THE "DUDE."

A New Name for a Type Common in the World.

Brooklyn Eagle.

A new word has been coined. It is d-u-d-e or d-o-o-d. The spelling does not seem to be distinctly settled yet, but custom will soon regulate it. Just where the word came from nobody knows, but it has sprung into popularity within the last two weeks, so that now everybody is using it. It means a masher, and yet it means something more than a masher. For instance, a masher may be young or old, he may mash by virtue of his politeness, of his accomplishments, of his wealth, beauty, eyes, nose or fame; he may be a man or mature years, an old man, a young man, or a boy. In speaking of mashers one is never sure exactly what sort of a man is meant. There is a class of mashers in New York who will now have a definite place in the language of the town as dudes. A dude cannot be old; he must be young, and to be properly termed a dude he should be one of a certain class who affect the metropolitan theaters. The dude is from 19 to 28 years of age, wears trousers of extreme tightness, is hollow-chested, effeminate in his ways, apes the English, and distinguishes himself among his fellow-men as a lover of actresses. The badge of his office is the paper cigarette, and his bell-crown English opera hat is his chiefest joy. They are seen in large numbers at the theaters, where they form one of the most interesting features of the evening entertainments. They are offensive because they blow cigarette-smoke in ladies' faces, and monopolize the bar between the acts. As a rule they are rich men's sons, and very proud of the unlimited cash at their command. They call all actresses by their first names, and affect extreme familiarity with all things pertaining to the stage; but in reality they know very little personally of the men and women of the dramatic profession. Still the dude always poses as a particular favorite of the reigning theatrical celebrity. They are a harmless lot of men in one way, for they are too shallow pated and weak to accomplish any harm, but they are sometimes offensive. No dude is a real dude who does not talk to a fellow dude in a loud voice during the play; also, no dude who respects himself ever takes a lady to the theater. They run in pairs and compare notes between the acts. The most eminent dude in New York is the son of a Wall street broker of considerable wealth. This dude is the pet apostle of the order. He has been in more scrapes with actresses than any other man in town, and his name has been muddled up with half a dozen dirty scandals. Recently he married a girl who was singing here in an English opera troupe while his intellect was somewhat muddled through cigarette smoke or something of that sort, and her father had to pay her some thousands of dollars to get her to agree to a separation from the prospective young millionaire. It was accomplished after some difficulty, and she left the English opera troupe, went to England, and the last time I heard of her she had married a wealthy barrister in Manchester. The steamer had scarcely left the dock when the dude became involved in another row, which resulted in his father sending him off to California under the care of a friendly lawyer for a six weeks' trip. The old man would give anything to have his son show a little more discretion in the matter of public scandal, but he cannot give him advice with much grace, because the father himself was in his younger days, a wonder of the most malignant type. So, whenever he charges his son, the son looks at him and smiles softly and asks him about the days of yore. The word dude is a valuable addition to the slang of the day.

A correspondent of a Portland newspaper visited a large jam producing factory, in which he found the work going bravely on, without the aid of fruit at all. Jams of currant, plum, apricot, strawberry, raspberry and gooseberry were produced before his eyes, yet neither fruit was in the building. Turnips alone were used. The flavoring matter was extracted from coal tar, and the resemblance to raspberry and strawberry was perfected by mixing the compound with small seeds of some cheap, innocuous herb. A common form of sugar is used, and this is the only honest ingredient of the mess. The preserves are offered as made from this season's fruit.—Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle.

It is no longer proper in Boston to say "those who dance must pay the piper." The Post heard a sweet girl say: "Those who indulge in terpsichorean recreation are under obligations to remunerate the violinist."

A heavy land-slide occurred last night on the hills across the river. It is a pity a slide of some kind could not occur on Main street, Bullion, and carry off a few hundred tons of garbage, ice and tin cans which almost block the street.

AS AN ADVERTISING MEDIUM

The Wood River Times,

(DAILY AND WEEKLY)

Makes no claim whatever, and leaves that subterfuge to less appreciated publications. But, in substantiation of its claim to be the representative paper of this region, it can point proudly to its record. Founded on the 15th of June, 1881, as a weekly, in LESS THAN ELEVEN MONTHS it had grown into a DAILY and WEEKLY, with telegraphic dispatches brought in over 100 miles by stage, and published daily at a monthly cost of over $500!

The WOOD RIVER TIMES is published at HAILEY, the seat of the vast and rich Alturas county, the chosen terminus of the Wood River Branch of the Oregon Short Line Railway and the Commercial, Political and Social Metropolis of the Wood River and Sawtooth Region.

ALL ADVERTISEMENTS are published in both the DAILY and WEEKLY TIMES, unless otherwise ordered.
