VOLUME 9.

OAKLEY, CASSIA COUNTY, IDAHO, THURSDAY, NOV. 16, 1905.

NUMBER 31

The Spirit of the Crowd.

*We recommend to parents that have boys aged 13 to 18, that they keep them from joining the crowd. A crowd is like a mob. It is ruled by caprice and folly, and frequently does things that no single individual if left to himself, would ever think of doing; An instance to the point:—

On Sunday evening last, a large crowd—some 15 or 20 boys of the above mentioned age congregated after the evening services in front of the Oakley Pharmacy and thus lent themselves to any suggestion that His Satanic Majesty had to offer. They were not held long in waiting for when a couple of the Academy teachers passed by shortly afterward on their way to make a call, the crowd fell in, as if moved by some great impulse and followed them down the street, with their taunts and jests and ribaldry.

When the teachers stopped at the friends' home, the crowd stopped too, and continued their deviltry. The next move was to thrust open the door of a peaceable citizen's home and to throw into the room a four foot cedar post—just for amusement. Fortunately this sport did not result disastrously, though it must be confessed that there was more of good luck than conduct in the affair as a mother sat in the middle of the room with her infant in her arms and whose head was barely missed by the missile. An investigation of the affair has been made during the week and a number of the participants have expressed sorrow for their conduct, but do not know why they did it.—Others—whether they live in Oakley or other settlements—will perhaps render explanation before many days, or answer to the law, as the injured party does not propose to suffer such treatment at the hands of hoodlums without correction.

But, the point is: "Deviltry and hoodlumism are developed in the crowd that gathers on the streets." The very old Nick prompts such gatherings and a few recent experiences in Oakley somewhat similar to the one mentioned above, plainly evidence the fact that something ought to be done.

We suggest to parents that they keep a more watchful eye over their boys. If it is necessary for them to go out on an evening see to it, that they go directly to their place of appointment and that they return directly home. Keep them, we say from the low, vulgar, crowd that loaf upon the streets—for the spirit of such gatherings is injurious and leads to trouble.

A Central School.

People of Oakley are gradually awakening to the fact that they must have a central school. The parents meeting in No. 6 last Friday helped to open their eyes. Quite a number have expressed themselves this week as being ashamed of the conditions that maintain in the "school home" of their children. For the benefit of those, who wish to agitate this question—we will freely tender the use of these columns. Write out your ideas and let the people know how you feel on this proposition. It needs agitation. It needs talking about, so that when the time comes to donate and build, tax and build, or bond and build, we shall know where we are at and shall be entirely ready for the proposition.

We take pleasure in quoting this week from a man that means business—Mr. Thos. J. Dayley:—
I donated One Hundred Dollars to the Cassia Stake Academy and it was as good an investment as I ever made,

I will donate One Hundred Dollars for a central school—Yes, I will meet the donation of any other man and I will meet my share of a tax besides.

Let us hear from others.

Famous Boys.

A woman fell off the dock in Italy. She was fat and frightened. No one of the crowd of men dared to jump in after her; but a boy struck the water almost as soon as she, and managed to keep her up until stronger arms got hold of her. Everybody said the boy was very daring, very kind, very quick, but also very reckless, for he might have been drowned. The boy was Garibaldi, and if you read his life you will find these were just his traits all through—that he was the educators of the west—and the peer it not the superior of any in United States stands David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford Jr. University, California. This famous educator delivered a lecture. "The call of the Twentieth Century" last week in Salt Lake City, which we would recommend to our boys and girls as worthy their careful consideration. A complete synopsis can be found in Deseret News of 11 inst. We quote two short extracts:

PROFESSIONS NOT CROWDED.

"We say in America that all the professions are crowded but you will notice that the crowd is always around the bottom of the ladder. There are plenty of lawyers starve to death. But they ought to starve to death; they ought to go to the penitentiary and be fed at public expense.

Idaho

*Kind Providence our lots may cast,
And yet we have to choose at last;
Are you inquiring where to go?
Come down to Southern Idaho.*

*Chorus.
O, Idaho! Grand Idaho!
It's the place for you to go.
With climate rare and sunny skies,
Where mountains rich in grandeur rise,
Where fruits in great abundance grow,
Down here in sunny Idaho.*

*The farmers here may be at ease,
And work amid fruit laden trees;
Whate'er he plants is sure to grow
And make a crop in Idaho.*

*For genial showers you need not wait,
You only have to hoist the gate,
And let the waters overflow
Our valleys rich in Idaho.*

*Now you who would contentment gain,
Help build the state with brawn and brain;
To mine the hills or reap and sow,
You are welcome here in Idaho.*

so alert that nobody could tell when he would make an attack with his red-shirted soldiers; so indiscreet sometimes as to make his fellow-patriots wish he was in Guinea, but also so brave and magnanimous that all the world except tyrants, loved to hear and talk about him.

A boy used to crush the flowers to get their color, and painted the white side of his father's cottage in Tyrol with all sorts of pictures, which the mountaineer gazed at as wonderful. He was the great artist Titian.

An old painter watched a little fellow who amused himself making drawings of his pot and brushes, easel and stool, and said "That boy will beat me some day." So he did, for he was Michael Angelo.

A German boy was reading a blood-and-thunder novel. Right in the midst of it he said to himself: "Now, this will never do. I get too much excited over it; I can't study so well after it. So here goes!" and he flung the book out into the river. He was Fichte, the great German philosopher.—"Dumb Animals."

David Starr Jordan.

Head and shoulders above all

But every once in a while there is a man who realizes that the science of equality, an expression of justice among men, who has brains and courage, and he is very much wanted. And now what kind of young men does century want for the work that it has to do? If you will go through your streets—and this is no doubt a very temperate town—you will see hanging out at the saloons the kind of young men that the century does not want—the kind of young man that will by and by be thrown in to the gutter. I am not going to preach a temperance lecture, but I think that half the strength of twentieth century is going to be destroyed by the vices that come from liquor. I think that the great crime and sin of this world of ours is the waste of young life through the influence of the saloon.

"The century is going to want trained young men. Wisdom is knowing what to do next and virtue is to know how to do. If a man is going to be a hero in great things he has to practise to be a hero in little things.

MEN MUST BE LOYAL.

"The world is going to demand devoted men. The world is going to demand men who, like Abraham Lincoln, are too simply great to scheme for their own interests. That is what makes Theodore Roosevelt so universally popular: The century is going to demand loyal men. Half the value of any man's service lies in his loyalty. You have no right to work for a man and kick against him. Give loyal service or get out. If I were going to say one thing that was worth while I would say to the young men here something like this: 'Far off in the twentieth century, 1920 or 1930, away off there, the man that you ought to be is waiting for you. Now, while this man is waiting for you, will you live in such a way that this man who is the man you ought to be shall be in your strength, wise in your experience, happy in your joys, or will you live in such a way as to destroy your patrimony and the man you ought to be shall never exist.'

While the Japanese will greet Mr. Bryan cordially, he must not expect that they will exert themselves to provide "whales" for his luncheon as they did for Secretary Taft.

A few weeks steady in the office of the marriage licence clerk, would show those sceptical scientists whether or not cupid is still at large and practicing his trade.

Woman's Wants.

[According to a popular poet all that a woman wants is love.—News item.]
All she desires is love, you say?
That shows how much you know;
She wants to see the matinee
And to the circus go,
She wants a handsome diamond ring
She wants a rope of pearls;
She wants a poodle on a string,
She wants some extra curls;
She wants a bonnet twice a year,
She wants an Easter hat;
She wants to read her title clear
Unto a stylish flat;
She wants a four-seated motor car,
She wants a real Worth gown;
She wants a trip to Europe, or
At least to Newport town;
She wants a cask of rare cologne,
She wants a diamond pin;
She wants a carriage of her own
To go out calling in;
She wants the earth, the Milky Way,
And half the stars above,
And yet you have the nerve to say
That all she wants is love.
