

FICHU COLLAR OF CREAM NET

The old-fashioned fichu was a long scarf-like affair that had to be pulled down at the back and pinned firmly to the bodice, to insure a smooth fit over the shoulders. As the old-fashioned bodice was snugly fitted and boned, this was quite a practicable method of adjustment.

This model is a net fichu in the delicate cream or "bise" shade which resembles old lace.

ELLIOT CONROY WINS DECLAMATORY CONTEST

Elliot Conroy was chosen last night at the declamatory preliminaries at the Methodist church to represent Hammond high school at the coming Lake county declamatory contest April 23.

The second honors were awarded to William Arnold, who spoke on the subject of "Call to arms." The third place and honors were given to Friedley Johnston. There was $15 divided among the first three contestants, and the money was divided as follows: First, $5; second, $5, and third place, $5.

A large audience assembled at the church to hear the contest and general satisfaction was evinced at the decision of the three judges.

The musical selection rendered by the high school orchestra were heartily applauded, and the musical numbers given by the high school chorus and the choir and orchestra must also be given high credit for helping to make the contest a success.

Miss Grace Eaton Hauk, head of the public speaking department of the high school, was praised for the way she has handled the contestants and has brought about so much interest among the pupils as was shown in the contest last night.

IMITATING NATURE.

In house-cleaning time, it is well for the housewife to follow the lead of nature. Nature never hoards; when a thing has served its purpose it is destroyed, to be used again in another form. Everything in the vegetable, fruit or forestry departments undergoes the change, and the off-put materials form manures or fertilizers for the next, or some future year's growth.

In animal life it is the same; there is a constant throwing off, eliminating of materials that are of no further use, and this material is returned to the dust from which it was gathered, to be gathered anew when needed. With the human body, the elimination must be carried on, or self-poisoning results. The dead matter must be removed from the system; no "cluttering" for a possible future need. It must be removed.

In the mental, whatever is in constant use, or necessary to our well-being is preserved, but what is of use only to a desired end, when the end is reached, is forgotten. If it were not so, what a rubbish room our minds would become. So, in cleaning your homes for the coming season, do not hoard your castoffs in some garret, or storage, or outhouse. Whatever can be used within a reasonably short time; whatever is sure to be used soon, within the year—as changes of clothing, etc., it is well to give house room to; but things which have only a possibility of being of use in that vague, seldom-reached season known as "sometime," might just as well be sold to the highest bidder, given to any one who will accept, burned to ashes or buried—any way, to get it off our hands. Thousands of things we cling to would better be laid on the altar of reclamation, or fed to the altar-fires. Do not hoard. There is no surer, or more satisfactory method, by which to get rid of an undesired surplus, than to put a match to it.

NEW COLLAR SET. The girl who likes to lighten a dark costume with dainty frills, should make herself one of the sets of rounding Dutch collar and cuffs in plaited lawn.

The frills are made of fine white lawn or dotted muslin, and are cut three and a half inches wide for the collar and two inches for the cuffs.

Mark the edge in a tiny scallop with a spool of 200 cotton, and buttonhole in white or colored mercerized cotton in a shallow line. When finished sew into eighth of an inch side plait and sew into narrow band the right length to fit around wrist and neck. The frill falls softly from the band or in the sleeves may be inverted and turned back being caught at one side with a lace pin.

Instead of arranging in plaits, which are hard to iron, the frills may be run in thread tucks to give the fullness. This model is good for high turnover effects and for the Dutch collar. For the latter the strip should be made narrower at the ends than in the middle.

Ushers Quit. As a result of a difference of opinion between Manager George Manderback, of Towle's opera house, and the ushers who have been employed in his theater, the latter went on a strike last evening and refused to work.

The boys have asked the Manager Manderback meet a committee representing them and talk over the matter of paying them instead of giving them passes to the show, as has been the custom.

Manager Manderback refused to confer with the ushers and the following refused to work last night, or at any time in the future, until the matter is settled: W. J. Flan, chairman; E. J. Coach, secretary; A. Johnston, Thomas O'Toole, Charles Huber, E. Carroll, J. O'Connor and William Winter.

Manager Manderback claims that it has always been the custom for the boys to use for the purpose of seeing the show and an occasional pass. He declares that there are scores of them who are willing to work for this consideration and he cannot afford to pay for the service in any other manner.

Plea to Men's Club. At a meeting of the directors of the Men's club last Monday night, it was decided that owing to the fact that the club has been running a little behind this year, an assessment would be made, of which there are 100. When this assessment is paid it can finish out the year in good shape and the directors feel that the majority of men want the proposition continued.

In view of this, Treasurer Emery has been asked to notify the members of this assessment and to collect the amount at the earliest possible date in order that there may be no interruption in the meetings.

Case Continued. The state case vs. Frank Vachta was postponed in Judge Ames' court this morning until Friday, April 21, at 9 o'clock.

This makes the second time the case has been continued.

Victim of Drink Needs Orrine. Drink cunningly destroys the will power, and while the drunkard wants to do what you tell him, he wants a thousand times more the drink that he craves. Medical treatment is necessary. Orrine destroys the desire for liquor, so that the drink will not be missed and restores the patient to health.

This remedy is thoroughly scientific and is so uniformly successful that it is sold with a guarantee to refund your money if after a trial it has not benefited. Booklet free on request. The Orrine Company, Orrine Building, Washington, D. C. Sold in this city by the Lion Store Pharmacy, 138 South Hohman street, Hammond, Ind.
