UNIQUE PHOTOGRAPHIC GALLERY.

During the past two weeks Mr. J. J. Williams' photographic gallery has been refitted and undergone a thorough renovation and it is doubtful if there is a gallery in San Francisco that is better fitted up. Mr. Williams recently visited the Coast and this change is the result of his visit. In future he will do his own operating.

In the operating room a new patent iron frame skylight has been put in, with the latest style of curtains. The room itself has been entirely refurnished with the best of furniture, new backgrounds, and here and there are potted ferns, palms and other plants. The ventilation has been given careful attention and the room is very cool. Mr. Williams has a new device for taking babies' photographs, which does away with taking off and putting on the cap of the camera. He has taken quite a number of pictures with this device with the most satisfactory results. There is also a small canoe which will be used with the Diamond Head background. Children can be taken sitting in the canoe, thus making a truly Hawaiian picture. The dark room has been enlarged and entirely refitted. New matting has been laid down in the reception and dressing rooms, and they are fitted in the most luxurious manner. Mr. Williams has been at great expense, but he can rest assured that he has a model photographic gallery in every respect.

In the reception room can be seen an oil painting by Tavernier, of the lava flow in 1881, which is a gem. There is also a painting of the steamer Mikahala at anchor in Nawiliwili bay, the work of Charles Pootoa, a young Hawaiian in the employ of Mr. Williams. It is his first attempt at oil painting and undoubtedly shows much talent.

Lives of great men all remind us,
We could make our lives as grand
If into the public grab we
We likewise could get our hand.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

AT Atlantic City, New Jersey, one day this season a Philadelphia clergyman undertook to lecture two young ladies upon what he deemed the improprieties of their bathing costumes. Four athletic young men coming out of the surf in time to hear part of the discourse, seized the preacher and gave him a series of duckings in the waves, then rolled him in the sand and let him go. As the victim was well dressed at the time, this rough usage left him in a sorry plight. The young men were calmly awaiting arrest at last accounts.

AN EDITOR'S BIRTHDAY.

MR. P. A. Dias, editor of O Luso Hawaiian and President of the Portuguese Benevolent Society, attained his thirty-fourth birthday on Tuesday. While he was entertaining a few friends in the evening, the Portuguese band appeared in front of his house with music stands and torches, playing a good programme that ended with the Portuguese and Hawaiian national anthems near 11 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Dias dispensed good cheer to friends and musicians in very generous style. All took their leave with feelings of heightened esteem for the pleasant couple, wishing them many recurrences of such happy occasions.

POLLANU, Pear, Kimo and O. H. Baleon each forfeited bail of $6 for drunkenness.

OUR IRON KING ABROAD.

Interesting Account of Hon. Alex. Young's Visit to the States.

THE Hon. Alex. Young, manager of the Honolulu Iron Works, having just returned from an extensive trip through the Eastern and Southern States, a BULLETIN representative called on that gentleman this morning for the purpose of obtaining from him some particulars of his trip. The newspaper man was very warmly received by Mr. Young, who said he had no objection whatever to being interviewed. Mr. Young is evidently very much pleased with his trip from a business point of view. While in New Orleans on August 8th, he attended a meeting of the Sugar Planters' Association, at which the subject for discussion was the setting of cane mill turn-plants. The discussion took a wide range, and as the New Orleans Times-Democrat says, "Many inquiries were put to the distinguished visitor from Honolulu." Much interest was manifested by those at the meeting in the lucid answers given to queries by Mr. Young. It is possible that some of those Southern planters went away with the impression that we have an "Alexander the Great" in Hawaii. The interview with Mr. Young is given below:—

What was the motive of your trip abroad, Mr. Young?

My visit to the East and South was, in view of the introduction of my new method of automatic and continuous diffusion of prepared sugar cane or bagasse, to find out from reliable sources what were the advantages and disadvantages of treating sugar cane by the cell battery method of diffusion, and also to gather any other information connected with the sugar industry that might be of interest to those engaged in the production of sugar in our own islands.

I also desired to put before the planters of the sugar producing States some of the improvements introduced by me into the sugar houses of many of the plantations throughout this group.

What success did you meet with in this respect?

Many of the Louisiana planters were anxious to adopt the whole of the improvements this year, but the season having advanced at the time of my visit, the time before the harvest came on was too short to admit of extensive alterations to the machinery. At the same time some of the planters have intimated their intentions to put in the automatic bagasse mill feeders and the superheaters for the coming crop.

How does their machinery compare with that used in Hawaii?

Their grinding machinery is far behind that used with us here, hence the necessity for all kinds of devices adopted by them to break up the cane before it is to be ground in the rollers; and the quantity of moisture left in their bagasse after double crushing makes it impossible for them to burn it without a forced blast—this moisture left in the bagasse in Hawaii in former days was one of the leaks that kept our hard working planters poor. Had the Louisiana planters been in possession of the excellent crushing appliances used by most Hawaiian planters I doubt if diffusion would have been introduced at all for sugar cane. The inversion in the cells seems to be the great drawback to diffusion of cane. The Louisiana planters have a market for their molasses, however, and that helps them out.

Do they use the diffusion process down there?

There are those in Louisiana who have been trying to get along with unsuitable crushing machinery and who in consequence of frequent breakdowns in their mills have been driven to diffusion by no other cause. Several diffusion plants are being put up this year. I had opportunity of examining the crushing machinery at some of those places and can only say, no wonder they went for diffusion by almost any known method.

What did you learn about beet sugar?

At present there is much talk of introducing the sugar beet and in several districts in Louisiana and Texas trial lots have been planted and excellent results obtained. It is therefore possible that the beet may take the place of the cane, or at least part of it, and part cane may be the future crops of those States. The beets will certainly take the place of sorghum in some districts.

Then there is room for much improvement in Louisiana?

The farming as well as the machinery may be much improved in Louisiana, and in fact at the present time planters are beginning to direct their attention to improved methods of farming their lands. I think there is a great future for sugar in the South, and that before long the yield per acre will be increased fifty percent.

Did you visit any refinery while in the East?

I visited Col. Spreckel's great refinery at Philadelphia and was much pleased, not only with the magnitude of the establishment but also with the excellence of the machinery throughout the entire works, and the convenient manner in which every item of the equipment is arranged.

Was any other place of interest visited by you?

When in Philadelphia I also visited the Baldwin Locomotive Works and ordered two locomotives—one for Olowalu and one for Waikeka plantation. The establishment is a very large one covering many acres of ground, and yet the business grows upon the firm so fast that they can hardly fill the orders that crowd in upon them from all parts of the world. Their work is first class, and the manager will not take him at such prices as will not enable him to keep up the reputation the establishment has acquired at home and abroad throughout these many years.

A WAIF.

THE Public Administrator of San Francisco has found a home in a private family for a little girl, whose picture is given in the Chronicle to illustrate a report from which the following is taken:

"The baby has a history aside from being left friendless. It is the daughter of John McLaughlin, the man who obtained $25,000 from General Barnes by selling him an alleged contract between Attorneys Tyler and Gumpel, by which the latter gentleman agreed to execute a forged marriage contract in the Sharon case. The paper which McLaughlin sold was a forgery, but he got the $25,000 and skipped to Honolulu, and from there to Australia, where he is now supposed to be. He left a wife, whose whereabouts are now unknown, and the baby which has just come into the hands of the Public Administrator."

The child, it appears, has been left friendless by the death of both McLaughlin's parents within a short time.

COMPLIMENTARY ADDRESS.

THE following document, an engrossed copy of which was presented to Capt. Dow, explains itself:

We, the undersigned passengers on board the barkentine Planter, sailing from San Francisco August 20th, to Honolulu, H. I., do hereby desire to express to Captain Freeman Dow, commander of said vessel, our heart-felt thanks and sincere appreciation of his kindness, courtesy, and the thorough and able manner in which he has conducted us on our journey across the mighty deep, also in studying our individual comforts and welfare, thus making our voyage a bright and happy experience, and one long to be remembered.

MEASLES.

A report being in circulation that there are several cases of measles in town, enquiry was made at the office of the Board of Health this morning if such was the case. Dr. Emerson, the president, said there had been an epidemic of measles of a very mild type among the Portuguese living on Punchbowl hill. All the houses in that locality had been disinfected. Most of the children who were down with the disease had passed the contagious stage. There was one case that was at present under guard, the children not being allowed to go out. As far as can be learned the measles were brought by Portuguese from Hilo, Hawaii.

AGREEMENT.

WHERE by the terms of agreement or obligation, the interest accruing on a loan is payable at certain specified periods, a demand for the payment of the interest at the time it becomes due, must be shown before compounding of the interest can be allowed. May v. Haaleia, 2 Haw. 191.

When no time is specified in an agreement at which an account shall be made; Held, on demurrer, that the bill should allege that a demand for an account has been made and refused. Keelikelani v. Robinson, 2 Haw. 436.

The agreement showing that the parties to it should pay equal proportions for the repairs on the premises leased, and the assignee or lessee of the premises having made the repairs at his own expense, without obtaining proportional payment from the other party; it was held that the application of the same party was properly made by the party incurring the expense of the repairs—in payment of what was due from the other party for his part of the cost of repairs.

Such proportion of the cost of repairs regarded as an offset, if rents have been received. Ib.

Under the agreement made by the respondent with the ancestor, by which the respondent should occupy and improve a certain wharf premises in Honolulu, and account and pay over one-half of all the moneys received for the use of the said wharf ann premises to the original owner, his heirs, etc., one-half of the expenses in repairing, improving, etc., to be borne by each; the respondent was regarded as a co-tenant. Also, having recognized, for thirty-four years, the successive heirs to the property and those claiming an interest by making payments to them from time to time, and suffering no disturbance in his possession, the court refused to adjudicate upon what might be the rights of the government or any third parties—no such counter claims being before the court and the heirship of the complainant having been proved, respondent was decreed to account to her for all the moneys received for the use of the said wharf and premises. Ib. 322.

A parole agreement to take charge of a plantation for three years, alleged to have been made with the plaintiff by the defendant's agent, the latter to find all moneys required to carry on the business, said moneys to bear interest from date of payment, and at the end of the three years, the sums advanced and interest to be paid back to defendant, plaintiff receiving one half of the balance of receipts as wages: Held to be agreement not to be performed within a year, and therefore, such as the statute of frauds (see, 1055 Civil Code) declares invalid to found an action upon at law, unless it be in writing, etc.

Such an agreement, unattested by any writing signed by the plaintiff, cannot form a ground of defence to a suit for services rendered, based on a quantum meruit. Wakeman v. Hakaleleponi, 2 Haw. 753.

An agreement to convey real estate, signed by a cross mark, is a sufficient memorandum within the statute of frauds, if the signature be proved. Kuawela v. Hilda, 4 Haw., 133.

Where a written agreement makes the sale of property conditional upon previous full payment by purchaser, and, in default, the right of possession to revert to the vendor, the payment being a precedent condition, the purchaser's assignees in bankruptcy have no claim. Raymond v. Dole, 4 Haw., 232.

WHY HE DID NOT GO TO THE HOSPITAL.

MY object in writing is two-fold: To express my gratitude for a great benefit, and to tell a short story which cannot fail to interest the feelings of many others. It is all about myself, but I have remarked that when a man tells the honest truth about himself he is all the more likely to be of use to his fellow-creatures. To begin, then, you must know I had long been more or less subject to attacks of bronchitis, a complaint that you are aware is very common and troublesome in Great Britain in certain seasons of the year. Some months ago I had a very severe turn of it, worse, I think, than I ever had before. It was probably brought on by my catching cold, as we are all apt to do when we least expect it. Weeks passed by, and my trouble proved to be very obstinate. It would not yield to medicine, and as I also began to have violent racking pains in my limbs and back, I became greatly alarmed. I could neither eat nor sleep. If I had been a feeble, sickly man, I should have thought less strangely of it; but, as, on the contrary, I was hearty and robust, I feared some new and terrible thing had got hold of me, which might make my strength of no avail against it. I say, that was the way I thought.

Presently I could not even lie down for the pain all over my body. I asked my doctor what he thought of my condition, and he frankly, "I am sorry to have to tell you that you are getting worse!" This so frightened my friends, as well as myself, that they said, "Thomas, you must go to the Hospital; it may be your only chance for life!"

But I didn't want to go to the hospital. Who does, when he thinks he can possibly get along without doing it? I am a labouring man, with a large family depending on me for support, and I might as well be in my grave as to be laid on my back in a hospital unable to lift a hand for months, or God only knows how long. Right at this point I had a thought flash across my mind like a streak of sunshine in a cloudy day. I had heard and read a good deal about Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup, and I resolved, before consenting to be taken to the hospital, I would try that well-known remedy. On this I gave up the doctor's medicine and began taking the Syrup. Mark the wonderful result! I had taken but three doses within twenty-four hours when I was seized with a fit of coughing, and threw up the phlegm and mucus off my chest by the mouthful. The Syrup has loosened and broken it up. Continuing with the Syrup, the racking pain, which I believe came from the bitter and poison humors in my blood and joints, soon left me entirely, and I felt like going to sleep, and I did sleep sound and quiet. Then I felt hungry, with a natural appetite, and as I ate I soon got strong and well.

New Free Tontine Policy

OF THE EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES

A SIMPLE PROMISE TO PAY.

[From the NEW YORK TIMES, June 22, 1889.]

The Equitable Life Assurance Society has adopted a new form of policy which, like a bank draft, is a simple promise to pay without conditions on the back.

[From the CHICAGO INVESTIGATOR.]

Always on the alert, and ever anxious to give the public the most advantageous contract in life insurance, the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York has, in the past, made many advances on old methods, and has been the means to liberalize life insurance in a greater degree, perhaps, than any other organization. It is not at all surprising, therefore, that this great company now comes before the people with a new contract, the like of which has not before been known in life insurance.

[From the KENTUCKY REGISTER, Richmond, Ky., June 28, 1889.]

The Equitable Life Assurance Society has, in the past, done more to create and maintain confidence in life assurance than any other company. Consequently its business is larger than that of any of its competitors. Furthermore, it has now taken a step which practically sweeps every objection of the character referred to out of the way. The result, undoubtedly, will be that thousands of men who have heretofore lacked confidence in life insurance, will examine the new policy offered by the Equitable, and assure their lives forthwith.

[From the BOSTON POST.]

This company has done more than any other to simplify the assurance contract, and to maintain public confidence in life insurance.

[From the PACIFIC UNDERWRITER, San Francisco, July 1, 1889.]

The Equitable has already established a world-wide reputation for liberal dealings with its policy-holders and for its prompt settlement of all legitimate claims against it, and this new policy cannot fail to enhance its reputation for enterprise and progressiveness in dealing with the subject of life insurance.
