responsibility, to arm loyal subjects, to seize or secure arms, to detain suspected persons and even to meet armed force with armed force in the open field.

"If he hesitates the opportunity may be lost of checking the first outbreak of insurrection, whilst by vigorous action the consequences of allowing the insurgents to take the field in force may be averted."

The attempt to belittle the possibilities of the rebellion, which has cropped out so frequently, can be answered in no better words than those of the judge: "The very efficiency of his measures may diminish the estimate of the danger with which he had to cope, and the danger once past, every measure he has adopted may be challenged as violent and oppressive, and he and every one who advised him or acted by his authority may be called upon, in action at the suit of individuals dissatisfied with his conduct, to establish the necessity or regularity of every act in detail by evidence which it may be against public policy to disclose.

"The bare litigation to which he may be exposed may be harassing and ruinous. Under these and like circumstances it seems plainly within the competence of the Legislature, which could have authorized by antecedent legislation the acts done as necessary or proper for preserving the public peace, upon a due consideration of the circumstances, to adopt and ratify like acts when done, or, in the language of the law and consideration, to enact that they shall be, made and declared lawful and confirmed."

Timely Copies Chronometer

March 9, 1895.

When a man puts his wits together and invents machinery that saves money to the farmer, the manufacturer or the planter he is called the foe to labor. The fact that he gives to the world the means of producing staples at a less cost, and consequently becomes a benefactor of the masses indirectly is not recognized. That he has taken work from an individual or certain classes of wage workers is sufficient cause for the condemnation that is landed on his head.

The man who invented the sugar land implements that we sell did that which acts to a certain degree as an offset to any tariff legislation in the United States.

A whole colony of plantation laborers could not do in one day what an Avery Stubble Digger operated by one man can perform. It saves labor and consequently coin. In distributing fertilizers every plantation manager knows that it cannot be done by hand without loss of material. By the use of the Avery Fertilizer Distributor the material is spread so evenly that there is no loss whatever, and one man with one of these machines can do as much work as nine without it.

The results that follow the use of these implements apply as well to the Stubble Shovers and Disc Cultivators.

The following testimonials regarding the implements should be a sufficient guarantee of their usefulness.

HUTCHINSON PLANTATION COMPANY, NA'ALEHU, HAWAII. March 1st, 1895. E. R. HENDRY, Esq., Hawaiian Hardware Company.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your letter inquiring about the Avery Stubble Diggers and Fertilizer Distributor, I would say that the fact that we have just received the second stubble digger speaks for itself. We have dug over four hundred acres of ratoon stools and consider it will be a great benefit.

The Fertilizer Distributor is a good thing and has effected a material saving of labor in the application of Fertilizer and applies it better than can be done by hand.

These machines are very simple and well constructed and we have had no trouble with the working of them and we consider them one of the most useful labor saving machines that can be used on a plantation.

Yours Truly, G. C. HEWITT, Manager H. S. P. Co.

ONOMEA SUGAR COMPANY, PAPAIOU, HAWAII, February 25, 1895. MR JOHN A. COTT, Waiakoa Hawaii. DEAR SIR:—The Onomea Sugar Company has now in use three of the stubble diggers.

I think these machines are indispensable for the proper cultivation of ratoon stools.

We have never had an implement that would so thoroughly loosen the earth around the stools, and put the soil in such condition that the air, moisture and fertilizer would so readily find access to the fine roots of the cane and the soil around them.

I am glad to testify to the merits of these tools. The sugar Land Disc Cultivators arrived too late for my use in the cultivation of the last young plant and ratoon stools, but I believe they will prove to be very useful and labor saving implements in districts where cane is raised without irrigation.

Yours Truly, WM. W. GODALE, Manager Onomea Sugar Company.

HAKALAU, HAWAII, February 16, 1895. MR E. R. HENDRY, President and Manager Hawaiian Hardware Company, Honolulu, Oahu.

We use the Avery Stubble Digger, Fertilizer Distributor and Cane Cultivator. They save labor and do the work claimed for them. The Stubble Digger is considered a particularly good investment.

Yours Truly, WED. FOSTER, Manager Hakalau Plantation Company.

MAKONED,

HACKMAN'S REVENGE.

The water had gone. "Whom do you love more than your life?" asked Cascar, bending over the girl who sat with him at the little table. Vinola patted the spoon before her lips and looking up to him out of her big, soulful eyes, replied: "Ice cream." Cascar expected a different answer, for he drove a hack and was well fixed. Furthermore, he was jealous and would brook no rival. He bethought him of a lonely islet which high tide submerged a fathom or more and the next day he hired a boat, purchased a mghy tub of ice cream and invited Vinola to a picnic. She smiled and they rowed to sea. On the rock he placed Vinola and beside her the bounty of her heart's desire. "So good of you, dear Cascar," said the girl. But he turned away his eyes and pulled for the distant shore. Then the sun sank low, a fit, as the topmost wave of the tide lapped the summit of the rock, nothing was visible above the shimmering sea, but the young lady eating the ice cream.

WHERE ARE WE AT?

The Aloha Map Will Show You.

The Maps

The Aloha Map shows the eight inhabitable islands of the group, with the mountain ranges, harbors, bays, and rivers well defined; also the names of over one hundred of the towns on the islands.

It is an excellent reference map for the home or office. It is just the map you have been looking for, to send to your absent friends, who have no distinct idea of our unique geographical position in the cross roads of the Pacific. This is illustrated intelligently by a separate map in one corner, showing our distance between North America, Australia, and China. The three steamer routes across the Pacific are indicated.

Aloha Tooth Powder

Our aim has been to produce a tooth powder that will clean the teeth without harm, and at the same time prove agreeable and pleasant to use. Aloha powder is manufactured from the very best materials, and contains no "sand" or cuttlefish bone to make it cheap. There is nothing in it that will harm the teeth or gums.

We have received many very flattering verbal testimonials. That it is pleasant to use will be conceded by anyone with a brush and a pinch of the powder. That it will not harm the gums is another claim we make for it. What outsiders say seems to carry weight. One of our customers who has used Aloha powder for several months, says:

"Before using your Aloha powder I had been troubled with sore gums. I was never free from this trouble for more than a week at a time. I have now been using your powder for several months, and have not had the slightest trouble with sore gums. I believe that it was the powder that I used irritated the gums."

The Premium Offer

We give with each bottle of Aloha Tooth powder the map above referred to. We do this to push faster the introduction of this excellent dentifrice, for when once used its reputation is established. Do not ask us for the maps. They are given only as a premium with every bottle of powder. We do not sell the maps. You get the Aloha Tooth powder for 25 cts., and the map thrown in.
