G. O. P. WOULD DISCREDIT U. S. PEACE TERMS

Republicans Intimate Wilson Has Not Taken Nation Into His Confidence—Oppose League of Nations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Wilson's 14 principles and terms, the league of nations, international disarmament, open diplomacy and other subjects connected with the forthcoming peace conference were discussed in the senate Wednesday during five hours of debate in which many senators, both republicans and democrats, joined.

During the discussion Sen. Borah of Idaho, republican, introduced a resolution proposing publication of the peace treaty immediately upon its completion and open discussion of it in the senate, while Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, republican, offered a resolution seeking interpretation by the president of the 14 points.

Both resolutions will be sent to the foreign relations committee, which, before the senate discussion opened, considered for almost two hours behind closed doors the resolution of Sen. Cummins, of Iowa, republican, proposing appointment of a senate committee to attend the Paris conference to keep the senate informed of events there. Action on the Cummins resolution was postponed until tomorrow, with administration leaders and some republicans reported opposing its approval. The committee also decided to put over until next week the resolution of Sen. Knox, of Pennsylvania, republican, calling for postponement of action by the peace conference on the questions of a league of nations and freedom of the seas.

The senate's debate, which continued intermittently until adjournment tonight, was opened by Sen. Frelinghuysen, who in offering his resolution declared the president had never elaborated on many of his 14 terms and demanded that the American people be informed of their concrete application.

Delay Ground for Approval.

In reply, Sen. Walsh of Montana, democrat, said delay in criticism of the 14 principles was ground for approval of them, Senators Poindexter of Washington, Knox of Pennsylvania, and Johnson of California, all republicans, challenged that view. They insisted that after their enunciation peace discussion generally had been frowned upon until recently and consequently there had been no general discussion of them. Johnson said that now the president has gone to France, leaving the nation ignorant of the precise meaning of his principles.

Sen. Knox said congress had taken a position on an agreement between nations when it attached a rider to the naval appropriation bill of February, 1914, authorizing the president to call an international conference, not later than the conclusion of the war, for discussion of military disarmament and general arbitration of international disputes.

During the day, Sen. Kellogg of Minnesota, republican, delivered a prepared address favoring a league of nations whose decrees should be enforced by popular opinion of responsive popular government and not by force of a super-government or world court.

Lewis Answers.

In replying to Sen. Kellogg, who had expressed regret that the president had not taken the senate and people more into his confidence on peace questions, Sen. Lewis of Illinois, the democratic whip declared that in selecting the American peace commission without naming a senate representative the president had not intentionally slighted the senate. He said the president had at first favored appointing a senator, but had reluctantly felt such a selection would be improper since the senate must finally pass on the treaty.

Closing the day's debate, Senators Reed of Missouri, and Williams of Mississippi, democrats, clashed on the question of a league of nations. The Missouri senator vigorously opposed a league giver power to use military force in imposing its decrees upon a single nation and the Mississippi senator argued that a league to enforce peace as a final resort by joint military force is desirable.

SCHWAB BELIEVES IN LABORING MAN

He is Heard by 4,000 at Big Reconstruction Congress in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 5.—Four thousand men, representing virtually every branch of business and industry in the country, assembled here Wednesday in a re-arranged on readjustment problems delivered by Secy of Commerce William C. Redfield; Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, and director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation, and Harry A. Wheeler, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States.

Mr. Wheeler amid great applause urged that American business should be represented at the peace conference in France. Mr. Schwab made an appeal for a great merchant marine to give outlet to surplus American products, and declared that labor should be permitted to organize in individual plants and share in the prosperity of the country. Secy Redfield said that no rash hands should be laid on wages; that the proper spirit of trade is not excessive profits, but service, and that the American business man should take into account moral values when dealing with his customers in all lands.

May Send Delegation.

There is some talk here tonight that a committee of American business and industrial men might be sent to Europe during the peace negotiations.

Secy Redfield prefaced his speech with the statement that his remarks were not to be taken as an official announcement. "I am more and more impressed," said Mr. Redfield, "in reading current discussions and reflecting upon them with the truth that readjustment is very largely a state of mind—that it requires not so much a program as a fixed line of procedure as an evolution. While we are discussing it the process of readjustment is proceeding almost silently about us."

He made a plea that a helpful hand be extended to the countries that suffered through the ruthlessness of the central powers.

Mr. Schwab's appeal for a merchant marine struck a responsive chord. A great merchant marine is essential for the ultimate success of the United States, he said, and its successful operation is not for the benefit of any one man or class of men or any one branch of business, but for the good of every citizen of the country.

Schwab in Labor Comment.

Taking up the question of labor, Mr. Schwab said:

"I am one of the men who believe in the fairness of American labor. I am one of the men who believe the only foundation upon which anything can permanently rest is the economic use of everything, whether it be labor, material manufacture, or what not. Any foundation of organized labor or capital that is on a false basis must fall. We started in some 20 years ago on a series of exploitations that many people called trusts, and there were many such concerns organized that had as their prime motive the artificial idea of either restricting production or increasing the selling price. You have seen them, one after the other, fall and fade away. That was on a wrong basis. Our congress realized it and rightly and justly took steps to correct it."

"What has been true of capital will be equally true of labor, and therefore the education of the American laboring man must be to have him realize that his permanency and success, and the success of the nation will depend upon labor conditions and capital conditions that are founded on economic principles first of all."

Thirty-six related industrial groups met tonight and considered questions affecting their particular interests in the work of reconstruction. The views of these groups will be passed along to 10 major groups tomorrow, who will consider resolutions that may eventually reach the floor of congress.

Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board, in a letter read to the congress said the cancellation of contracts does not mean a repudiation of contracts. "The government will not, I am sure," he said, "take from the industry of the country anything to which it is entitled to under each and every contract."

THEATERS

AT THE OLIVER.

There will be an initial performance this afternoon of "The Parish Priest," a play that might well be compared to "The Rosary" in its sterling qualities, its ideal sentiments and its beauty of story and doctrine. Father Whalen is the leading character, a dear old priest who loves the world and who is never angered save in rebuking sin. It is his humor, and his wise counsel, together with his charming personality—that makes "The Parish Priest" the play that will no doubt delight the patrons of the Oliver this afternoon and the remainder of the week, Miss Leone plays the role of a little Irish girl whose every move is full of life and every line means a smile. Mr. Williams will be seen as "Jim" whose brotherly love is a foundation upon which the playwright built. There will be a matinee of "The Parish Priest" on Saturday and a final performance on Saturday night.

AT THE ORPHEUM.

Sidney Smith, the clever creator of the well-known cartoons, "Old Doc Yak" and "The Gumps," is today's headliner at the Orpheum in a cartoon-talking act that will prove a real treat to all who see it. This act has been secured by a special arrangement of Managers A. J. Arditt's, and comes direct from here to the Majestic theater in Chicago, where he is the featured act of the bill. Marino and Maley are Italian character comedians, and their piano moving act, entitled "Push 'Em Up," is a real laugh-getter. Frear, Baggett and Frear present a singing, dancing and talking number that is out of the ordinary. The scene is laid in a baseball park and much lively action is introduced. Murphy and Lachmar, billed as "The Laugh Trust," and the Aikens, in a roller-skating and contortion novelty, complete the bill. The latest allied war review is also shown.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

One of the cleverest comedy dramas of the screen, "His Bonded Wife," starring Emmy Weheln, is the attraction at the Auditorium today.

The adventures of Doris Morse, a young New York society debutante who wishes to pose as a poor girl to be sure that the man she marries loves her and not her money, are many and varied, and some of the instances are worth mentioning for their originality.

Doris leaves home and goes to a big summer resort where she enjoys the simple pleasure of swimming and boating—taking in the delights of a day in an amusement park with shoot the shoots, steeplechasing and other allied sports. She meets and falls in love with a young architect and tells him that she is a poor girl in that city. He follows her to town and arranges to meet her after closing hours in front of the department store in which she works. Complications of all sorts begin to arise on account of her innocent deception, and she finds it harder and harder to stick to her resolutions—particularly as she is beginning to long for expensive new clothes. How she is led through a maze of extraordinary adventures is cleverly worked out in the play. "Hands-Up," the sensational serial story and the Official War Review which is always filled for today, William Farnum, one of the most popular actors in pictures will be seen tomorrow in "The Plunderer," a story gripping with romance and adventure. "Hicks of Manhattan," the second of the clever two reel comedies of James Montgomery Flagg, will complete the bill.

AT THE CASTLE.

"The Border Wireless" is the title of today's splendid western drama, which stars William S. Hart, this time as a war-hero. The sight of the lean-jawed actor in khaki is an unfamiliar one and his many ardent admirers will like him even more than usual. The story concerns itself with a German spy plot that is uncovered on the Mexican border. Wanda Hawley, a petite blonde, is responsible for the story's romantic interest.

"The One Woman" dramatized from Thomas Dixon's novel of the same title, is tomorrow's attraction. Lawson Butt and Clara Williams are co-starring. The theme is one of wifely devotion and a husband's faithfulness.

"THE ONE WOMAN"

When Thomas Dixon wrote "The One Woman," shown at the LaSalle today, it created quite a sensation for it is a bitter arraignment of socialism, especially when such idealists tend to make a minister forget his church, his family and allow another wealthy woman, Lawson Butt gives a masterful interpretation of the leading role. He created the leading part in "The Garden of Allah," a few years ago and is a splendid actor. Clara Williams does equally well with the role of the patient, forgiving wife, who takes back the wandering husband after his foolish deed has shattered. The picture is well produced, but is a serious and rather talkative subject.

Friday: "In Pursuit of Polly," with Billie Burke.
