Diplomacy, Backed by War, Changes Attitude of "Sick Man."

Turke goes to Entente Powers and Other Eastern Territory Which It Judges Must Be Liberated by the Entente Powers.

The situation in Turkey.

The Turkish government has announced the demand for the liberation of the Entente Powers' territory. This demand has been made in a note to the Entente Powers, and is based on the fact that the Turkish government has been unable to make any progress in its negotiations with the Entente Powers. The Turkish government has announced that it will not make any further efforts to negotiate with the Entente Powers, and will therefore take steps to liberate the territory it judges must be Liberated by the Entente Powers.

The Entente Powers have responded to the Turkish government's demand by expressing their determination to support the Turkish government in its efforts to liberate the territory it judges must be Liberated by the Entente Powers. The Entente Powers have also expressed their readiness to consider any proposals made by the Turkish government in connection with the liberation of the territory.

The situation in the Middle East.

The situation in the Middle East has been characterized by a series of diplomatic incidents and military actions. The Entente Powers have been involved in a series of military actions in the region, and have been supported by a number of European countries. The Turkish government has been involved in a series of diplomatic incidents with the Entente Powers, and has been supported by a number of countries in the region.

The situation in the Balkans.

The situation in the Balkans has been characterized by a series of diplomatic incidents and military actions. The Entente Powers have been involved in a series of military actions in the region, and have been supported by a number of European countries. The Turkish government has been involved in a series of diplomatic incidents with the Entente Powers, and has been supported by a number of countries in the region.