WANTED SOMEONE TO PROTEST

Indifference of Tenants Meant That Patrick Had to Buckle Down to Hard Work.

Patrick was the laziest man that ever tried to hold a job as driver of a coal wagon. Three mornings in succession a sadly disgusted Patrick was routed out by an energetic yard master to deliver coal at a little past 7 o'clock in quiet neighborhoods where the outraged citizens threatened to shoot Patrick, hang Patrick or, at the very mildest, arrest Patrick if he dared to move another lump of coal before 8 o'clock.

"Vurry well, sur-r-r," said Patrick amiably each time and curled up in the early sunshine for half an hour's snooze.

On the fourth morning his route lay in a different direction. At the same unearthly hour the first busnel of coal rattled down the iron runway. Patrick shut off the outflow and looked up at the windows. Not a head appeared, not a voice bade him desist. Patrick sighed in disappointment. Another volley of coal was released. Still no protest. Then Patrick wearily crossed the street and routed out the janitor of a big apartment house.

"Say," he said, "ain't nobody in any of these houses got spunk enough to kick because I'm unloading coal before 8 o'clock?"

FOUND BOOTY OF PIRATES

Long-Hidden Hoard Recently Discovered in City Close to Capital of Spain.

Word comes from Colmenar, Spain, which is less than 20 miles from Madrid, of an interesting discovery of buried treasure, concealed by buccaners during the eighteenth century.

A workman who was digging on the site of a ruined castle near the town unearthed a number of old Spanish gold and silver coins. He reported his discovery to his employer and a systematic search was made in the castle ruins.

After laying bare the foundations of the castle, which date from the time of the Moorish occupation, the explorers uncovered a dungeon which had been carefully sealed by the buccaners. In this apartment, the walls of which were of extraordinary thickness, were two rusted iron chests filled with treasure.

The contents of the chests were carefully examined by experts, who believe that they form part of the booty obtained from ships captured more than 150 years ago. Old Spanish and Portuguese money formed the bulk of the treasure, but many gold and silver ornaments, including vases, jewelry and ecclesiastical plate, were also contained in the chests. The excavations continue under government supervision.

A Happy New Year.

On the threshold of another New Year we want to pause to thank our friends and patrons for the very liberal business accorded us during the past year. As one and all you will soon turn the corner into the New Year, look back a minute over the road you have been traveling the past year. Have you saved anything for the "rainy day" that never fails to come? Have you been true to yourself and your family? If not, once more before you step out into the pure New Year call at our bank and make a deposit, if only of one dollar and in twelve more short months take another retrospective glance and see how much pleased you will be with yourself and with the way your dollars have multiplied from the one little seed you planted in our bank, Jan. 1, 1911. We wish every young man in the community would start a bank account with the New Year. It would not mean much to us but it would mean lots to them. How many will make the experiment? Have your idle money drawing interest for you on the first day of the glad New year, 1911. This is our advice and like salvation, its free. Try it While the feeling of good fellowship is in the air and good resolutions are being made for the New Year, would it not be a good idea to resolve that you will save more money during the coming year than during the past one; then come in and open an account with us and then watch it grow.

We pay 4 per cent on savings deposits and compound the interest quarterly.
