Vice President Stevenson will deliver the commencement address at the University of Alabama.

Gov. Oates refused to allow the Alabama populists to hold their convention in the state capitol.

It is stated that 1,352 trains arrive and leave Chicago daily, about one fourth being freight trains.

Philadelphia's city hall cost $16,000,000 and stands second in expensiveness to the capitol at Albany.

A recent consignment of frozen salmon from Vancouver sold in London, weighed 140 tons.

Commissioner Higgins, of the salvation army, is trying to establish stations in Argentine Republic.

The police census of Baltimore indicates a population of 625,240 persons, of whom 125,048 are voters.

Evangelist Moody is working the western part of Massachusetts for funds to furnish good literature for jails.

Charleston, S. C., has voted unanimously to exempt from taxation for five years, any factories established there.

Paderewski never signs an agreement, and he has never failed to keep an engagement except through serious illness.

Five hundred bushels of potatoes were sold at sheriff's sale in Kent county, Mich., recently for one cent a bushel.

Napoleon III once said to Octave Feuillet: "To one returned from America, everybody in Europe seems to be asleep."

The reorganization committee of the Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern railroad, were in Shoshone Wednesday last. In the party was Samuel Carr, chairman of the reorganization committee of the Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern, and S. H. H. Clark, Oliver Ames, Henry G. Nickols and T. Jefferson Coolidge, of the Union Pacific. It is also stated that General Manager Ed. Dickinson and other officials of the operating department are with the party. The trip includes Salt Lake, Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, and return via Ogden, the whole trip consuming about three weeks. While in Omaha, Ames was quoted in the World Herald in the following important words of deep local interest: We are on a general tour of inspection of the Union Pacific, said Mr. Ames.

'We will go to Salt Lake, Portland and other western cities, and also down to San Francisco. There is virtually no change in Union Pacific affairs. We are waiting for congress. It is true that the reorganization committee has objected to the Hepburn amendment to the bill in congress which call for the opening of the various gateways of the Union Pacific. Such action will place us in an unjust position, for while we would have to divide our business and turn over part of it to the connecting roads these same roads would turn over none to us. There is no question about the Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern becoming a separate system, but it will make but little change, I hope. I believe that the Union Pacific will virtually control the road. I think that the general manager will be Mr. Bancroft, at present general superintendent of the Mountain division of the Union Pacific. He is the most desirable man I believe to all parties. Mr. Coolidge in reply to a question as to the changes for the separation of the Oregon Short Line from the Union Pacific, said that such a move would undoubtedly be made, but he was unprepared to say whether or not matters were in readiness for it yet awhile. It was his opinion that the management of the Short Line after the segregation had been effected, certainly would wish to work harmoniously with the Union Pacific interests, and as far as the operation of the road was concerned it would be practically as though it was a member of the old Union Pacific system.

The Prodigal Son.

And it came to pass, in the days of Patsy Boliver, the scribe, that a certain farmer had a son; that worketh not much, but sitteth in the shade with the hired girl.

And it so happened that the sire waxed wroth, and he gathered unto himself a bed slat and belabored his son much, who after the chastizement, rose up and demanded of his father, the two bits he had promised him if he would eat less and do more work.

And he went himself away into a far land, and squandered the shekles which his father had given unto him, buying tangle foot for the boys.

And when he found that he was broke, he said, I will arise and go unto my father.

And when he saw his father afar off; cried unto him, father me let return to the bosom of thy family, that I may live on cold Johnny cake that repositeth within thy swill tub.

And it came to pass that he married the hired girl, had thirteen children, and they lived with the old man to the end of his days.

And his last days were worse than the first.

The idea is growing that experience in politics can't win against an unlimited bank account under liberal business management, which is next door to saying that many delegates have their price.
