

COLONEL INGERSOLL SURE G. O. P. CAN WIN IF PROGRESSIVE

Pocatello Progressive Predicts Republican President for 1920 if Platform and Ticket Appeal to Western Voter.

REJOICED BY DRY VICTORY

Says Last Two Defeats Have Convinced Old-Line G. O. P. Leaders Western Ballot Plays the Leading Role.

Colonel James M. Ingersoll, the well known progressive of Pocatello, is in the city. He is still taking a great interest in politics and in an interview today, said:

"Having been in favor of prohibition all my life, the nation-wide prohibition victory pleases me very much.

"While chairman of the Bannock county Anti-Saloon league, and acting national prohibition committeeman for Idaho, I have put in time, work, and money, to win this great victory.

"National prohibition is the most beneficial reform in all times. Nebraska, the 36th state to certify its ratification of the constitutional amendment, completes the victory, and sets a new pace for the whole world.

"But turning to the presidential campaign next year, I realize that while we mourn the loss of our great leader, we must plan for the future.

"The Republicans can win next year if their platform and ticket are progressive.

"They must put up a platform and ticket that will appeal to the independent progressive voter of the west. This vote turned the count for Wilson in 1916. This vote naturally belongs to the Republican party, but it is too independent and progressive to stick to any party regardless of what the platform and ticket really mean. These voters are not of the class that vote the party ticket straight because their grandfathers did. They realize that questions, conditions, and leadership have changed.

"LOOK TO FUTURE. They are more inclined to vote with the Republican party for what they expect it to do now and in the near future, than for what it has done in the past.

"Before the Republicans can win, they must get up a platform and ticket that will take this vote away from the Democrats and place it where it more naturally belongs.

"I think the last two defeats have convinced the old-line party leaders of the east that they cannot afford to ignore the big progressive vote of the west.

"It nominated on a Progressive Republican platform, Senator Borah of Idaho or Senator Johnson of California will carry every state next year, west of Oklahoma and Texas, and everything in the east and west north of Mason and Dixon line.

ADMINISTRATION ACT MAY MEET WITH MORE OPPOSITION IN HOUSE

Passed Through Senate Monday Backed by Solid Republican Support—House Causes but Nothing Definite Settled.

Considerably more opposition is looked for in the house of representatives on the Administration consolidation bill than it received in the senate when it was passed. The house Monday night, but no definite program was mapped out. It was said after the caucus that a number of the majority members are not thoroughly satisfied with the bill in its present form, and they will attempt to have it amended. The advocates of the measure will seek to keep it out of the committee of the whole to prevent it being damaged by amendment.

Predictions are being freely made that the bill will pass the house, probably this week. The backers of the measure are confident that their most serious task was overcome when they succeeded in getting the bill through the senate. On the other hand, reports are heard from other majority members that the bill will not be passed.

GOES THROUGH SENATE EASY.

The bill passed through its most critical stage in the senate, when in the committee of the whole. After it was recommended for passage there it was realized that its passage would be brought about rapidly, and this proved to be correct, for it went through in short order. Faraday and Sims, Democrats, voted with the Republican majority on final passage of the bill.

The house also discussed the direct primary at its caucus Monday night. A bill seeking to eliminate some of the objections to the primary will be presented at a later date.

One of the interesting measures introduced in the senate Monday is senate concurrent resolution No. 1, by Orme and McKeown, seeking to amend the state constitution so as to provide a six instead of a two year term for county commissioners, and to elect them by districts instead of at large.

Only an Actual Photograph Can Make a Well-Fed American Realize the Ravages of Starvation Among the Victims of War in the Near East.

In famine-stricken Armenia, Syria, Persia and Greece, gaunt hunger is killing innocent people by the thousand—carrying off the last survivors of these once-powerful races of the Near East.

The Turk has been shorn of his power and this can never happen again. But the desperate need of the hour calls for immediate relief.

The countries of western Asia—many thousand populous square miles—are one vast, aching field of utter desolation, starvation and death.

(Literary Digest, Jan. 18, 1919)

"We have presented the needs of the Armenians twice before to our Literary Digest readers and they have responded largely, liberally, most generously. But now the period of rehabilitation in the Near East is at hand. Vastly larger sums will be required merely to sustain life in their desert exiles. The American Committee for Relief in the Near East, under the able leadership of Cleveland H. Dodge, is appealing for a minimum of thirty million dollars 'with which' say the committee, 'we can, humanely speaking, save every life.'"

Campaign for $8000 for Ada County is now on.
