OPEN AIR SCHOOL GIVES EXERCISES

Playlet Entertains Patients and Visitors at Healthwin Hospital Friday.

Presenting the first entertainment of its kind ever given in St. Joseph county, perhaps in the state of Indiana, Healthwin open air school gave its closing exercises Friday afternoon on the hospital grounds out near the four-mile bridge. It was an open air playlet written and staged by the young teacher of the school, Miss Ethel McDonald. It was both original and artistic in the pretty symbolism of its text and characters and the natural beauty of its setting. Some 40 patients of the hospital and guests from South Bend witnessed the performance.

Miss McDonald herself took part in the play as the "Spirit of the Fresh Air School." Little Miss Helen Gordy represented "Health" and Miss Thelma Hicks "Knowledge." Little Alice Drago and Frank Stempkowski were the children for whom "Knowledge" and "Health" contended. Herman Curtis, a young negro boy, furnished the music on his violin. His playing was one of the delightful features of the entertainment. Preceding the performance Dr. J. A. Duggan, superintendent of the hospital, gave a brief talk explaining the purpose of the fresh air school, namely, to offer the children who are patients at the hospital an opportunity to improve their minds without detriment to their health. The school was opened in January in one of the shacks which formerly was used to house patients. Since its opening in January the number of pupils has varied from four to eight or ten.

DECISION IS HELD UP

Whether City Judge Herbert D. Warner will be compelled to accept an appeal bond for Otto Klettke, now confined at the penal farm on an intoxication charge, will be known Monday. Mandamus proceedings filed against Judge Warner were threshed out in the circuit court yesterday. City Atty. Ell F. Seebirt appeared for Warner, while Atty. George Sands represents Klettke. Klettke on May 21 pleaded guilty to intoxication in city court. He was sentenced and taken to the penal farm the same day. At that time he was not represented by an attorney. The following Thursday, through his attorney, an appeal was asked, but Judge Warner refused to fix a bond. Mandamus proceedings were then instituted, it being decided to make a test case of the matter.

GIVE DIPLOMAS TO GRADUATES

High School Class of 1916 Conducts 43rd Annual Commencement Exercises.

With much eloquence, song and music, good wishes and not a little pathos, the class of '16, South Bend high school, passed into history last evening. The 43rd annual commencement exercises were unique insofar as the whole program was rendered by the members of the class—and rendered well. The largest class in the history of the school may justly be proud as every one of the 147 young men and women of the class helped to make the exercises last evening noteworthy. From the simple but beautiful invocation of Rev. H. L. Davis to the closing class song of the class, the ceremonies were impressive. The salutatory was delivered by Miss Nellie Robbins, winner of the John Nelson Mills medal for excellence in mathematics, who paid a glowing tribute to the principal and teachers of South Bend high school, declaring that only through their unselfish labor and assistance was the class of 1916 able to reach its goal. Miss Gertrude Wisner then gave an excellent humorous reading from Mark Twain on "Our Guide."

Work of Class. Bernard Keltner, class historian, made a good address, in which he delineated at some length the accomplishments of the class. The class of 1916 was the first to form a freshman organization; won the only prize in the health parade; saved the interlude, the school paper, from the financial rocks; put on the most successful penny fair; aided the school at Healthwin sanitarium; and did many other notable things during its time in school.

The class prophecy was given by Miss Arva Yeagley, who was later awarded the class of 1916 medal for leadership. A vocal solo by Lisle Kreighbaum was well rendered. In his farewell address the president of the class, Carl Prell, expressed his gratitude and the thanks of the class to the citizens of South Bend, the principal and the teachers, without whom, he said, the class could not have existed or achieved all that it did. He expressed the hope that in future years the members of the class would live up to the standards set in their school year, and thus be a credit to themselves and to their school.

Class Poem Recited. The class poem was read by Miss Edith Emmons. Miss Emmons and Franklin Schurtz were the two stellar students of the class, both scoring 425 out of a possible 500. The valedictory was given by Mr. Schurtz who pointed out that graduation was not a finishing, but a commencement of an epoch in life. Principal F. L. Sims presented the class, and the diplomas were awarded by Supt. H. G. Inel. Both speakers were eloquent in their praise of the class.

The Thrush Fasset medal for excellence in English literature was awarded to Miss Edith Emmons. The John Nelson Mills medal for excellence in mathematics was awarded to Miss Nellie Robbins. The class of 1916 medal for leadership was awarded to Carl Prell by the boys and to Miss Arva Yeagley of the girls. Russell Deller won the University of Chicago prize scholarship in physics. Carl Prell was awarded the Northwestern university contest medal in declamation, and also won the northern Indiana oratorical contest. The high school orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Fredrickson, rendered several selections during the program. This morning at 9 o'clock the final assembly will be held, at which all athletic monograms, prizes, medals, honors, and other distinctions won during the year will be distributed.

ODD EXPERIENCES FOR MISS STINSON

Katherine Stinson, who races Dario Resta in her aeroplane at Springsbrook park tomorrow, has had some peculiar experiences. While in Detroit recently the little girl who risks her life several times daily stepped from a taxi cab at the administration building of the speedway and walked into the main office. The attendant in charge asked her courteously what she wanted.

KATHERINE STINSON.

Her clothes were in the latest style for girls. Her cheeks were the rounded, fresh colored cheeks of early girlhood. She looked to be 15 years old. "I want to know when I am going to fly," said the girl. "Probably when you become an angel, my dear," said the lady. The girl laughed. "I am Katherine Stinson," she explained. "I am scheduled to loop the loop in my aeroplane a couple of times today, and I wanted to know when I should be ready." The office occupants gaped, and Miss Stinson smiled again. It seemed incredible that such a child should be daily taking the chance that resulted in the death of Lincoln Beachey. Of course, Miss Stinson is really older than she looks. She is 19 years old. Late in the day Miss Stinson showed her mettle by looping the loop six times in sight of a crowd that packed the grandstand and overflowed into the adjacent grounds. Probably 60,000 people saw her fly. Miss Stinson, in her aeroplane, will race Dario Resta in an automobile at Springsbrook Sunday afternoon, and perform her aerial feats in the earth and air carnival as scheduled.
