

TWO CANDIDATES HOLD THE BOARDS

Governor Johnson and Joseph Crail Address Small Audience This Morning at Progressive Meeting.

LITTLE ENTHUSIASM

Governor Johnson Forceful Speaker and Held Attention but Crail Was Not Convincing Enough to Hearers.

Keokuk entertained two candidates today in the persons of Governor Hiram Johnson, of California, vice presidential candidate, and Joseph Crail, of Fairfield, congressional candidate from the first district of Iowa.

Governor Johnson's schedule called for a talk at Ft. Madison, a short speech at Donnellson and a talk here. According to members of the governor's party, they had not been apprised of those plans and consequently when members of the progressive club here arrived in Ft. Madison, where they were to meet the party and bring them to Keokuk in automobiles they found that the train bearing Governor Johnson's car had come on through to Keokuk.

The crowd that greeted Governor Johnson was not nearly so large as the one which listened to Colonel Roosevelt several days ago and very little enthusiasm was shown, most of the audience being there apparently more out of curiosity to see a vice presidential candidate than for the purpose of hearing him talk.

Governor Johnson's speech was merely a resume of the platform of the progressive party and a repetition of the speeches that he has made over the country during his tour. He is a forceful speaker and made a very good impression upon his audience, especially when he cited the case of ousting the Southern Pacific railroad from California politics. He cited the Burlington railroad as attempting to usurp the same privileges in Iowa politics and gave the progressive party as a means of preventing the consummation of their purpose.

Sam C. Westcott introduced Governor Johnson as the "next vice president of the United States." Governor Johnson did not waste any time in preliminary remarks but plunged directly into his speech.

Joseph Crail was introduced by Mr. Westcott after Governor Johnson finished, but was unable to hold the crowd, which dwindled away rapidly, while he was speaking, until, when he finished not more than fifty persons were in the audience. His address was principally for his own candidacy and what his intentions were, if he was returned a victor in the November election.

At noon the local progressives entertained Governor Johnson and his party at a luncheon at the Hotel Keokuk, where members of the local clubs were presented to the candidate.

Eighteen guests were at the luncheon, which turned into a love feast at which all the candidates of the progressive party were praised and the big feed prepared by Mine Host Bate-man devoured by the hungry party.

Governor Johnson and his party left for Quincy at 1:20 o'clock this afternoon, where he will make an address this evening. He was accompanied to the Illinois city by Sam C. Westcott, who will introduce him to the party leaders there.

gunner's mate, and experienced seaman, U. S. N. A board of inquest was ordered today by Commandant Fullam, of the training station and testimony of each survivor of the twenty-four men who were in the sailing launch was taken. An order was asked by the commandant for a court inquiry to be appointed by the secretary of the navy. Commandant Fullam today said that he had learned that Negus had been asked by some of the boys to take them for a sail. The gunner's mate did not ask permission of the officer of the day, he said, but manned the big launch and started out in a heavy sea.

When the boat foundered and capsized, Negus rescued two boys who could not swim. He went back for a third and that was the last seen of him until his body was found today.

Of the three missing lads Commandant Fullam said there was little hope of finding them alive. It is possible, he said, that they managed to reach the shore and are being cared for in some house along the lake front. Their names will not be learned until the entire force at the station is mustered and the roll called.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Rube" Marquard. The famous pitcher at the Grand tonight. The best baseball picture ever taken will be presented at the Grand tonight. "Rube Marquard Wins," a two reel Kalem feature, in which the real "Rube" Marquard of the New York Giants shows how he pitches his famous curves. The camera is set to the best advantage and shows every feature of the great American game better than witnessing the real game at the Polo grounds. You can't afford to miss it. A Vitagraph feature is also included in tonight's program, "The Higher Mercy," portraying an incident of Lincoln's presidency. The program tonight is an unusually good one.

At the Orpheum. There is no doubt but that the great picture bill to be presented tonight at the Orpheum will be the best ever shown in Keokuk. "The Four Dare Devils," a thrilling picture play in three reels showing the great leap to death act of two lovers from a high wire. This is a phenomenal feat displaying love vs. hatred. You must see this big bill to appreciate it. The Orpheum is the favorite picture show house in Keokuk and are showing nothing but the highest class attractions. Be at the Orpheum tonight with the crowd.

LOTS OF BUILDING GOING ON HERE

Many Big Buildings Are Almost Completed and More are to be Erected Before the End of the Year.

If there is anyone in the city who does not believe that the town is going ahead, let him look over the following: At Fourth and Main streets, work is beginning upon the erection of a $300,000 hotel, at Ninth and Pleasant, the new substitution is practically completed and will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks; at Fifth and Cedar a dozen teams are at work leveling for the new Standard Oil warehouse; the ground has been leveled at Fifth and Exchange streets for the new C. B. & Q. freight depot; the Pond apartments are almost ready for the tenants at Fourth and Franklin streets, and all over the city new residences are being erected. It has been estimated that, within the year of 1912, about $750,000 worth of buildings will have been erected.

Street Walker's Curfew. [United Press Leased Wire Service.] OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 16.—Nine o'clock is curfew hour for the professional female street walker—elder sister to the masquer—according to Henry W. Dunn, Omaha police chief. Dunn today ordered patrolmen and city detectives to question every unescorted girl found on the streets after 9 p. m., and demand an explanation. Unless girls so apprehended can prove the innocence of their business abroad by producing some good excuse and verifying it by word over the telephone from their parents or husbands, they will be held at police headquarters.

DREAD OF AN OPERATION

N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva B. shore, of this place, says, "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I weighed only ninety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and instead, began to take Cardui. In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition. It is a woman's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardui.

They were amazingly polite, and they all carried an enormous amount of baggage, most of it of cumbersome foreign appearance, splattered with labels. A small Japanese, surrounded by two valets, two American suit cases and one hat box, who was evidently a man of no little importance, essayed to bow to a red faced man with four canes and an umbrella pressed to his bosom. The Japanese raised his hat, tipped one leg forward and then fell bodily over his collection of baggage. Two horrified Japanese servitors rushed to his assistance, and with handkerchiefs solicitously swathed his ruffled garments. The red faced scientist was so deeply grieved that in his haste to reach his embarrassed colleague he dropped his umbrella and broke the handle. A weary depot guard, finally arightened them both.

The depot excited their greatest admiration, and they discussed it in the languages of Babel, meantime calling into consultation all the guards they could lay hands on. The guards, laden with baggage and hat boxes of which the scientists seemed unusually well supplied, tried vainly to adapt a Manhattan lilt and dialect to school room French and scientific Russian.

The wives and daughters of the scientists, foregathered and persisted in attempting to translate each other's expressions just as the train was about to start. Frightened husbands and fathers rescued them before they were left behind. In the train shed the scientists nearly created a riot among the attendants by demanding what the "reserved" seats on the Pullman meant, and whether they could take either of the trains.

A Lesson From Our Ancestors.

In the good old fashioned days of our grandmothers they depended upon the roots and herbs of this field to relieve disease. Years have passed by, but science has never been able to improve upon the medicinal effects of these same roots and herbs which are Nature's cure for disease. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that successful remedy for female ills, had its origin in this way and today tons of roots and herbs are consumed annually in making it.

SCARLET WOMAN'S CASE IS HOPELESS

Minister Says She Can Never be Redeemed and Social Evil Must Remain.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] DENVER, Colo., Sept. 16.—The scarlet woman can never be redeemed and the problem of the social evil can never be solved by the enforcement of law. This statement by Rev. Robert F. Coyle, the famous Presbyterian pastor, has created considerable discussion here today. Some of the other things the minister said follow: "But if force is no remedy; if it can neither restore the scarlet woman to society nor remove the social evil, segregation cannot do so. This latter is not only repugnant to the moral sense of right thinking people, but at best is nothing more than a poor palliative. "Impatient reformers must not imagine that an evil world old can be removed in a day. "The state makes it a misdemeanor to breed diseased horses and cattle and hogs, and why should it not prevent the mating of men and women who can only give society infected children? "The laws of heredity cannot be ignored with impunity."

WALSH INTERESTS IN FORT MADISON

Many Rumors Are Afloat Concerning New Ownership of Street Railway Company.

FORT MADISON, Iowa, Sept. 16.—The Fort Madison Utilities Co., articles of incorporation of which were filed with the county recorder Friday afternoon, the directors and officers of which are Messrs. Samuel Atlee of Fort Madison and E. C. Walsh and C. H. Walsh of Burlington, has already control of the Fort Madison Electric Light and Power Co., taken over from Mr. Atlee, and today expects to take over the Fort Madison Gas Light Co., negotiations being practically completed for so doing. A few months ago the Messrs. Walsh obtained an option on the Fort Madison railway company's plant, the option running for sixty days. This option expired a few weeks ago. Since then no overtures have been made by them to the company. Rumor has it that the possession of this plant is Aviator and His Wife Kiss and Make up While Flying Through Air.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—The "air current" administered in an aeroplane is the new method of treating troubles according to Mrs. George W. Beatty, wife of the aviator.

She laughingly admitted today that after a domestic spat resulting in Aviator Beatty being haled before Magistrate Buhler, at Mineola, L. I., on an assault charge, she and her husband kissed and made up in mid-air.

Magistrate Buhler had advised the dissenting couple to live apart for a month. After ten days of separation, they hesitatingly essayed a voyage in the air together. An aerial hug, an ethereal kiss, a swift plane down and Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, birdman and birdlady, were reconciled.

SPIRIT OF BUSHIDO IS RATHER RECENT

Japanese Custom Said to be Centuries Old, is Declared all Bosh.

[United Press Leased Wire Service.] TOKIO, Sept. 16.—"These expressions by Japanese statesmen of admiration for the spirit which prompted General Nogai's suicide are all bosh," was the comment today by an American, long a resident in Japan and a deep student of the Japanese character.

"The Japanese governing class appreciates the general's suicide. It could not have been more useful to the new mikado if he had made it to order. But educated Japanese regard the old soldier as just what he was—the victim of a superstition which the government has been instilling into the people for about a generation.

"The 'spirit of Bushido,' advertised as centuries old, really never was heard of until forty or fifty years ago. Neither was the blind patriotism of the Japanese. They were as patriotic as any one else and not more so. Because it was thought it would be a government asset the cultivation of the present day sentiment of exaggerated devotion to the ruler began comparatively recently. General Nogai's suicide shows how well, at least in many cases, the work was done."

The train was a double header and the first engine refused to take a switch and left the rails. The train was running slowly which probably prevented a serious accident.
