Buhl Couple Married in Jerome

On last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Summers, a very happy event took place in the marriage of Mrs. Stella Eveleth, a niece of Mrs. Summers, and Mr. R. Brown, of Buhl, Idaho. Mr. Brown is a merchant of that place, being engaged in the drug business. This happy event was to have taken place in the month, but as the bride was taken ill with the "flu" it was postponed. On last Thursday a visit was made to Mrs. Summers, when the thought came that the place would be the place for the marriage. After securing their license at Twin Falls they arrived in Jerome, where they were met by Mr. Brown, and with their presence a minister was procured, a happy wedding dinner prepared and the happy couple united in marriage by a few close friends and relatives. After a short visit here the bride and groom returned to their home at Buhl.

IDAHO DECLARES WAR ON RODENTS

The farm bureaus of 15 counties in Idaho, in co-operation with the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, this year treated 266,068 acres of land with poisoned bait to kill ground squirrels. According to the estimates of the farmers benefited, $1,168,974 worth of crops were saved, at a cost of $30,920. In Bear Lake County, following the squirrel-eradication campaign, the local bounty office recorded the receipt of 136,500 squirrel tails. In Bingham county one member of the farm bureau reported he had received $49.74 bounty on the presentation of 2,487 squirrel tails. These were killed by the use of only $1.70 worth of strychnine and sugar. He saved his crops besides. In Blaine county the farmers report a saving of $20 for every dollar expended, and the county commissioners have increased their appropriation for this work of poisoning squirrels from $300 for 1918 to $3,500 for 1919.

NORTH SIDE CANAL COMPANY, LIMITED.

R. E. Shepherd, President.

The education of men, like that of dogs, is a slow and painstaking process. No one college president in a short lifetime ever filled a whole state with scholarly men. No one missionary ever changed a heathen province into a model Christian commonwealth, says Minneapolis Journal. Dreams of China or of Russia becoming as fine a republic as America overnight are filmy foolishness. And even if these swift and extensive metamorphoses could be brought about, they could not be sustained. This war will hammer a few rough world truths into the thick skulls of dense mortals; but it will not make peasants in our generation into enlightened, self-governing citizens, nor keep them thus.

Hunger stories coming out of Austria make it seem possible that the day will arrive soon when Uncle Sam can bribe Austria to leave the central powers by presenting her a barrel of flour, a side of bacon and a ham or two.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE POPPIES.

"Guess what word the flower poppy came from?" asked Daddy.
"I've no idea," said Nick. "And I don't believe I'd have an idea if I stopped to think about it!"
"You guess, Nancy," said Daddy. "I don't believe I could," she answered.

"Oh, try," said Daddy. "Gracious! Put on your thinking cap! Just because the weather is growing so warm, we mustn't be lazy!"

"Well," said Nancy, "after thinking for a moment, 'It might come from—' 'It might come from—' commenced Nick.

And then both children shouted at the very same time, for both had put on their thinking caps—
"Papa."

"Right!" said Daddy. "It sounded so much like poppy that it made me think of it—for I knew by your manner, Daddy, it was something strange," said Nancy.

"That's what made me guess that," said Nick. "It wasn't because I saw much reason for guessing that name."

"Well, you're both very honest," said Daddy. "not to pretend to be great and wise. Besides there is really no reason at all for the flowers to have such a name. That is, there is no special meaning to the word Papa as it is used for them.

"In olden days the word papa meant a goodie. This was a word used by some people known as the Celts. They used to feed their children all sorts of soft delicacies which they called goodies and as the seeds of poppies were sometimes boiled (not for the children but for people far away) and made very soft, they were called goodies, too. Then as Papa meant a Goodie, they became known by that name—and of course later on were called poppies. Some poppies were talking together in a garden once and they were telling the little poppies the history of their name. Soon they began talking about their gorgeous colorings.

"It's so nice to be red," said one beautiful poppy.

"One would think you imagined yourself to be a book," said Mr. Yellow Poppy.

"Whatever do you mean?" asked the red poppy.

"Books are read, aren't they?" asked the yellow poppy.

"Oh, dear me, how very, very bright," said Mr. Red Poppy. "Of course I meant my color was red. I should have been more careful how I spoke."

"I'm glad you weren't," said Mr. Yellow Poppy. "for it gave me a chance to crack a joke."

"And all the poppies around laughed so hard that they dropped some seeds from the small holes on the under side of their pods.

"I always drop seeds when there is a good joke," said Mr. Crimson Poppy.

"So do I," said Mr. Purple Poppy. "We drop them too when the wind blows," said Mr. Pink Poppy.

"Ah, because he's such a funny old wind," said Mr. Yellow Poppy.

"No wonder," said the wind as he began to blow. "that I don't let the poppies last as long as the other flowers. It's because they call me a funny old wind."

"Is that the reason the poppies don't last longer?" asked Mr. Sun. He had seen the poppies and loved their gay, bright colors and many a time he had wondered why they lasted such a very short time.

"That's the reason," said Mr. Wind.

"No matter," said Mr. Yellow Poppy. "we're glorious while we last. We would rather be gay, bright, beautiful poppies any day than those everlasting flowers which haven't any of our color and dash."

"Think pretty well of yourselves, eh?" asked the sun.

"We do," said Mr. Red Poppy, as one of his petals was blown off by the wind.

"Well, Daddy," said Nancy. "I think there is more meaning to the name papa and its relation to the word goodie than you say there is, for certainly a Papa or a Daddy is a very, very big goodie!" And as Nick heartily agreed Daddy smiled a great, happy smile!

A REVIVAL.

That grace which makes virtues of necessities again comes into play in America's corn bread revival. Increasing volumes of wheat are needed in Europe. Increasing quantities of corn ought to be consumed in the United States in order to conserve the more popular grain. Corn is one of the most thoroughly American food products, which the South appreciates far better than the North. As the Houston Post remarks, "even before cooking stoves and ranges had been introduced there were black 'mammies' who could, with the big fireplace, pothooks, skillet, pan, 'spider' and pots produce a feast such as the most gifted chef of this time would be proud to be able to duplicate." And practically all, as the Atlanta Constitution adds, from corn. Many naive suggestions in the direction of utilizing as a war-time measure foods heretofore generally ignored have been made. But here is a revival, rather than a new proposal. American households are asked to return to one of the favorite foods of the fathers. One of the cornerstones of frontier life was corn bread. Few will find any element of self-denial in returning to corn, says Cleveland Plain Dealer. Here is where patriotism and pleasure coincide.
