A WHITE LIGHT

A Test of the New Illuminant is Made.

Hotel Grounds Have Plenty of Mel- low Light—Favor Gained for the Washington.

The new Washington Light, shown in public exhibition at the Hawaiian hotel last evening entirely came up to the promises of the introducers.

There were placed in the grounds an even dozen of the 1,500 candle power lamps and the light diffused by them was the most beautiful and satisfactory ever seen here. It is a soft, white light, comparable only to an intense moonlight. There is no blurring or fierceness, or flickering, and under the rays everything appears wholly natural. There is an absence of the shadows and the sputtering so common to the electric arc light.

Mr. Almy, who brought the light here, and Col. Geo. Macfarlane, who is interested in the rights, were more than pleased with the test. The hundreds of people who attended the band concert and looked at the lights were united in enthusiastic praise. It seemed almost impossible to realize that from kerosene such a light could be produced. The simple appliances were shown to many and the cheapness was self-evident with the quality.

The conductor of the current of oil and air to the point of ignition and illumination is a wire one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter. There is not the slightest danger of there ever being any interruption in the flow. In the first place the kerosene is filtered and then the fluid is very cleansing and smooth flowing. There is no detecting where there might be any danger in handling the light. The oil reservoir is at a distance from the light. There could not be communication between the flame and the tank and the only adjunct to the tank is an air-pump resembling very much a bicycle foot pump.

Many of the people who saw the new light last night were anxious to secure it for use. As the demand in the States for the illuminant is so great it may be quite a time before any local orders can be filled. A number of plantation men want the light for mills and sugar rooms.

Maemae Christmas

The Maemae Sunday school celebrated Christmas in the little church on Wylie street, Nuuanu valley, on Wednesday evening, December 28th.

The exercises of the first part, chiefly songs and recitations mingled, were given with good voice and no lack of spirit. Mr. Nakuina made a short address to the children in their native tongue. The annual report showed an enrollment of 116 names, one-half being in the primary classes, and an average attendance of 35.

The second part showed a beautiful Christmas tree, ice cream and cake were served to all who were present; every scholar received a gift. Candy in bags was distributed to all, and tin horns to the boys at the breaking up, which insured a suitable finale.

This entertainment was provided by the liberality of ladies living in the vicinity, and was second to none of the season.

Mr. Clark Suggested.

Honolulu, Dec. 29th, 1898.

EDITOR P. C. A.—I notice in your article in this morning's paper, you give me the credit of the authorship of the amendment to the "Land Act." This is not wholly correct. I called the attention of the Land Commissioner to the desirability of the "Right of Purchase Lease" applying to "Settlement Associations." And in conversation with President Dole, on the subject, he approved the idea, and stated he would prepare and introduce an amendment to that effect, which he did. To him the credit of this desirable addition being made to our land laws is due.

Yours respectfully,
BYRON O. CLARK.

St. Andrew's Christmas.

The hundreds of odd children who filled the Sunday school at St. Andrew's last evening, on the occasion of the Second Congregation's Christmas tree celebration, all went away happy with the success of the affair. Of course there were refreshments for all who came and gifts for every scholar and teacher. The tree was most artistically decorated and filled with the presents and gifts for the children. Sister Alberta and Sister Beatrice with the young ladies of St. Andrew's Priory were present. Harry von Holt made a lift as Santa Claus and Miss Godfrey took the part of Mother Goose most successfully.

Twenty-One Amateurs.

Director Wray Taylor and all of the staunch supporters of the Amateur Orchestra were delighted with the special rehearsal of the concert for Monday evening next. The orchestra wound up the practice of the evening with a spirited rendition of one of Souza's best marches. Attending the rehearsal were twenty-one members of the orchestra and all gave close attention throughout the evening to the various scores handed around. Four of the musicians were ladies. Mrs. Munyon, the harpist, is a valuable addition to the ranks of the orchestra.
