CONSPIRACY IMPLICATIONS

NEW ARRESTS IN HORSE STEALING CASES DEVELOPED BY LATAH COUNTY PROBING OF ALLEGED ORGANIZATION

Special to Evening Teller.

MOSCOW, Ida., Nov. 30.—The history of the organization perfected in Latah and Nez Perce counties for the purpose of stealing and marketing horses and cattle from the ranges of eastern Washington and Northern Idaho is slowly being secured by Sheriff Keane and deputies from the men who are now confined in the Latah county jail.

As a further development in the case today, Deputy Sheriff Grant Robbins was sent to Summit, Ida., to take into custody Sinebar Hill, who has been implicated in some of the horse and cattle stealing operations by the confessions of Bauer and Kent.

Hill is a brother of Frank and Jack Hill, and the three brothers reside on the Gilbert ranch, near Summit. He went into that section about a year ago from Little Bear ridge in the Potlatch country, where he resided for a number of years.

The preliminary examination of Frank White, the Juliaetta farmer who was arrested a few days ago in company with George Forsman, is being conducted today. White has made a confession to Sheriff Keane and deputies, and while the details of this confession have not been made public, it is understood he has practically corroborated every statement made by Bauer and Kent.

The story told by Bauer and Kent shows the organization to have been most carefully planned and successfully operated. It is stated the stealing of horses and cattle has been systematically carried on for the past four years without a hitch and that it is only through the persistent efforts of Sheriff Keane and deputies that the criminals have at last been brought to answer for their crimes.

The sheriff's office has been cognizant of some such organization for the past several months, and the officers have been patiently working to secure the necessary evidence that would warrant them in proceeding with the prosecutions. The escape of Bauer and Kent was the opening for which Sheriff Keane was waiting, and when arrested they did just what he believed they would do. They made a confession of all of their transactions with the organization and placed the officers in possession of facts that will enable them to round up all of the principals and secure the necessary evidence to get convictions.

ARGUMENTS IN BRADLEY CASE

GREAT CROWDS GATHER TO HEAR EMINENT COUNSEL REVIEW EVIDENCE WITH FLASH FIRE OF ELOQUENCE.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Passionate oratory marked the proceedings today in the trial of Mrs. Bradley. The courtroom was unable to accommodate the great number of people who came to hear the arguments of the opposing attorneys.

Mrs. Bradley came into court apparently fully alive to the importance of the proceedings.

Assistant District Attorney Turner opened for the government and was followed by Mr. Wells for the defense. As the pistol used by Mrs. Bradley was placed by the district attorney on the table Mrs. Bradley lowered her head and her frame was shaken with convulsive sobs.

Turner said that even a horse doctor could have discerned that Mrs. Bradley was not suffering toxic insanity when she shot Brown. Wells' argument was so impressive that Mrs. Bradley nearly fainted. Court adjourned at noon until Monday.

ARGUE STATUS OF DICK CASE

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT IS NOW HEARING CASE AFFECTING LIQUOR SELLING ON RESERVATION

The question of whether the saloons on the Nezperce Indian reservation are operating in violation of the law and whether they shall be closed and the owners prosecuted for violation of the federal laws is due to be argued today before the United States supreme court at Washington.

The question is involved in the famous Dick case, and the defendant will be represented by Attorney F. E. Fogg of the firm of Fogg & Tannahill.

Dick was a Nezperce Indian and was arrested for introducing liquor on the reservation. He was convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary, but his liberty was secured through habeas corpus proceedings in the district court of appeals.

The case was appealed by the government on the grounds that a habeas corpus proceeding was irregular. The final argument will be made before the supreme court of the United States and the decision of this court will be final.

It is stated a large number of indictments are now held against men engaged in the saloon business on the reservation, and prosecutions will follow in case the decision is against the defendant, Dick.
