LYNCH BEATS SANGOR AT MILWAUKEE

Champion Successfully Defends His Title Last Night

MILWAUKEE, WIS., Dec. 5.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion, succumbed the first three rounds, the fourth was even, and the champion had the better of the milling in the remaining seasons.

The champion's superior ringcraft was the main factor in determining the result. Sangor was wild and aggressive at times, but the way Lynch slipped punches and ducked out of harm's way was too much for the game local fighter, who did well to stay the ten rounds. Joey dealt out some damage and in the sixth round out the champion's left eye with a ring swing.

As early as the second round Lynch drew the claret from the challenger's nose by jabbing him continually with his left hand as many as three times without returns. The blood flowed freely throughout the fight and at times Joe looked like a badly beaten fighter.

Sangor surprised his friends by taking the first three rounds handily. The local boy forced the milling and had a wide margin in each. He used his left to good advantage to jab and hook. In the fourth round the champion hit his stride and honors were even at the bell.

He announces that Verner is in the pink of condition and ready to go at a minutes notice. rounds of mauling. If Verner gets the popular decision he will be ready to take on the hard hitting Patsy Rocco, of East Chicago.

Morrie Johnson, who needs no introduction is in good condition and he always gives the fans a good run for their money.

SPORTSNAP SHOTS

What chance has Benny Leonard to win the welterweight title, now that it is held by a young, strong youngster instead of a time worn veteran? Mickey Walker, the new champion, and Leonard are sure to meet over in Tex Rickard's big arena in New Jersey next summer. It will be one of the big bouts of the year and probably will attract as large a gate as the Leonard-Tender affair of last summer.

It is argued that since Leonard was made to look foolish by the veteran Britton, the lightweight champion would have no chance against a man who in turn made Britton look like a second rate. But that kind of figuring never has been accurate.

Leonard is having so much trouble making weight in his own class that he may be forced into the welterweight class to preserve his health if for no other reason. The dread specter of the white plague ever hovers over those who continually weaken themselves by fighting at too low a weight, and Leonard is too sensible a person to sacrifice his health.

By the time next summer comes around Leonard may really want to win the welterweight title. He is not the kind of a man to be satisfied with anything less than a championship and if forced into the higher class it is reasonable to suppose that he will bend every effort toward winning the highest honor.

That will make a great deal of difference in his plan of battle and he can be expected to make a much better fight against the young and inexperienced Walker than he did against the crafty Britton.

Accidentally or otherwise, Leonard made a terrible mistake when he met Britton in the Velodrome last summer. For ten rounds of that bout he fought entirely for the head. Not once did he make a play for the body. Several times Leonard landed solid shots to the jaw, but the veteran shook them off without much trouble. Any hardened ringster can withstand a wallop on the jaw fairly well despite advanced years, but no veteran can take it in the body and survive.

Walker knew that much, and he beat Britton in the very first round by slugging the veteran in the body. If Leonard had followed similar tactics there is no doubt whatever that he would have scored a knockout. Near the close of the bout he hooked his left to the body for the first time during the battle and the blow put Britton down and almost out. If Leonard had started that way it would have been a walkover for him.

There is one J. G. V. o. remembers how it felt to be unable to attend a football game when he was a boy. Judge Eiler of the Englewood Court, Chicago, sounded a popular note a few days ago when instead of dealing harshly with two youngsters who had been caught sneaking through knotholes at the Chicago-Princeton game he scathingly expressed his disapproval of the action of Geo. O. Fairweather, the university business manager, in having the youngsters arrested. The spirit of the day, according to the Judge, was to see the game at any cost.

Joie Ray, the great runner, is getting to be just as dangerous a proposition in the ring as he is on the track. His first two appearances in Chicago amateur boxing circles have resulted in victories as decisive as any he ever turned in in the harder branch of sport. Satisfied that his legs have few equals Ray is developing a pair of arms that are just as exceptional in their defeat dealing qualities.

The Challenge of the Bootleggers

A saturnalia of bootlegging seems to be no exaggerated phrase to describe the startling state of affairs to which the Administration calls the nation's attention. Inspired Washington dispatches tell us that the present Prohibition enforcement methods are "debauching and debasing the entire country"; that the President is "deeply concerned over a belief that the moral fiber of the American people is deteriorating through the open disrespect shown for the effort to enforce Prohibition"; and that "the growth of bootlegging, the temerity of rum-runners, and the serious insinuations against Federal enforcement officers have been worrying the Administration for some months," until finally—"With Prohibition enforcement recognized as on the verge of absolute collapse in four States and in a condition of serious demoralization elsewhere in the country, President Harding considered to-day the issuance of a solemn public appeal to all good citizens to discourage bootlegging as a last resort to administer the law."

"One way to make Prohibition prohibit," declares the New York Evening Post, "would be to arrest some of the prominent and respectable people who buy what the bootleggers sell."

The leading article in The Literary Digest this week takes up the subject of the enforcement of the Prohibition laws and presents the opinions of leading newspapers as to ways and means.
