MASTER SHOREY BY AUTHORITY.

The Whaling Skipper Visits Honolulu.

The American bark Andrew Hicks, Shorey master, arrived off port yesterday morning, 16 days from San Francisco on her way to the coast of Japan on a whaling cruise. A boat was put off and Captain Shorey came ashore to get additional provisions. It was late in the afternoon before the Andrew Hicks continued on her way. Captain Shorey is well known in Honolulu, having been here on two or three other occasions. He was here on the Gayhead about two years ago when some of the crew made almost successful attempts to destroy the ship by fire as well as to scuttle her. They were right off port when they made the attempt but the flames were discovered in time and she was hauled near to the Pacific Mail wharf and the home used freely. The next trip of the Gayhead to this port was under another captain.

The first mate of the Andrew Hicks is Geo. Gillie, a half-caste of this island who has for several years been in the whaling business. The third mate is a man by the name of Seymour who was boatswain's mate on the Hawaiian man-of-war Kaimiloa in 1889. He went from here to Japan when the Kaimiloa was put out of commission and from there drifted back to the Coast.

Mitchell is another half-caste from Honolulu who has spent about five years in the whaling business. He is a crack boatsteerer and one of the best men in the employ of the company that is sending out such ships as the Andrew Hicks. He came ashore in the whaleboat with the Captain yesterday, and while here, had time to see his brother and sister as well as secure a red carnation lei to place around his hat.

Mitchell has been very successful in the whaling business. Last year he "got" two whales and was remembered by the company for his work.

Hawaiians have always been very much in demand in the whaling business and Captain Shorey gave the reason for this in the following language: "Hawaiians are fearless on the water. They will chase a whale when they know they are in the greatest danger and think it is the greatest fun. If a boat is capsized it makes no difference to them for they can swim like fishes. I do not know of any people who are better suited for our business. They are absolutely fearless."
