It should be remembered that each additional dollar received through the stereopticon lecture this evening means so much more pleasure for the poor unfortunates at the leper settlement. The drill shed ought to be crowded to the doors.

ANNEXATION AND PARTIES.

Judge W. A. Kinney has been criticised for linking the cause of annexation with the partisan politics of America and the opponents of the Cleveland Administration. Since the leaders of a section of one of the great political parties has seen fit to come out flat-footed against annexation and has already made a party issue of Hawaii we would like to know how the Hawaiian question can be considered entirely and distinctly apart from American political parties.

Much as we deplore the fact, the political and commercial union of this country with the United States is bound to become more or less mixed up with the platforms of the great political parties, and, as one opposes, the other will tend to endorse. If a popular vote were taken in the United States today upon Hawaiian annexation, we have little doubt of a result favorable to this country, but the truth is this country cannot be dealt with in any such manner, which necessitates the gaining of our ends through the medium of a political organization. The country's enemies have displayed their prejudice to such an extent that it is time wasted to crave their indulgence by soft, meaningless words. As Marshal Hitchcock would say, it's a good thing sometimes to call a spade a spade, and this is what Mr. Kinney has done in expressing his impressions of American sentiment, nor will the man or editor who is, in his heart of hearts, a true and unquestioned annexationist, question his wisdom in so doing.

CITIZENS' GUARD REGULATIONS.

The elimination of strict military forms from the rules and regulations of the Citizens' Guard is, on the whole a wise move although the paragraph relating to court martial and target practice was undoubtedly unduly magnified in the minds of a great many. It should be borne in mind that an armed force to be of any practical use in actual fighting, and able to offer formidable resistance to rioters or a company marching on the city, must be thoroughly organized under one head, who, through his subordinates is kept in constant touch with each individual.

The experience of the recent troubles taught those in charge that while the Citizens' Guard is a most estimable feature of the armed guard of the Republic, there are numerous defects easily remedied by the enforcement of more rigid regulations while members are on duty. From the very make-up of the organization it should be as free of military forms and restrictions as possible in times of peace. Its membership is made up largely of a class of men, willing to stand by the Government with their rifles if necessary, but unable to devote the time required by the regular volunteer companies.

When, however, these men are called into the service for which they volunteered, it is reasonable to expect a strict conformation to rules that will create an amalgamated whole rather than a mass of individualized individuals. A man must forget his personality to a greater or less extent when called out to stand guard or fight, and those in command ought not to be obliged to argue the question before orders are executed. Without established rules this latter contingency is a possibility. With the rules clearly defining the duties of each person, not only is the Citizens' Guard more formidable, but the individual members are more thoroughly protected from one another's bullets.

By the repeal of the court-martial clause, a refusal to obey can only be punished by dismissal—a dishonorable discharge, with no court of appeal. With the removal of the military regulations, the Citizens' Guard becomes in form what it is in fact, an armed constabulary for the protection of the city proper and answerable to the Marshal of the Islands. The scheme is a most excellent one in theory and practice, and nothing can be gained by wrangling over officers or the division of glory. The Citizens' Guard is formed for business, and is only called upon or held to rules when there is unmistakable business to attend to.

PROF. BRIGHAM AT LARGE AGAIN.

(Communicated.)

It was clearly understood that the naval expedition made last year to Necker Island, under the command of that bold navigator, Captain King, was not undertaken for the purpose of annexing that island, but solely to supply Professor Brigham of the Museum with a new breed of idols, in order to switch him off from his blood-thirsty comments on Mr. Thurston.

As the name of Thurston inevitably caused the Professor's temperature to rise above 680 degrees, the faith curists advocated this unique but powerful remedy. Captain King, by very adroit means, and with the skillful use of a final trap, bird nets and fish hooks, secured three most respectable idols, of a breed unknown in Hawaii proper, and, it may be added, incidentally attached a tag to the island, with the address of the Republic on it, in case it should get into any pile of lost luggage.

These idols were taken at midnight with due solemnity, under the escort of Colonel J. S. Emerson of the Kahuna Invincibles, to the museum, and there deposited in idolatrous state, and their care solemnly assigned to the great idol tamer of the Pacific. It was then believed that Mr. Thurston and his friends would get a rest.

All Polynesia has been disappointed. The sweet communion between the Professor and the idols has suddenly come to an end, and the former is now ducking Mr. Thurston in the horse-pond of his wrath.

It seems that the Professor, unduly influenced by what is known as the "higher criticism," rudely attacked the authenticity of the idols, and accused them, before their faces, of having no correct pedigrees, and of inciting treason among the other idols in the Museum. One of the idols known to visitors as the one with an under-stumpy stone leg and an over-balanced head, resented these imputations, and retorted that they, the idols, were getting tired of the Professor's diversifid, tangled and picturesque theaters of right and wrong, and, it is remarked, drove him out of the inner temple of the Museum, so that he can no longer warm his toes before the lighted altars of paganism.

As he cannot fill his soul any more with ecstatic joy in the contemplation in solitude of the belligerent gods and their attractive, but una-formal anatomy, he now reverts to his former occupation of immersing Mr. Thurston in the st-guaut ponds of his indignation. Possibly the arbitration board, proposed by the Labor Commission, may effect a reconciliation between the Professor and his gods in insurrection.

It is well known that the idols are in good and regular standing with the anti monarchy party because the missionaries have always been extremely sensitive about the influence of idols, and have never invited even visiting idols to their tea parties. Why the Professor should get out of line with such powerful allies, and virtually side with the missionary party, is inexplicable. At any rate, when Mr. Thurston returns, he should find a happy family in the Museum, and the water let out of the Professor's horse-pond.

Any one who reads Mr. Ashford's sayings to San Francisco reporters must read between the lines to understand that he does not mean half that he is reported as saying. Mr. Ashford was long enough in Hawaii to convince the people that he can tell the difference between "a 'awk han a 'au saw," and that he understands full well the value of silence. He has about as much intention of heading a filibustering expedition as he has of returning here and standing as a candidate for office. C. W. is a little joker and the interview with the reporter in Frisco was one of his jokes. When Mr. Ashford left here, his main thought was to do something in the behalf of his brother. The people here who know him will not believe that a filibustering expedition is in the line of assistance to that person.

Some time ago, we purchased a lot of European wire and immediately afterward some parties circulated a report that the quality had been affected by some unknown cause and that it was not up to the standard of the American product. We had a half dozen coils of the wire tested at the Iron Works and it showed a tensile strength of 2760 pounds. When this report was published in this column, the wire was sought after by plantation managers and individuals from Niihau to Hawaii. The other day, to oblige a skeptic, we ordered a hundred coils of American wire from the Coast and as it reached the store, we sent a half dozen coils to the foundry to have it tested. The result showed a tensile strength of 768 pounds or about 2000 less than the European article. We violate no confidence when we tell you that this American wire will not be sold by us. We have an abundance of the European article and can supply all sizes and in any quantity. This wire with the steel stays and galvanized washers comprise the material necessary to use in making the celebrated Jones' Locked Fence than which no stronger, cheaper or better fence was ever made.

Our new stock of Dietz Oil Stoves are going as rapidly as can be expected with times as hard as they are. That it is a good stove, no one who has ever tried them will deny. They are absolutely safe, because there is no possible way by which they can explode; they are free from unpleasant odors, because they are made on the most approved plans; they are economical, because directly you are through cooking you extinguish the flame. Twenty-four dollars invested in one of these stoves will save you a pot of money in twelve months.

The Australia brought us the latest thing in tea strainers; they fasten close up to the spout and the leaves are bound to be caught in the strainer. Handsomely nickel plated and we sell them for a quarter of a dollar.

We are having a run on the Alaska refrigerators, because they are the best ever brought to Honolulu. We sold one to a lady who had been taking twenty pounds of ice a day. When we assured her that she could reduce the quantity half the amount, she laughed at us. It was just ten days after she commenced using it that she came in and reported that she now buys just half the quantity of ice she formerly did.

ADELBERT'S DILEMMA.
OR THE NEW WOMAN.

"Adelbert Seattle, you cannot be my husband!" These words rang through the balmy evening air of Nuuanu Avenue with that independent tone characteristic of The New Woman. With eyes a-d-m-e-b-e continued: "You applauded that wretch at the mass meeting who said any woman's vote could be bought with a compliment." It was true, and he paled before the awful charge. Yet, poor weak, "du de siecle" man though he was, he gathered up strength to redeem himself. "For once, darling," he faltered, "You were out of my mind. I was thinking of the thousands of your inferiors with whom compliments are so rare that they are almost priceless." "O, Adelbert, I forgive you!" she cried, and she threw herself into his arms and wept there. He was moved, too. "Don't cry now," implored the girl, "your tears will wet my frizzes."
