By La Raconteuse.

This suit designed by Paquin is featured in navy blue velour showing moderately full skirt with wide front panel. The coat, hip length, is semi-beited, the latter disappearing under a box pleat on either side of the center front. Touches of self-toned hand embroidered lends a smart finishing touch. Merging from rather a severe closing and collar finish, the magenta velvet vest rises to a high soft rolling collar. Self buttons serve to fasten and trim the coat. Coverings Help Save Furniture Does Away with the Heavy Appearance of the Winter Furnishings.

Covering of furniture does away with the heavy appearance of the winter furnishings of the rooms of the year-round house—a condition noticeable at the approach of summer, says the Dallas News.

A pleasant impression was received on entering one town house this summer. The woodwork was white and in good condition, as every spring it was given a fresh coat, and the floors were covered throughout with light blue denim. The slip covers were of white cotton poplin, trimmed in blue and white cretonne. Everybody had to be careful of these things, but it is surprising how fresh they kept.

After one learns to take the proper care of possessions the seemingly perishable things assume more the light of possibilities. Taking care of one's things is not so hard if the attempt is once made. It is just as easy—and much nicer—to carefully use a marker in a book instead of dog-eared the pages or slapping the open book face down on any handy piece of furniture, to keep one's hands clean, so that one will never be guilty of "finger marks," to place a paper or cushion on the seat of a chair if it seems a necessity to climb thereon; to refrain from setting a glass on a book or on a nicely polished wood; to think before one throws a curtained window open on a rainy day.

The second great advantage to be gained by summer furniture covers is that of furniture protection. Who has experienced the inconvenience of having those blue-white spots appear on the fine mahogany furniture? A slip cover will eliminate this, as it also will the fading of upholstered stuff and the sifting in of dust from the open windows.

And the third reason for slip covers, which will strongly appeal to many, is the good chance afforded to induce that unsatisfied longing for cretonne furnishings which has heretofore been denied them, on account of their having too much excellent furniture of another date to have been able to refresh with the more modern upholstery of cretonne.

It will be plainly recognized that with slip covers of cretonne the furniture will be very well furnished for fully half the year.

The goods to use is called elderdown slip cover material. It is placed on the wrong side and on the right side it has the appearance of cretonne; it is very smooth. The slips are very simple to make, as, first of all, they are virtually made on the furniture. A piece of the material is placed on the part of the chair one has decided to start with, and after it is carefully fitted it is cut into shape, leaving plenty of allowance for seams.

In this way one should carefully do the whole chair, sewing the various pieces together as one gets them cut and trying on many times, in order to insure a perfect fit.

ANCIENT MUSIC WILL BE PART OF PROGRAM

Concert Which Promises to be Unusual Will Be Given Tonight.

Ancient music, perhaps the most ancient ever heard in or near South Bend, will be heard in Washington Hall, Notre Dame university, tonight at 8 o'clock in the sacred concert to be given by the DuJaric Institute choir. One of the numbers was composed over 1,500 years ago. It is a fourth century Incant and Sanctus from a Missa de Requiem. Another number dates back to the fifth century, an Ave Regina Coelorum. The seventh century is represented in a Kyrie and the tenth in a Mass of a Confessor Pontiff.

Modern compositions will be rendered also, giving a pleasing variety and affording a very unusual opportunity of comparing present day music with that of the early days of the Christian era.

The concert will be rendered under the direction of Rev. John B. Delaunay, E. H. D., J. C. D., of Holy Cross college, Washington, D. C. Father Delaunay is an accomplished musician and scholar, being the author of several theological and other works.

A number of visitors are already at Notre Dame to hear the concert and to bid farewell to the 25 young brothers of the congregation who are about to leave to take up their life work teaching in various schools of the Holy Cross order. The sacred concert is in the nature of a farewell
