BRIDGENS CONSIDERED EXPERT ON EXPLOSIVES

Lieut. S. O. Bridgens, news of whose commission in the national army was recently received by cable at department headquarters, is being congratulated by his many friends both in and out of the service.

Lieut. Bridgens is a native of Kansas and has served in the coast artillery branch for the last twenty years. He is a graduate of the torpedo depot of the School of Submarine Defense at Fort Totten, N. Y., and is generally recognized among the coast defenses as an expert on high explosives.

While no orders have been received as to his assignment to foreign service, his many friends will not be surprised to hear that Lieut. Bridgens has been selected for duty in Russia in the reorganization of the Russian artillery.

I wish to assure my Patrons and the Public in general--

That the closing of the Territorial Marketing Division will NOT cause any boosting of prices charged by this market—previously published statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

The cost of meats to my customers will continue to depend entirely, as it has in the past, upon the price that I must pay for it at wholesale—not upon the principle of "what the traffic will bear."

I believe in patriotic business and detest food profiteering as thoroughly as does every sincere patriot.

The Territorial Marketing Division never has been regarded by me as a competitor, because I have not considered its goods anywhere as good as mine. I have never felt the least interest in its business; as a matter of fact I did not know that plans were afoot to close its retail division until I read of them in the newspapers.

Again I wish to reassure the public that the closing of that establishment will in no way affect prices here, and that when wholesale meat prices are reduced, my retail prices will drop accordingly.

I believe in and live up to the rule:

"A Square Deal for All!"
