THE REAL BONE OF CONTENTION.

The old question of how to construct the county roads so that they will be the most durable, is again on the tapis, in North, Calumet and Hobart townships. It is asserted that the question has been raised as to whether bonds on the improvements will sell if asphalt filler is used.

If those in charge of the county cross-roads would take as seriously the matter of the maintenance of these roads, once they are down, as they do the matter of whether this trust or that one provide the material of which they are originally constructed, the problem of good country roads would be largely solved.

The majority of those who use the roads would be satisfied with any kind of a made road that is kept in repair. What the farmers want is a road that will not mire after a heavy rain and that will permit of a reasonable load being hauled to market without killing a good team.

The moral of all this seems to be "KEEP THE ROADS IN REPAIR."

TRUTH STRANGER THAN FICTION.

The prospects of Gary and Indiana Harbor being used as ports of entry for ocean-going vessels seems almost ridiculous, does it not? Yet this is what is predicted if not soon, why then in a few years.

The idea is certainly one to cause the scoffers to scoff their loudest and the scoffers may not live to see the day when those who have faith in the project may have the satisfaction of saying, "I told you so."

There are those who ridicule every big undertaking. Even people who are supposed to be rather broad-minded forget themselves and scoff at what seems to them an unfeasible undertaking. Yet the world do move.

A decade or so ago the Chicago Herald, now the Record-Herald, got up a world's contest for "horseless carriages." The esteemed Chicago Tribune had all manner of sarcastic things to say of the impracticability of street vehicles propelled by other than animal power.

Within the memory almost of the average school boy, the man who dared hope to one day navigate the air, was held up as a candidate for the insane asylum. Note the progress that is being made in aerial navigation.

And now there is a movement on foot to make navigable to ocean going vessels the heretofore impassable St. Lawrence river rapids, to deepen and widen the Wellman canal, thereby making a nautical highway from the Atlantic seaboard to the great lakes.

But this newspaper is not the one to say that this will not one day be accomplished, perhaps in a very few years.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT COLD?

Why does almost everybody suffer from "a cold?" Where do they get it? What do they lose by it? And how can the thing be prevented?

The Boston Chamber of Commerce wanted to know and made an investigation. Here's what they found:

You didn't get your cold by wearing thin shoes or insufficient clothing. You didn't have it simply because the weather was cold.

Colds are bred by bad air and poor ventilation. They are spread by infection—one person distributes the germs to all the rest of the family or all his companions in the workroom.

In 1,291 cases studied most colds were found among department store employees and least among nurses.

The remedy is fresh air. Arctic explorers never have colds. General Sherman's boys were notably free from them on their "match to the sea."

Fresh air is getting more popular right along. The day is coming when everybody will sleep outdoors—that is, everybody who can afford to! Unfortunately the very poor can't do it, as their only "outdoors" is the sidewalk.

RANDOM THINGS & FLINGS

'BOUT time for the merry-go-round. GET ready to see March go out as a lamb.

HAVE you heard the robin, Nellie dear?

THIS ubiquitous smell of gasoline is a dead sure sign of spring.

SPRING has come, if you will kindly lift your optics to the calendar.

A GOOD place for Mr. Ballinger to spend his vacation would be in Alaska.

ALABAMA is again in the wet column. No danger of the world drying up.

WE trust that nothing else will hit Hammond as hard as the harem skirt did.

THIS park board business gives the gangrene to certain wholly disinterested ones.

IT doesn't make some ministers half as tired to preach as it does some people to hear them.

AND a dead sure sign of spring is the dusty street and the absence of the street sprinkler.

MR. Edison shouldn't worry about that thirty-five-year-old suit. It is probably out of style by this time.

A BANKER wounded himself with a lead pencil the other day. Wounds caused by what lead pencils do are quite common.

IF President Taft gets reciprocity through and the tariff board, nothing can stop him next year, not even the esteemed Woodrow.

JACK London denies that he has joined the Mexican insurgents. Jack will never stick his nose into danger unless he can help it.

SQUAW in Nevada created a sensation on the reservation by wearing a hobble skirt. A garment of that kind and a squaw will go together.

NEW Jersey minister says he has indisputable evidence that the world is growing worse. Some ministers think they are the whole world.

THEY took a needle out of a baby in Alabama. This does not bother us in the least. Wait until they begin to pluck safety pins out of the kiddies.

A TRIAL in these days seems to run about like this: Plaintiff—Yes, he did. Witness—Liar. Prisoner—Liar. Prosecutor—Liar. General public—Correct. Verdict—Not guilty.

LADIES' WAIST

Again the pictured waist shows us a variation of the peasant style. The graceful arrangement of the shoulder lies in the use of a long seam which extends from the elbow to the very line of the neck on the outside of the arm.

Heart to Heart Talks. By EDWIN A. NYE

LET BE!

Art thou weary, brother? This I say: Be comforted. Thy grief shall pass away.

Art thou in danger? Still let reason sway

It is a widely told story, that of the king whose jester was told to remind him, both in scenes of gayety and in sorrow, that—

"This, too, shall pass away."

There is a more beautiful story of another king who sought for some philosophy that would bring him quietness and comfort and peace.

"This, too, shall pass away."

And the king remembered the saying, and it wondrously helped him in all his ways.

It is a good philosophy. Because most of the things we suffer—pain, griefs, burdens, trials, what not—are evanescent. "Weeping may endure for the night, but joy cometh in the morning."

In the morning, when we have slept, it may be with tearful washes, we shall plainly see how short lived was the thing we feared or suffered.

"This, too, shall pass away."

Wretched? Does the road seem long and weary, and do you go limping on the way? You may be nearer to your goal than you think. Plod on!

"This, too, shall pass away."

Tired? Your weary shoulders bear some load that galls them? Keep going. Ahead of you is rest, refreshment.

"This, too, shall pass away."

Tomorrow you will forget. What is today with all its wracks? Let be. Yonder lies the way!

Live today up in the citadel of your own serene spirit. In its corridors is the quiet of the dim centuries. Looking from its towers back to the dawn of your soul and onward to the purple shadows of eternity stretches between the short and dusty path of life. And nothing matters much because nothing matters long.

"This, too, shall pass away."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

WANTS TO BOOM SHELBY.

Editor TIMES—They are throwing out inducements to boom other towns why not boom our town. We have beautiful surroundings. One advantage we have, we don't have to irrigate, plenty of water, have the sawmills on the retired list. We also have a park with a high fence around it which is very attractive, you or any one that likes that kind of show can go to it on Sunday, it don't cost anything to go in if you go in on the blind side. They say it is hard to get out, anyway it is an easy place to live for any one that is not stuck on hard work. Now I am not going to misrepresent things. This is a dry town, but some may have objections to that but don't let that worry you, if you have a good smell you can track it up. They say that there is a place that leaks that is dangerous, some go there to investigate, they get so dizzy they can't walk straight. Don't you think that there ought to be something done. Some one might fall down and break their nose or they might fall in the river as some have done and go down to kingdom come. Beware. S. E. L.

UP AND DOWN IN I-N-D-I-A-N-A

CERTIFICATE IS NECESSARY.

SMOKE SUFFOCATES WOMAN.

Mrs. Amanda J. Norvill of Bedford, nearly 90 years old, is dead at her home in Springfield, Lawrence County. As was her custom she retired to her room about 4 o'clock. An hour later members of the family noticed smoke issuing from her room and rushed to Mrs. Norvill's assistance. On opening the door they found the carpet and bed on fire. By hard work the flames were extinguished and when the smoke cleared away Mrs. Norvill was found dead on the floor near the foot of the bed. She had evidently been overcome by the smoke while attempting to escape from the room. Origin of the fire is unknown.

BODY IDENTIFIED AFTER 40 YEARS.

There is no longer any doubt that the bones found in an old zinc trunk near Noblesville some time ago are those of Eugene C. Woodmansee, who was killed in an old road house on the banks of the White river forty-four years ago. It was announced yesterday that Woodmansee had gone there to marry Miss Sarah Vint and disappeared about two hours before the time set for the wedding. A ring bearing the initial "E" was found in the trunk and relatives of Woodmansee were located at Danville, Ill.

KILLS FARM HAND.

On information furnished by his son, John W. Pole, a farmer living near Fowler, was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of Joseph Kemper, a farm hand. Private detectives have been working on the case for some time and, according to the story told by Pole's son, Emory Kemper and the elder Pole often quarreled. In December, 1910, the son said Kemper disappeared and he discovered bloodstains on the kitchen floor. His father later began wearing some of Kemper's clothing. The son also said that previous to this time another farm hand had mysteriously disappeared. He told the detectives where he believed Kemper's body was buried and a search was made there last night, but without result.

LOST BET ON HOME STRETCH.

Roy Mitchell, of Evansville, twenty, well known here, yesterday made a bet that he could eat thirty-two bananas without stopping. A great crowd gathered to watch the proceedings. Interest ran high and there was considerable betting on the side. On his thirty-second banana Mitchell gagged and lost the bet. He was rushed to his home and doctors say he has a chance of recovery.

RETURNS TWO INDICTMENTS.
