

The Latest Thing in Stoves

For a midnight supper, as for any other meal at any other time, the very latest thing in stoves—the best that stove-artists can do—is a

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

It concentrates the heat where you want it. It is as quick as gas, steadier and handier than coal, cheaper than electricity.

The New Perfection Stove is handsomely finished in nickel, with cabinet top, deep shelves, travel racks, etc. Made with 1, 2 or 3 burners. All dealers carry the New Perfection Stove. Free Cook-Book with every stove. Cook-Book also gives in capsule reading 5 cents to cover mailing cost.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY

(Incorporated)

San Francisco, Cal. San Jose, Cal. Marysville, Cal. Seattle, Wash.
 Los Angeles, Cal. Sacramento, Cal. Fresno, Cal. Spokane, Wash.
 San Diego, Cal. Berkeley, Cal. Portland, Ore. Tacoma, Wash.

GAY SOCIETY AT WASHINGTON

SIDELIGHTS OF OFFICIALDOM AND DIPLOMACY

BY C. S. ALBERT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 19.—(Special Bulletin.)—The Correspondent.

Washington society under particularly happy circumstances, and only a scant twenty-four hours after their arrival.

Capt. Grant succeeds Capt. F. G. Sowerby, who departed yesterday. He has been a fixture here as naval attaché for years, and withal quite the most conspicuous bachelor host of the corps—with the possible exception of A. C. Hotaman, of the German embassy, of Sunday night dance fame, or the new Brazilian ambassador, Senhor de Gama.

The personnel of the German embassy staff has been recently augmented by the arrival of a new attaché, Baron von Reibnitz, and his attractive young wife, Baroness von Reibnitz. Since their arrival in Washington they have occupied apartments at the Graton, from whence they departed yesterday for a brief sojourn at Boston, before locating for the summer at Newport, where the embassy is to be established. They will be a decided acquisition to the younger married set of the Diplomatic Corps next winter.

Not in many moons has society experienced such a thrill as that occasioned by the ban which the authorities at the Chevy Chase Club placed on the "Trukey Trot," the "Bunny Wiggle," and all the other fancy dances of the modern type, the other day. Heretofore these fancy steps have run riot at Chevy Chase, the younger set indulging in great abandon, and the sudden and decisive stand taken by the board of governors was a matter of great surprise.

Rumor has it that the governors and members of the club are still not above indulging when surrounded only by friends, but that the ultimatum was forced by the unwelcome presence of strangers within the sacred precincts of the clubhouse. Such a crowd attends the Saturday night subscription dinners that it is well nigh impossible to prevent the entrance of interlopers. These dinners have been such a feature of the summer season at the club for the last few years that it was deemed inadvisable to discontinue them without first adopting less drastic measures. The recent edict, it is hoped, will eliminate the original attraction of the evening from the standpoint of the host.

Another recent notable event in the club life of the National Capital was the closing for the season of the Playhouse, perhaps the most unique social club in the country. This last has been the second and eminently successful season of this institution. So successful has it been, in fact, that its board of governors has decided to enlarge the better accommodation of the members next year. The Playhouse—which is the only club theater in the country—boasts a most distinguished list of founders, including social leaders, Cabinet members, diplomats and others of equal distinction.

Preston Gibson, who was the instigator of the club, is the president of the organization, and was actively concerned with all the enterprises undertaken during the winter. Mrs. Gibson was president of the famous "Blue Club" which met there every night until Lent, and which was recently disbanded for the season.

The organization has also admirably served its original purpose of offering the dramatic efforts of its members, many noteworthy amateur productions having taken place there during the season.

One apparent result of the recent Dolly Madison breakfast—the harmony least of feminine Democracy—is the newly organized Women's Democratic League which met Wednesday morning at the New Willard for the first time. The object of the league as defined in the constitution is "To promote the principles of Democracy and to assist in the election of the regular nominees of the Democratic party. This league shall in no way use its influence in behalf of any person or faction prior to the nomination of the Democratic candidates." Its organizers feel that there is much to be done—in a woman's way—toward the education of women in the present campaign, and it is intended to mark the upbuilding of the strength of the Democratic women. At the meeting Wednesday, arrangements were made for the close of the Convention at Baltimore, when plans will be announced for the work of the league.

The President's daughter, who has been at Bryn Mawr, has been greatly pleased from her accustomed place at the center of social activities of the younger set. True loyalty to her alma mater, however, caused her to absent herself from Washington during the busiest week of the summer, to attend the commencement exercises of the class with which she would have graduated had not her social duties intervened.

In the absence of her daughter, Mrs. Taft went about but little in a social way. The luncheon in her honor which Mrs. White, wife of the Chief Justice, gave at the Country Club Thursday, marked her only appearance at any formal function throughout the week.

The White House will remain open until early in July, it is understood, though the summer White House at Beverly is even now ready for occupancy. Mrs. Taft and her daughter will remain in Washington until the last of the month, when they are expected in Cincinnati for the marriage of Mrs. Taft's niece, Miss Harriet Anderson, and Hugh de Fitch of New York, going on from there to Beverly.

Miss Tall is to be one of her country's bridesmaids. The President will doubtless remain at the Capital until after the close of Congress, which may be well into August.

Mrs. Wickersham, wife of the attorney general, has gone to Marshallfield, at Cedarhurst, L. I., her summer home, and will not return to the capital, according to present plans, until the autumn.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson expect to leave the last of the week for their place on Long Island.

Baroness Korff and her children, who came to Washington at the time of the Red Cross convention and who has been the guest of her parents, Rear Admiral van Reypen, U. S. N., and Mrs. Van Reypen, has decided to spend the summer with them.

Engagement Broken.

Former Secretary of the Navy Truman H. Newberry recalled the invitations to the wedding of his daughter, Carol H. Newberry to Capt. W. H. Alleyne of the Queen's Own Regiment, stationed at Bermuda, which was to have taken place on the 15th of June, and announced that the engagement had been broken at his daughter's request. No intimation that such an abrupt ending to this latest international engagement had been entertained at and the news was received here with great surprise as yet as at the Detroit home of the Newberrys, where their wealth, business connections and social position made them among its most prominent residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Newberry dispensed a very pleasant hospitality during their official residence in this city, where, during the Roosevelt administration, Miss Newberry made her debut.

The announcement of her engagement to Harry Carr, Alleyné followed the departure of Mrs. and Miss Newberry from Bermuda last March. Capt. Alleyne, who is about thirty-two, was with his regiment in India nine years before going to Bermuda. He arrived here last Monday and went

DR. ELIOT'S MISSION IS PEACE

President Emeritus of Harvard to Be Here July 16. Is Concluding Notable World-Tour for the Carnegie Foundation

Preparations are well under way for the entertainment here of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who is on a globe-circling mission of peace. He will arrive on July 15, and all the Harvard men will unite in entertaining him. The distinguished scholar will be here for a week, and it is hoped that he will make several public addresses.

Dr. Eliot's mission is best told by himself. In an address delivered in Glasgow before the International Institute, he gave an excellent idea of what he is trying to do on this notable tour of the world. He said:

"I was employed on this voyage around the world by the trustees of the Carnegie endowment for the promotion of international peace. I am one of the trustees myself and I am on a voyage of inquiry, or discovery. I might almost say, on behalf of that very interesting organization.

"Mr. Carnegie has for many years taken an active interest in everything relating to the progress of the peace movement throughout the world. This endowment for international peace has an income of $200,000 a year—£100,000, that is—and the trustees who only came together a year and a half ago, are seeking the best mode of using that income anywhere in the world for the promotion of international peace.

Three Departments.

"It was on an inquiry of this sort that I was sent out. They have divided their work into three departments of international law. To the progress of international law, the institution looks for the best results, and perhaps the quickest results.

"The next conference to be held applies to the second department of work already laid out, namely, to the department of economics. The trustees purpose to study carefully the economic effects of war and of preparations for war throughout the world.

"Now, the third department of the active work that the trustees are proposing is the department of education and international intercourse—the making of the different nations of the earth acquainted with each other—acquainted with each other's industries, commerce, trade, hopes and prospects. The making of nations acquainted with each other in the proper sense of that term. This is the department of the work of the trustees which I am commissioned to study on my present journey. It is not the expectation of the trustees that war is going to cease in the world at once, or soon. It is not the expectation of the trustees that armaments can be abandoned or greatly diminished soon in the world.

"The trustees fully recognize the fact that every government that is stable must be founded at bottom on physical forces—must control a strong protective force which will enable the government to maintain itself against domestic disorder—against threats from without, which necessity China at this moment strikingly illustrates. The fundamental necessity of a stable government—a government that is to be stable—is for a strong protective force. This protective force makes it possible for a government to keep the order, to insure the continuity of its industries, to insure its own strength and power.

"The trustees of the Carnegie endowment will be very happy if they can learn how to contribute to a movement thus described by eminent Chinese scholars, merchants and officials."

Rev. Dr. Joseph Ford Sutton, author of several well known hymns, is dead at his home in New York in his 86th year.

The Young Men

Who wish to be well dressed are wearing pumps for evening.

We are showing them in Patent Colt and Gun Metal at

$5.00

Button Boots and Button Oxfords for street wear.

Tan Calf Patent Colt Gun Metal Calf $5.00

All on Crossett's newest last.

Manufacturers' Shoe Co., Ltd.,
1051 FORT

General Mario Monocal, a graduate of Cornell University, was nominated by the conservative party in Cuba for president.

The side-show freaks of Germany have formed a union to protect themselves against unscrupulous managers.

DR. ELIOT'S MISSION IS PEACE

President Emeritus of Harvard to Be Here July 16. Is Concluding Notable World-Tour for the Carnegie Foundation

Preparations are well under way for the entertainment here of Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, who is on a globe-circling mission of peace. He will arrive on July 15, and all the Harvard men will unite in entertaining him. The distinguished scholar will be here for a week, and it is hoped that he will make several public addresses.

Dr. Eliot's mission is best told by himself. In an address delivered in Glasgow before the International Institute, he gave an excellent idea of what he is trying to do on this notable tour of the world. He said:

"I was employed on this voyage around the world by the trustees of the Carnegie endowment for the promotion of international peace. I am one of the trustees myself and I am on a voyage of inquiry, or discovery. I might almost say, on behalf of that very interesting organization.

"Mr. Carnegie has for many years taken an active interest in everything relating to the progress of the peace movement throughout the world. This endowment for international peace has an income of $200,000 a year—£100,000, that is—and the trustees who only came together a year and a half ago, are seeking the best mode of using that income anywhere in the world for the promotion of international peace.

Three Departments.

"It was on an inquiry of this sort that I was sent out. They have divided their work into three departments of international law. To the progress of international law, the institution looks for the best results, and perhaps the quickest results.

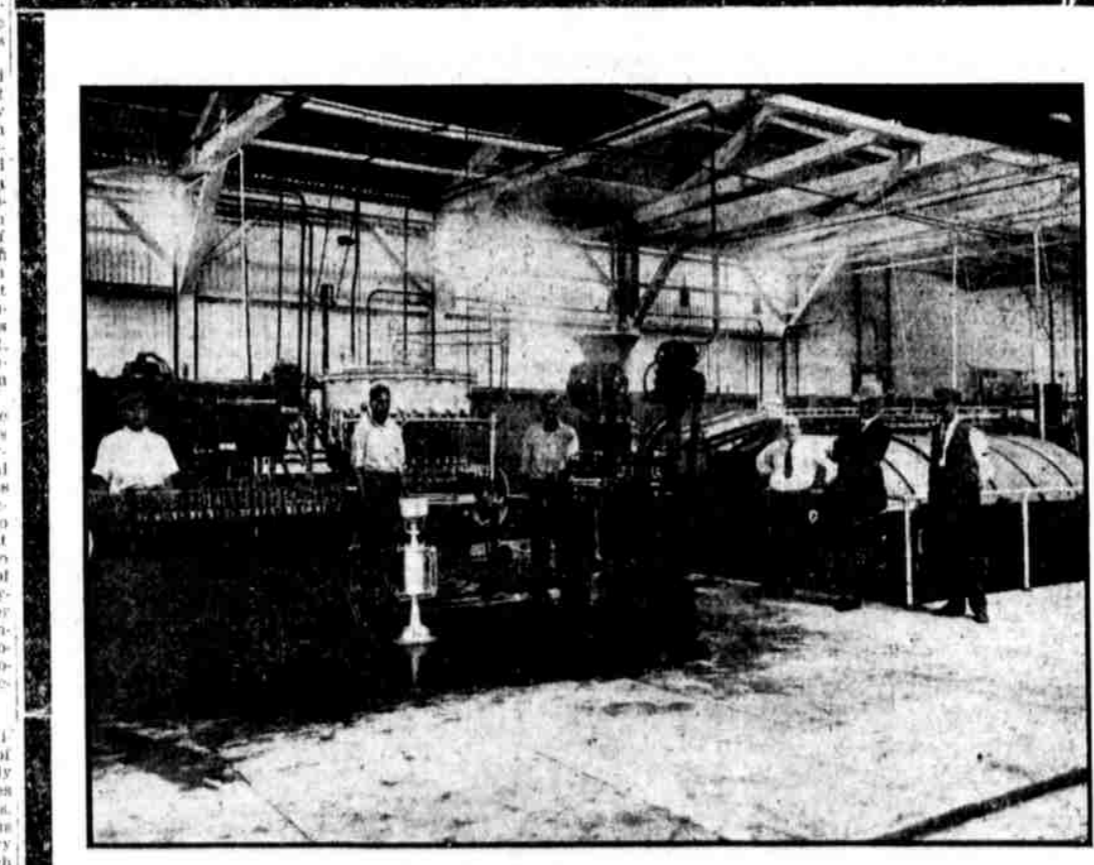

"The next conference to be held applies to the second department of work already laid out, namely, to the department of economics. The trustees purpose to study carefully the economic effects of war and of preparations for war throughout the world.

"Now, the third department of the active work that the trustees are proposing is the department of education and international intercourse—the making of the different nations of the earth acquainted with each other—acquainted with each other's industries, commerce, trade, hopes and prospects. The making of nations acquainted with each other in the proper sense of that term. This is the department of the work of the trustees which I am commissioned to study on my present journey. It is not the expectation of the trustees that war is going to cease in the world at once, or soon. It is not the expectation of the trustees that armaments can be abandoned or greatly diminished soon in the world.

"The trustees fully recognize the fact that every government that is stable must be founded at bottom on physical forces—must control a strong protective force which will enable the government to maintain itself against domestic disorder—against threats from without, which necessity China at this moment strikingly illustrates. The fundamental necessity of a stable government—a government that is to be stable—is for a strong protective force. This protective force makes it possible for a government to keep the order, to insure the continuity of its industries, to insure its own strength and power.

"The trustees of the Carnegie endowment will be very happy if they can learn how to contribute to a movement thus described by eminent Chinese scholars, merchants and officials."

Rev. Dr. Joseph Ford Sutton, author of several well known hymns, is dead at his home in New York in his 86th year.

Primo Pale, brewed by Hartwig Harders, a brewmaster and chemist, is a beer of exceptional purity and excellence, and from the vats to the consumer is protected from contamination by the most modern devices. Ask for Primo Pale was decided on.

The Filling and Crowning Machines and the loading end of the Pasteurizer shown in this illustration are good examples of the perfect sanitary machinery installed by the Honolulu Brewing & Malting Co. when the brewing of

PRIMO PALE

was decided on.

Primo Pale, brewed by Hartwig Harders, a brewmaster and chemist, is a beer of exceptional purity and excellence, and from the vats to the consumer is protected from contamination by the most modern devices. Ask for Primo Pale