News from Governor Frear, who was expected to arrive at San Francisco yesterday, is to the effect that the new Territorial bonds will bring a higher price in the East than was obtained for last year's issue. The highest price obtained last year for any lot was 104, while the average was 101.58 3-5.

The immigrant inspector here will soon be permitted to detain immigrants who are suffering from curable diseases for a period of a year, instead of two months, and to submit his report later, instead of writing to Washington for authority to permit their detention. The new arrangement was perfected by the Governor during his recent visit at the national capital.

President Taft will recommend the name of L. A. Dickey to the senate for appointment to the judgeship on Kauai in the very near future, according to information received here yesterday. Albert Horner and Charles A. Rice have been spending some time at the national capital, discussing political affairs with the friends of the President and the matter of the vacant judgeship with officials of the department of justice.

One result of Governor Frear's visit to Washington is that the War Department and Geological Survey have consented to cooperate in making a complete topographical survey of the island of Oahu. The data already collected by the War Department will be turned over to the Geological Survey, and the blank spots on the map will be filled in by the latter, in cooperation with the Territory. The geological survey will continue survey work this year on the island of Hawaii.

THE FASHIONABLE WOMEN OF PARIS

The French racing season means a great deal to the fashionable Parisienne and she looks forward to it with eagerness, knowing that she will see all that is smart and new in dress.

When Longchamps recently opened the racing season, the sun shone at intervals only and the wind was cold and biting, yet the passage was crowded with all the most fashionable women of Paris in midsummer costumes.

There were, in fact, several groups represented. Naturally, there were the "mannikins" from every well-known dressmaking establishment, who shivered in the filmy dresses designed by the artist-dressmakers, who sent forth their creations to be seen by, and incidentally sold to, those who admired, and who promptly learned where they originated.

The smart Parisienne who impartially purchases her dresses from the establishment which shows models to please her, knows each "mannikin" by sight, and therefore it is simple for her to make a mental note of the dresses and visit the establishment employing the "mannikin" to give an order.

It is also considered quite correct, in Paris, to address one of the "mannikins" to learn what firm she represents, and as generally this young person receives a small percentage on all dresses sold that are duplicates of the one she is wearing, she is eager to "make a sale," and gives all information in her power. As a rule she carries a small notebook in readiness for an order, and frequently when she reports at the establishment next morning she hands in the names of many prominent women who have decided to have her dresses copied.

Inducements are offered to famous stagefolk and there is such rivalry amongst Paris dressmakers that the well-known artists, renowned for the perfection of their clothes as well as for their art, are requested to sign contracts whereby the firm concerned will have the special privilege of dressing them both for the stage and races.

When the racing season opens at Longchamps every French dressmaker is present. New York leading dressmakers send representatives also, more particularly the wrapmakers. The expense is very great to the Americans, as it always means an investment in costly gowns, which are purchased simply for the ideas. They are usually sold at a big loss, but they get suggestions and act upon them and reproduce to the American figure.

G. B. Curtis of E. W. Jordan's happened to be in New York looking when some of the representatives of the houses who make garments for them had just returned from Paris. The result is, the ladies of Honolulu will be shown at Jordan's, opening styles as worn at the recent Longchamps races.

Standing under a pretty floral tent suspended from an artistic canopy draped in one of the rooms at the residence of W. H. Beers, James G. Reid, the well-known and popular chief officer on the steamer Enterprise, was yesterday married to Sarah I. Lyman, one of Hilo's popular young ladies. Rev. W. H. Fenton-Smith of the Church of the Holy Apostles officiated, and the ceremony was witnessed by members of the family and a few friends.

The Beers residence was tastefully decorated throughout, the room in which the ceremony was performed being especially pretty. A huge canopy was hung from the ceiling, and from the center of this again hung a big floral bell, under which the happy couple stood and made their responses. The residence was thronged with guests, the pretty dresses of the ladies giving the finishing touch to the scene.

As the couple entered the room a band of Hawaiian musicians struck up Lohengrin's wedding march and played it until the minister was ready to go on with the service.

Miss Ellen Lyman was maid of honor and Ralph E. Babbington acted as best man for the bridegroom. The bride was given away by Rufus Lyman.

Carrying the ring and officiating as page boy was little Freddy Beers. He carried out his part well and had the ring ready when the proper time came round.

After the ceremony was over the guests made their way to another room, where, amid pretty and artistic surroundings, a fine luncheon was served. Several congratulatory speeches were made and suitable responses given.

The preliminary hearing of the seven Chinese sailors of the British tramp steamer Indian Monarch, arrested by the United States marshal for attacking a customs house officer, has been continued to 9 o'clock next Monday morning.

SPORT

STARS HAVE ONE MORE CHANCE TO TIE

Tomorrow's games in the Oahu Senior League will either settle the first half of the series in favor of the J. A. C. or send it in a tie for first place between that team and the fast-moving Stars. The Stars must go in and win, while the J. A. C. players will view the contest from the grandstand, helpless to do anything, but root for the Hawaiians, who will oppose Barney Joy's Twinklers in their fight for the last rung of the ladder. Joy himself will do the twisting for the Stars, and it's a safe bet that the big fellow will work harder than he has for some time to get his hands over.

The Star-Hawaii game is first on the list, and as it is the only one that really counts, the fans should be on hand by 1:30. The closer of the afternoon will be between the Portuguese and Ahihi.

HARVARD CLEANS UP THE YALE ROWERS

NEW LONDON, June 21.—For the fifth successive year Harvard demonstrated her rowing supremacy over Yale by winning not only the varsity race with six lengths to spare, but capturing the freshmen event by a length and the four-oared contest by ten lengths.

A Yale victory in the freshmen substitute four-oared race yesterday afternoon prevented a complete Crimson sweep of the river for 1912.

There was never a doubt of the varsity race this afternoon, and there was 29 1-2 seconds in time between the boats at the finish. The official time of the three races was:

Varsity race, four miles—Harvard, 21:42 1-2; Yale, 22:04.

Freshman race, two miles—Harvard, 10:52; Yale, 10:54 1-2.

University fours, 120 miles—Harvard, 11:24; Yale, 11:55.

Harvard's victories today brought the long series of aquatic contests with Yale to a tie for the first time since 1902, as both universities have now won twenty-three contests. Five successive Harvard victories over Yale have not been achieved since 1870.

The preliminary hearing of the seven Chinese sailors of the British tramp steamer Indian Monarch, arrested by the United States marshal for attacking a customs house officer, has been continued to 9 o'clock next Monday morning.
