

THEY ARE LOYAL TO REPUBLIC IN TIPPERARY TOWN

Irish Stick Together as Police and Military Keep Watch.

COUNTY TIPPERARY, Sept. 2.

There is perhaps no county in Ireland that has at the present moment a worse name than Tipperary. Here the first of the police murders took place over eighteen months ago. Here a police sergeant was shot dead a few nights ago. Tipperary is, therefore, the storm center of the trouble through which Ireland is now passing, and by which every county in the south and west, as well as some in the north, is affected.

It is, therefore, perhaps the last place in which anyone, except myself, would think of choosing for a holiday. A hospitable invitation, however, would brook no refusal, and a personal desire to go through the disturbed area made me a willing visitor. In the vicinity of a thoroughly prosperous town, I am writing this despatch. Let me say that it was with no light heart I undertook the job of transporting my family, for with the railway service held up every time an armed policeman or an armed soldier presented himself as a passenger, one was obliged to consider the probability of being stranded at a wayside station for an indefinite period. As turned out, I was able to reach the famous city of Cashel without incident, and by bicycle and motor to make the rest of the journey. The town to which I was bound is on a branch railway line, but as there had not been a passenger train for a week, it was useless to attempt to make the whole journey by railway.

To the casual observer, the one thing that cannot escape attention is the constant and vigilant activity of the police and military. The police patrols appeared to consist of four men, some of them being ex-soldiers wearing constabulary caps. Two carried rifles and the other two revolvers of a heavy pattern. When I came out from the railway station this morning, after making an inquiry, there was such a patrol standing outside. Further on at the police barracks, a covered motor vehicle carrying police also heavily armed was starting out into the country. At villages through which I have cycled, the same activity was noted, and one could not help feeling that his own appearance was regarded with a certain amount of suspicion.

To the casual visitor, the cause of these police movements did not seem apparent. There was no enemy to be seen, no threatening menace. That, however, does not prove anything. The Army of the Republic of Ireland is an extremely effective force. It assembles as if by magic or the pressing of an electric button, delivers its stroke fiercely, audaciously and invariably effectively, and then again as if by magic it melts into thin air. The police and military are obliged to be continuously on the alert. They know not when the stroke will fall, whether in dark or daylight, but they know by experience that fall it will. They know no rest and no escape from eternal vigilance. Hardly a day or night passes that some incident does not arise, a patrol is shot at or disarmed, a barracks attacked, or a mail car robbed.

People are silent. People wonder whether the whole population is up to the neck in the conspiracy. That is a question which the casual visitor does not ask, and if he did he would not get an answer. Certain it is that whether willingly or not, as between the police and people, there is a complete line of demarcation. The majority of the people preserve the most absolute silence as to what they know, and they must know a great deal, and for this reason the police are absolutely at bay in their investigations as to various outrages. The position of the police and military in these circumstances cannot be other than humiliating. They are powerless to prevent outrage and they are powerless to punish outrage when it does occur. The situation is, therefore, grave and full of even worse possibilities.

BUT IT DOESN'T WORK THAT WAY OVER HERE

PARIS, Sept. 2. — Recently the landlord with due apologies informed Capt. F. W. Field, of Flatbush, N. Y., American Red Cross worker, that his rent was raised for the fourth time since 1918.

Upon receiving the information Capt. Field chuckled, all of which is an unusual thing for a man to do under the circumstances, but the fact was that in spite of the fourth raise the American was spending less for rent than before the first boost came almost two years ago.

The unusual condition is one of the results of the vagaries of exchange between French and American money. In 1918 Capt. Field contracted for the room at four francs per day. At that time he was receiving five francs and forty-five centimes for every dollar in salary. His rent, therefore, was something like seventy-two cents per day.

Every season a new raise came along until the landlord set what he believed to be the exorbitant figure of seven francs as the rent after May 1 this year. Capt. Field is now receiving, according to the exchange of May 1, seventeen francs for every dollar, and his new rent reaches the total of forty-two cents instead of seventy-two, although it has been nearly doubled.

"WOMAN IN WHITE" IS LEADER IN RUSS WAR

TOKIO, Sept. 2. — A mystic "woman in white" is reported by the soviet journal Rabotchi Golos, or the Voice of Labor, to be rallying the anti-reds against the soviet in Russia. The woman, who is popularly known as the White Tsarina on account of the color of her garments she and her companions wear and because of her claim to the throne of the Romanoffs, first made her appearance at Kourgan. She claims to be a grandniece of Alexander I., grandfather of the late Tsar and declares she is in possession of the miraculous Ikon of Iversk held in veneration by all sections of the Russian people.

In February last, it is reported she, with a band of followers, seized Chelabinsk, cut off railway communication, killed several bolshevik commissaries and engaged and destroyed some red regiments stationed in that region. The central soviet is said to have offered a reward of 1,000,000 rubles for "The Woman in White," dead or alive.

AS THE HOURS PASS THE COMING OF BABY DRAWS NEARER— ARE YOU PREPARED?

It is natural to think of the expectant mother's influence upon the unborn babe. Her food, her habits, her hygiene, and even the condition of her mind, all have a part in determining the well-being or ill-being of her infant before birth.

No one can be in doubt that the months which precede birth are of vast importance for the future of the child. It is therefore necessary that the expectant mother prepare herself. Mother's Friend gives comfort to expectant mothers by softening and making elastic the muscles during the anxious months before maternity.

THREE GENERATIONS

of mothers record the virtue of Mother's Friend for not only allaying distress in advance, but for assisting nature in assuring a speedy recovery for the mother. It renders the abdominal muscles pliant as they readily yield to nature's demand for expansion. As a result, the nerves should not be drawn upon with that peculiar wrenching strain.
