

"PRODUCE!" IS CRY OF TIME TO CITY AND COUNTY ALIKE

Opinions of farmers on the industrial situation follow:

JOSEPH S. HELMS—I have been reading in your paper quite a little about the daylight saving and high cost of living. In the first place, I am not in favor of the daylight saving as it is called. I believe it is against the interest of agriculture and the people in general.

The high cost of living is, of course, related to agriculture but no more than to many other lines of activity.

Useless employees must be given an opportunity to become producers upon the farm or in the factory. I am tempted to believe that the solution of the problem lies more in the hands of those interested in distribution and non-productive enterprises than in the hands of the farmers of the country.

If this is done and if jobbers and retailers recognize the harm that must ultimately come from profiteering on the farmer, and content themselves with a reasonable profit, the question of the high cost of living will largely solve itself to the permanent good of all.

But unless the whole country, all business and all labor, does recognize this as a common problem and do those things necessary to solve it, and less will be of farm produce to divide among the whole people and higher and higher will go the price of that which is produced.

The farmers must certainly produce. They have produced and will produce. That is their business. They are on a piece-measure basis, so to speak. The farmers do their part as the farmers of America have in every situation or crisis that have faced the country.

It is not a satisfactory condition for the farmer to receive reduced prices for his pork, wheat and produce, while the prices of his machinery, lumber and shoes are raised. It does not set very well to spur the farmer to greater production to be obliged to sell his products for half or less than he later sees them sold for at retail.

Problems Mutual.
The farmers are willing to assume their part of the responsibility as American citizens in meeting any problem threatening the welfare and stability of our country, but the high cost of living problem is a mutual one, and they ask that it be approached by all the people as a common problem.

They ask that those engaged in distribution eliminate the lost motion and not put so great a burden upon production as there is today. In other words, they ask that there be an adequate number of producers of wealth, and this includes property and food of all kinds and only number of distributors as is necessary to perform the service required.

City's Co-Operation Essential.
They ask that retail establishments, factories and banks and many other institutions which are vitally necessary to the farmer, in turn should see to it that the work done by three or four men should be done by two if possible, therefore reducing the cost of which the farmer has to pay, reducing the cost of production, his profits be increased and his production stimulated, and more men and boys stay on the farm and more men go to the farm. To do this conditions in production must be attractive, farming must be remunerative, and offer to a young man who engages in it an opportunity equal to that offered him should he go to town in some factory or shop.

The mills, which are also real producers along with the farmers, must make an effort to see there is just as little labor, expense as possible in each article turned out by their hands, thereby helping the farmers, who in turn will help the laborer. All working to this end will help to make permanent agriculture, the foundation of our country.

G. M. D.—I have been reading with interest what the farmers have been saying about cutting production, as I am a farmer in the same boat with the rest of the goats, but as I have a family to keep and my rent has been raised I cannot afford to cut production. I will try to raise more to meet the added expense.

What the rest have been saying is mostly bunk. If I would leave this farm it would not be idle. Some one would move in as I went out, so how much production would that cut?

As long as the farmers sell their milk and cream and buy butter substitutes, how the dickens do they expect a fair price for their produce?

As for Mr. and Mrs. Wilson's time, I have no use for it.

Federation of Clubs Yearbooks, Compiled by Mrs. Roach, is Out

The 1919-1920 year book of the Indiana Federation of clubs, compiled by Mrs. A. W. Roach, of Richmond, recording secretary, has been issued. Copies have been sent to the affiliated clubs, and officials of the organization. Preceding the committee lists, convention reports and directory of clubs, are suggestions by Mrs. E. C. Rumpier, state president, and greetings from Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, president of the General Federation of Clubs. Mrs. Rumpier says in part:

"Through the reciprocity bureau and the Americanization committee we have access to the vast resources of Indiana University and clubwomen are urged to avail themselves of this opportunity. The leadership of the federation has changed, but the world abides. Let us go forward with the same spirit that led us during the war and we shall accomplish much for the homes of Indiana during the year 1920."

The greetings from Mrs. Cowles bring out the fact that the general Federation is definitely committed to three paramount tasks: Americanization, thrift and community service.

CLEMENTS FUNERAL THURSDAY; WAS HEAD OF WAYNE WORKS

Edward B. Clements, president of the Wayne Works, and well known business man, died at his home, 109 North Thirteenth street, Monday at 3:30 p. m., following more than a year's illness, the result of a cancerous trouble.

He had been under the constant care of a physician for several months and had not taken part in the administration of business for six months.

Funeral services will be held at the residence, 109 North Thirteenth street, Thursday at 2:30 p. m. Burial in Earlham. Friends may call Wednesday evening.

Mr. Clements, who was born in Swedesboro, N. J., on Dec. 28, 1859, came to Richmond for residence in 1882, and entered partnership with Thomas Creamer. Their business was a retail hardware store located then at Seventh and Main street.

In 1886 Mr. Clements became a member of the Wayne Works company, which amalgamated the Wayne Agricultural company. In connection with this concern Mr. Clements served as secretary-treasurer until 1910 when at the death of his partner, Walter Shultz, he became president.

Mr. Clements was instrumental in building up the Wayne Works from a company of about one-third its present size. Originally grain drills and other farm implements were the output of the concern, but under the direction of Mr. Clements the manufacture of auto bodies and truck attachments grew to be the important production.

Mr. Clements was married to Miss Mary Katherine Mahan, of New Richmond, O., in 1884. For over 25 years they have lived in the residence on North Thirteenth street. The widow, a daughter, Mary, two sons, John and Warren, who have taken charge of the Wayne Works since the illness of their father, and a grandson survive.

Mr. Clements was a member of the country club, a Mason, and a stockholder in the Second National bank.

HUNGARIAN REGENT STILL GET 3,000,000 KRONEN A YEAR

(By Associated Press)

BUDAPEST, Monday, March 1.—Admiral Horthy's salary as regent of Hungary has been fixed at 3,000,000 Kronen per year. After his election the national assembly sent a deputation to escort him to the Chamber where he took the oath and was presented with a draft of the law creating his office. Addresses which eulogized him as having saved the nation from ruin were delivered.

63 Seniors Take Part in Program for Their Day, at Earlham College Chapel

Senior Day at Earlham, Tuesday, was marked by the initial appearance of seniors in their caps and gowns at the morning chapel exercises. Sixty-three members of the graduating class marched into the chapel, following the opening songs, and were seated in the senior section.

President David M. Edwards presided and delivered the invocation. With the exception of the address, which was delivered by the Rev. Andrew F. Mitchell of the South Eighth Street Friends church, the entire program was in the hands of students recommended for degrees in June.

Following are members of the class: Laura L. COUNTERFEITERS ARE BUSY IN U. S.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Counterfeiting has doubled in the last six months, due to the circulation of a greater number of government securities, including Federal Reserve notes. Chief W. H. Moran, of the secret service told the house appropriations committee, today in asking for increased appropriations for rounding up counterfeiters.

The raising of Federal Reserve notes is one of the most common acts of the swindlers, he said.
