SCHUELL RELICS MAY REMAIN HERE

Effort Being Made to Save
Choice Collection for This County.

In the belief that relics and curios peculiar to this section of the state should be held in South Bend if possible, the Indiana Historical society has interested itself in a project to purchase the large collection of Indian relics belonging to Charles Schuell of the Schuell Jewelry company.

There are in the collection approximately 7,000 pieces ranging from the largest and most perfectly formed pestles used in grinding corn and grain, to the smallest and daintiest of flint arrow heads.

For more than a quarter of a century Mr. Schuell has been interested in collecting Indian curios and relics, and has combed this section of the country for things of this nature. He has had several flattering offers for the collection from museums and outside firms, but prefers to have them stay in St. Joseph county if possible. The display is to be found at his jewelry store where they have been an interesting feature for a number of years. Now, however, the expansion of business has made necessary additional shelf and display space, and as a result, Mr. Schuell declares he will part with his relics at a price that will merely cover the expense incurred in making the collection. The matter has already been taken up by the county commissioners, and it is understood they are favorable regarding the purchase.

RIGHT SPIRIT APPARENT IN FIRST "PAY UP WEEK"

That South Bend people are willing to cooperate with their merchants to the fullest extent is shown by the enthusiasm they are showing in "Pay Up Week," which has been set for the next six days.

"Numerous people, both men and women, have expressed themselves as enthusiastic regarding the plan," declared a prominent Michigan street merchant. "They declare that such an arrangement gives them an opportunity to take stock of their finances, pay up old bills and start the year out with a clean slate. There is every evidence that the plan will prove successful and satisfactory to both business men and their patrons."

"This is the first time the plan has been tried in this city, and it is held under the direction of the Retail Merchants' bureau.

Nation's Leaders Meet in the House Chambers to Pay Tribute to Colonel.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—In solemn services within the house chamber Sunday the nation's leaders and representatives of foreign governments paid tribute to the memory of Theodore Roosevelt. Members of congress, supreme court justices, members of the cabinet, army and navy officers, and diplomats of many nations heard Senator Lodge of Massachusetts praise Roosevelt as a statesman and as a man.

Crowded galleries and the throng of men and women who could not gain admission testified to the personal feeling for the man whose death shocked the world. It was this to which Senator Lodge, a close friend of the man he eulogized, referred when he spoke these words in the stillness of the house chamber:

"A tower is fallen, a star is set! Alas! Alas! for Cein.
"The words of lamentation from the old Moorish ballad, which in boyhood we used to recite, must, I think, have risen to many lips when the world was told that Theodore Roosevelt was dead. But whatever the phrase the thought was instant and everywhere.

Loss Felt Keenly.
"Various expressed, you heard it in the crowds about the bulletin boards, from the man in the street and the man on the railroads, from the farmer in the fields, the woman in the shops, in the factories and in the homes. The pulpit found in his life a text for sermons. The judge on the bench, the child at school, alike paused for a moment conscious of a loss. The cry of sorrow came from men and women of all conditions, high and low, rich and poor, from the learned and the ignorant, from the multitude who had loved and followed him, and from those who had opposed and resisted him. The newspapers pushed aside the absorbing reports of the events of these fateful days and gave pages to the man who had died.

"Flashcd beneath the ocean and through the air went the announcement of Theodore Roosevelt's death, and back came a world-wide response from courts and cabinets, from press and people, in other and far-distant lands. Through it all ran a golden thread of personal feeling which gleams so rarely in the somber formalism of public grief. It would seem that here was a man, a private citizen, conspicuous by no office, with no glitter of power about him, no ability to reward or punish, gone from earthly life, who must have been unusual even among the leaders of men, and who thus demands our serious consideration."

Hold Simple Services.
Senator Lodge was the only speaker and the services were simple. Prayers by the senate and the house chaplains and anthems and patriotic hymns by the Marine band added to the stirring spiritual nature of the services.

"We can not approach Theodore Roosevelt along the beaten paths of eulogy or satisfy ourselves with the empty civilities of common place funeral tributes," said Senator Lodge, "for he did not make his life journey over main-travelled roads nor was he ever common place. Cold and pompous formalities would be unsuited to him who was devoid of affectation, who was never self-conscious, and to whom posturing to draw the public gaze seemed not only repellent but vulgar. In his spirit of devotion to truth's simplicity, I shall try to speak of him today."

Referring to Roosevelt's inheritance of comparative wealth, Senator Lodge said: "He lacked the spur of necessity to prick the sides of his intent. Theodore Roosevelt put behind him temptation to a life of sports and pleasure, to lettered ease, to an amateur's career in fine arts, perhaps to a money making business."

Refused Pleasant Paths.
"How he refused to tread the pleasant paths that opened to him on all sides and took the instant way which led over the rough road of toil and action, his life discloses."

Mr. Lodge outlined the life of the man who came to play such a big part in the nation's life. With delicate health and near-sightedness in childhood, he became by sheer hard work an athlete and a rifle shot. This was typical, said Mr. Lodge. He spoke of how Roosevelt persisted in the unusual; how he made himself a national figure in one year at the age of 24 while serving in the New York state legislature; how he fought and won for civil service reforms when civil service was scoffed at by influential leaders and how he applied himself strenuously to the task of expelling favoritism and politics from the New York police force, through which "a purely local office became national in his hands, and his picture appeared in the shops of European cities."

HOLD MANY SERVICES FOR COL. ROOSEVELT

In addition to the services held in the house of representatives, services were held in New York city, Charles E. Hughes was the chief speaker at the republican club, while Chauncey M. Depew spoke at the 23rd st. Y. M. C. A. Albert C. Beveridge, former senator from Indiana, in an address at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, gave Mr. Roosevelt the chief credit for making America the decisive factor in the war.

Services were held in Paris at the American church in the Rue de Berri. Pres't Wilson and Sec'y of State Lansing attended the services. The memorial sermon was preached by the Rev. Chauncey W. Goodrich. The sermon in the afternoon, was preached by Bishop Perry of Rhode Island. Henry D. White of the American peace commission, and Arthur J. Balfour, the British foreign minister, attended the afternoon services.

The Westminster Abbey in London was filled with Americans and English who attended the memorial services. The sermon was delivered by Archdeacon Carnegie. The memorial services for the first time in history replaced Evensong in the abbey. As the archdeacon and the clergy left the abbey in solemn procession, the western sun poured through the abbey windows and the organ burst forth with "The Star Spangled Banner."
