Bound, Gagged and Robbed.

W. E. Markell, bookkeeper for J. Kasper, proprietor of the Chicago Dry Goods Store situated on East Main street, had an exciting tussle with two robbers in the store this morning about 12:30. The story is best told in Mr. Markell's own words:

"After the store closed for the evening, about 9:30, Mr. Kasper and myself made up the cash and I went down town, as I do not retire very early during the warm weather. I did not return to the store, where I sleep, until about midnight. I sat down at the desk to do some correspondence, and a rap came to the front door of the store. Thinking that it was probably a friend of mine, Ray, who is employed at the Bee Hive, I went forward and found two men, both well dressed, standing at the entrance. The larger of the two spoke up and said, 'We have made the rounds of all the stores trying to get a pair of shoes,' whereupon I said, 'Cannot you wait until morning?' He replied that they were going out to Grangeville before any of the stores would be open, and it would be quite an accommodation if I would make them the sale. I admitted the men, and the smaller man of the two started to try on a shoe, when his confederate asked if I did not have something in heavier stock. I turned to get the kind desired, when the larger man of the pair pounced upon me from behind and the other one proceeded to the front of the store—whether it was to watch the door, or possibly there might have been a confederate outside whom he wished to signal, I don't know. At any rate I was getting the best of my man in the tussle, notwithstanding he had hit me a stunning blow on the cheek and was endeavoring to tie me with tarred rope. He was not able to accomplish this, so called for his pal, and of course I was overpowered, my hands tied behind me, and my feet and legs tightly bound.

"The larger one of the bandits then demanded the money sack, at the time producing a revolver. I replied, 'We have no sack,' when he said 'You are a G—d— liar, and if you do not produce it forthwith you will be murdered, as we saw two of you making up the cash and take the sack to the back part of the store.'

"I saw it was useless to further demur, so gave the sack, which contained about $300 in gold, silver and currency.

"They took a bath towel from the counter, twisted the same, put it across my mouth, securely fastened it, and began to pilfer me for my jewelry. They first took my watch, unsnapping it from the chain and throwing the chain on the floor on account, I suppose, of its being worth little or nothing, being a cheap affair. I had two diamond rings and an opal, on my fingers, and they fitted rather snugly, and the robbers experienced some trouble in removing them. However, they slipped a knife between the finger and rings, and extricated them, cutting the finger some.

"The jewelry I lost is worth over $200 and after they secured it, they made their exit without molesting any of the goods. I was in a peculiar position, on my bended knees, bound hand and foot, besides being gagged, but by superhuman efforts I crawled to the front door, and about 3 o'clock a passerby, a Mr. Alexander, after several minutes released me."

Mr. Markell, after giving the robbers the money, stated to them that if he had had a weapon he would not have given up so easily, when the larger would-be murderer of the two said, "I have a notion to plug you one anyway." Mr. Markell, being very angry, replied, "Plug away, you dirty coward."

Neither one of the robbers was masked, both were well dressed, and are described by Markell as follows: The larger one is aged about 40, weight about 200 pounds, light mustache, about a two-weeks crop of beard, and wore a mixed gray suit. The smaller one is between the age of 30 and 40, weight about 150 or 160, dark mustache, and wore a checkered gray suit.

In commenting upon the tussle Mr. Markell stated that he always carried a revolver in his waistband, but it was in the way while writing at the desk and he had just placed it upon a shelf, and had been in its usual place he could have pumped the larger robber full of holes and would have never stopped until he emptied its contents. The reporter suggested that in that case the confederate might have retaliated by murdering him, to which Markell quickly replied, "Well, you would know who one of the robbers was, at any rate."

He continued the interview by saying "I don't care for my own loss, but it is the cash my employer loses that worries me. I can easily know either one of the robbers, and if I can get a glimpse of either of them his life will not be worth much to him."

At the time of going to press the robbers have not been apprehended.

Fred H. Wood, a mining engineer, of Cleveland, Ohio, representing Ohio capitalists, was in the city for a few days, perfecting plans for the organization of the French Creek Mining and Improvement company, with a capital stock of $2,500,000 shares at the par value of $100 per share, incorporation takes in a group of 26 claims, and work will be pushed vigorously.

Hunting Copper Properties.

Lucian Eaves, consulting and examining engineer, for The Idaho Exploration and Copper Co., recently organized with a capital of $5,000,000, is composed of some of the greatest financiers of Wall Street, and is backed by the most powerful syndicate of copper refiners in the world.

The corporation was organized primarily for the purpose of completing the work already begun, in building a plant for mining and smelting the copper ores of the great Seven Devils group. They are open however for propositions to buy any great copper properties to be found in Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Montana or British Columbia. This is the company which is now building the Northwest Railway from Huntington to the Seven Devils, to have the ores from the smelter already located there.

Land Office Notes.

E. W. Blake vs Frank Bruna is the title of a contest involving 160 acres of land near Oro Fino. The contestant alleges abandonment, and the cause is set for the taking of testimony September 2d before U. S. Commissioner Wm. M. Chandler at Oro Fino. This will be, by the way, Mr. Chandler's initial case.

Joseph M. Wolbert vs Perfeto Nunez is another contest over a valuable quarter section of land near Moscow. September 2d this cause will be tried before the Register. The three foregoing contests were all filed Thursday and yesterday.

Marvin M. Jones made a commutation proof yesterday upon 160 acres of valuable land near Fletcher. This is situated on the reservation, and therefore cost the claimant $600 to make proof.

Receiver Garby furnished us with the following statement of receipts for the quarter ending June 30th:

Land sold.....	$5,609.02
Fees and commissions.....	4,125.88
Total	$9,734.90

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, the following were the receipts:

In the matter of the estate of W. T. Cox, a return sale of real estate by T. A. Robinson, administrator, has been made, Probate Judge Langford. The sale, which was confirmed, consisted, six acres of land situated 1/4 of a mile of the Peary ferry, to Mrs. Sanford. Consideration $900.00

An annual accounting will be rendered before Probate Judge Langford, the 17 inst. by Kathrine Kasper administratrix, for the estate of J. Kasper.

County Superintendent, Jennie Harrington, forwarded a report yesterday, to the Commissioner of Education, Statistical Department, Washington, D. C. relating to the years of 1897 and '98.

Assessor Spekker is again at his desk after a few days visit to the Potlatch country. Mr. Spekker says, the fall grain is looking well, but quite the reverse with the spring sown grain, which is both late and poor, and if warm weather continues, it will not even make good hay. Flax is late, has a good stand, but needs rain badly. The fruit crop is light on the ridges, there being no cherries, peaches, prunes or pears, and a light crop of apples.

The delinquent taxes for the year '98 are coming in slowly. The sale of property, for delinquencies has been completed, most of which reverted to the county.

The following instruments were filed for record in the recorder's office, since our last issue. Edmund C. Burke, deed to Mary J. Moore, lot 7 block 37 on Normal Hill, consideration $1500. Chas. M. Snyder, to A. H. Porter, deed to 30 acres near Juliaetta, consideration $400. Jerad Buchler, to H. A. Morgan, deed to 160 acres, near Genesee, in this county, consideration $3,000. J. A. Miller and wife, to J. B. Lauby, a part of lot of 18 acres, on Normal Hill, consideration $2,500.

Notice by G. A. Rogers, of Asotin placer location, at mouth of Corral Creek, also water right location on same creek.

The Board of County Commissioners, will meet in regular session Monday next to transact business, and also sit, as a board of equalization on the assessment roll of taxable property for 1899.

Charles Carlson, a Norwegian laborer, lately of Spokane, was brought in on yesterday's train, by Constable Edwards, of Spaulding, and taken before Judge Langford, and examined by Dr. Morris, for insanity and declared insane. He inquires seven men are after him and he wishes to keep out of sight. After being put in the cell at the county jail, he immediately crawled under the bed. The superintendent of the asylum has been telegraphed to dispatch an attendant to take the unfortunate thither.

J. H. Beckley, a young man from Portland interested in mining property in Idaho county, passed through yesterday en route from Grangeville to Portland.

The section foreman and a small gang of men are engaged in excavating 25,000 cubic yards of gravel from the side hill on the property of Morris & Kroutinger, at the foot of main street. The gravel will be used in making a fill to widen the grade for the purpose of lengthening the track that skirts Snake River from the round house across the Wiggins property lately purchased by the Company.
