BLACKFOOT, IDAHO, JULY 1, 1893.

GENERAL ALGER endorses the Democratic administration on the pension question. He believes that when men are given pensions on loss of hair, as is shown by the records, it is time to revise the rolls and erase the names of the frauds.

LIZZIE BORDEN was acquitted by a jury at least five days behind the reading people of the country. But then one thing was settled by the trial and that was the folly of a prosecution trying to convict without testimony.

KANSAS will have a most interesting election in the fall. Judges will be elected in 14 judicial districts, and the new party will make a most determined effort to arrest the judiciary from the hand of the Republican party.

WHEN a great government like the United States pays out approximately $150,000,000 annually in freight to foreign vessels for ocean shipments, it is time for it to look after its own ship building and merchant marine. This is another way of accounting for the drain in gold.

The shipments of gold to Europe are small in comparison with the freights paid to foreign ocean vessels combined with remittances made by foreigners in this country to their families in other countries and the amounts taken out by American tourists going abroad and foreigners returning to their old homes. These are the drains that sap the country.

The shrill cry of "hard times" has no more terrors for the man who is free from debt than the shrill whistle of winter's wind for him who is seated in his warm home and knows that his stock are comfortably sheltered. He spends no sleepless nights over storms in Wall street and bank failures. His sympathy may run out to his fingers' ends for his mortgaged neighbors, but for himself he feels safely anchored in the harbor from all the beating storms. Happy thoughts, happy feelings.

It is understood that State Senator Underwood is a candidate for superintendent of the soldiers' home. The Senator should remember that very grave charges were preferred against him in his own district. It is hoped that for the honor of the state, and the reputation of the G. A. R. his application will not be seriously considered until the charges are cleared up. —Boise Sentinel.

Or until he carries out his "great mind" and sues the Idaho Falls Times for its charges against him.

The crisis through which we are now passing, much as it is to be deplored for the suffering it inflicts on a few individuals, is a legitimate result of the abuse of credit, and as I began by saying, is a severe but wholesome process of re-establishing a healthy state of affairs. If, in the course of it, inflated values are reduced; if chimerical enterprises have to be abandoned; if firms whose liabilities exceed their assets, and whose partners have been for years living upon the property of their creditors, are compelled to acknowledge themselves insolvent; if so-called banks, which have proved to be mere devices for locking up the money of their depositors in unavailable assets, are forced out of business, and if gigantic corporations, the resources of which have been used by unprincipled schemers for their own benefit are brought back to their legitimate fields of operation, surely the public at large has no reason for lamentation. A good work has been begun and must be completed, no matter what efforts may be made to stay its course.—New York Sun.

RACE FOR MARSHAL

It Grows More Interesting--True Withdraws and Supports Condon.

[Special to THE STATESMAN.]

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The race for United States marshal for Idaho is getting interesting. E. B. True is now out of it. The following have filed applications: F. W. Beane, Blackfoot; S. Donnelly, Wallace; J. J. Crutcher, Silver City; Joe Jones, Montpelier; John Condon, Hailey.

Governor Stevenson and his Boise friends are backing Crutcher. The mining interests of the Coeur d'Alenes are for Doanely. True and the Wood river country people are for Condon. The Mormon contingent of the Democratic party support Joe Jones.

Tillinghast and the Democratic organizations of the state generally are backing Beane. The latter seems still to have the call on the place.

World's Fair Correspondence.

TO BLACKFOOT NEWS:

"Much adverse criticism has been lavished upon the display of fruit made by the state of Washington, and in some respects it may be deserved. On the whole, however, it is too early in the season to prophesy. Much of the criticism is the result of a feeling that Idaho is ahead in the competition for prizes, and that Washington is somehow in the rear of the procession. At the present writing there is absolutely no ground for such a fear. Idaho has truly made a magnificent exhibition. She has, in fact, surprised everyone, not less from the character as the variety of her fruits. It has been well chosen, well packed, and the jars are conspicuous for their handsome appearance. The Washington section adjoins that of Idaho. It is larger than Idaho's, and more fruit has been placed on exhibition than either Oregon or Idaho. Counting out California with its oranges and lemons, interest seems to be centered around the three states mentioned, Idaho people are loudly boasting that they are in the lead in every line, and Colonel Babcock, of Arkansas, who judged the fruit ten days after it was on the tables, is considerably chagrined over the inference that he has been talking too freely. As a matter of fact opinion seems to be divided as to which of the three states has the best exhibit. In pears the "Idaho pear" is a variety which we have not, but in Bartlett's Washington seems to be ahead in regard to size and flavor. In apples the Idaho folks are making great boasts of Blue Pearmain, but for variety and sweetness Washington and Oregon seem to be both ahead of Idaho. Washington strawberries are just now the marvel of everybody, not more for their remarkable size as for their flavor. Oregon comes close in this respect, and Idaho, while it has a good exhibit, is not in anyway up to either. Peaches and watermelons are claimed by the Idaho people, but the Washington and Oregon officials are quite confident of the success of their respective exhibits. In grapes also Washington is ahead of Idaho, while her prunes are certainly equal to, if not superior. Idaho has twenty-two different varieties of apples, and Washington something like thirty. In dried fruits if Idaho goes ahead of Washington at all it will be on account of the higher altitude at which the fruits are grown. It is not at all likely, however, that Idaho will be first in the aggregate, and as for Oregon, she will have a great deal to do to beat the Washington exhibit. One reason for Oregon's good exhibit is the fact that the display is the result of numerous county and state affairs. Idaho seems to have her whole fruit crop at the Fair. If any fault can be found with the Washington fruit exhibit, it must be on account of the greater neatness displayed by the other states, and the greater care with which the fruits have been selected. This, however, is the fault of the commissioners. It is the fault of the growers. A great competition will take place when the spring fruits come in. A word in time will be of value to Washington fruit growers. The World's Fair is something more than a county or state fair. States are in competition here, not counties. Only the very best should be selected, and the greatest care should be exercised in regard to getting it to the fair in good condition. One thing that is noticeable in the Washington exhibit is the fact that the jars have not in many cases been properly labeled, everything has fruit labels, whether it be peaches, potatoes, or peas.

M. Hammerly, a well-known business man of Hillsboro, Va., sends this testimony to the merits of Ayer's Sarsaparilla: "Several years ago, I hurt my leg, the injury leaving a sore which led to erysipelas. My sufferings were extreme, my leg, from the knee to the ankle, being a solid sore, which began to extend to other parts of the body. After trying various remedies, I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished the first bottle, I experienced great relief; the second bottle effected a complete cure."
