PRACTICE BEGINS FOR SCOUT RALLY

Members of troop 9, under the leadership of J. F. McClave, were the guests of troop 12 at their meeting place at the Sacred Heart school Tuesday evening. The two troops spent the evening practicing on the events of the big rally day, which will be held Oct. 23. The troops seem to be evenly matched and with such keen competition the winners in the events of the rally would be difficult to foretell.

Word has been received in the local scout headquarters that a full contingent of scouts will be in South Bend from Niles to take part in the rally, Oct. 23.

The war canoes are much in demand these fall days, troops six and seven have them engaged for Sunday and troop 19 has made reservations for Oct. 17. The canoes are available for any scout master who wishes to take his troop out in the afternoon or evening.

SCOTCH GIRL DROWNS WHILE AIDING SISTER

Somewhere under the waves outside the big New York harbor, is a little bag containing all the money in the world owned by two Scottish girls who left home for America last month on the Cunard liner, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria.

This little bag is tied around the neck of Eva Beattie who was drowned trying to save her younger sister, Rose, who had waded out beyond her depth.

It was a terribly hot afternoon when the girls reached America. They were quartered at Hoffman Island for a while because there was no room for them at the immigration depot at Ellis Island. There, when the heat was so in the shade, the girls went into the cool surf, and there, the pathetic tragedy happened. Rose was saved by the guards, but Eva's body has not been found.

Define "Fishnet."
 The visitor was examining the class. "Can any little boy or any little girl here tell me what a fish net is made of?" he kindly inquired. "A lot of little holes tied together with strings," answered the never-failing "bright boy."

School Yell.
 (Make up a yell and send it in.) Let's give a boom! Let's give a boom!
 For the maroon, for the maroon, "B," double O, double O, double OOM.
 Boom—boom—boom, boom boom!

STUDY HELPS
 How Many Ways.
 Did you ever play the game, "How many ways can a man cross the street?"
 It is better than spelling down. "He walked across," "he tottered across," "he stumbled across," "he rushed across," "he jumped across," "he staggered across." Keep it up until no one can think of another word.

Call it "Synonyms" if you like. It is a good game.
 Notice that, no matter how many different ways of crossing the street there may be, each way is different. Each word makes a different picture.
 Some ignorant persons use as few as 399 words. Shakespeare used 15,000. Shakespeare's characters did more than "walk" across streets. They could get across in scores of ways, because of the writer's large vocabulary.

OLD LADY RIDDLE

Why may carpenters believe that there is no such thing as stone? (Answer to yesterday's: The bat that flies without wings is a brickbat.)

OLD MAN PUZZLE

Square something that you play at recess with a word meaning "marched up," a measure of length, and a beautiful garden named in the Book of Genesis. (Answer to yesterday's: I ate nothing Monday.)

GIRLS SEEK MYSTERY OF CLARIBEL PAST

(Weezy's Diary, Friday, Sept. 24.)
 We didn't do anything this morning but talk and write notes about that picnic. It was fun to talk to the fellows, too. They said that Peanut and Pipe-Dream were making fools of themselves. We girls said that Claribel was making fools of all the boys in the school.
 "After all," remarked Dot, "we really don't know a thing about Claribel. She says she was in the movies. Where? She says she lived in California. Where? No one knows. I'll bet even Peanut doesn't know."
 At noon we tried to get hold of Claribel but, no, Peanut had her. We waited till evening and cornered her in the hall. My how sweet she was!

"School Sports" Every Other Day.
 In a newspaper the size of this one it is hardly possible to print every section in full every day. Watch tomorrow for "School Sports." It will appear under this head.
 Good "School Sports" stories are sure to "break"—as a real newspaper man would say—in your school. Write them up and send them in. Thank you.
 Tomorrow's article will give a bunch of pointers on the right way to drop kick.

"There's a lot of mystery about her," said Dot.
 Oh, I'm disgusted. Here this diary hasn't had a single thing in it this week but Claribel.

(Weezy's Diary, Saturday, Sept. 25.)
 Didn't get a bit of news today. I'm tired of writing so much about that one girl. I've had the pouts and the fidgets and the blues all day. I guess I was so mean to Joe Lyons at the picnic the other night that he doesn't like me any more. He hasn't spoken to me since. I wish that vamp had never come to our school. I'm not going to pay the least bit of attention to her Monday.

MARY TAYLOR LEAD GIRLS' A. A.

Election of officers took place at the initial meeting of the Girls' Athletic Association of the high school, held Wednesday afternoon in the girls' study hall. The result of the election is as follows: Mary Taylor, president; Rita Chapleau, vice president; Dorothy Lushbaugh, secretary and treasurer, and Hildegard Von Barandy, yell leader. The year's committees will be appointed by the president.

High Elementary Sewing Classes Have Exhibition

Of interest to the girls of the school is the sewing exhibition in the second floor high school corridors. Gay colors and dainty stitchery mark the Berton aprons and delicate linerie made by the girls in the elementary sewing classes. The colorful aprons are formed of heavy crash and contrasting crepe and would tempt any damsel into wielding an egg beater, the linerie is nainsook, machine stitched and hand-embroidered and is as attractive as the imported Philippine work.

BOYHOOD STORIES OF FAMOUS MEN

William Shakespeare.
 "Here, boy, hold my horse," said a well-dressed man as he jumped onto the sidewalk.
 That was a common job for boys in London in the sixteenth century. Instead of going to the theater in limousines and taxis, the gentlemen went on horseback.

William Shakespeare (1564-1616) was such a polite boy and was so kind to the animals that he became a favorite with the actors as well as the on-lookers. He was asked to assist inside the theater, and it was not long before he was taking small parts himself.
 He liked to make over the plays and when he grew older he began to write poetry and dramas. He formed a company of his own and acted before Queen Elizabeth, who was very much pleased with him.

Laurel Camp Fire Girls Begin Historical Hikes

The Campfire girls of the Laurel school will begin a series of hikes to historical places Saturday. The first hike of the season will be a tramp to LaSalle's portage on the St. Joseph river, near the four-mile bridge, where the girls will examine the tree, where, tradition says, LaSalle blazed an arrow. Mrs. Seymour Bullock and her daughter, Miss Iola Bullock, will accompany the group as chaperones.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHERS.
 Miss Dorcas Jane Kirk will direct a teachers' swimming class, which will be held Wednesday afternoons from 3:20 until 4:30 o'clock.

DO YOU

SAYS RUSSIAN OIL FIELDS ARE BASE OF SUPPLY

Elkhart Man Reports That America Can Get Russian Petroleum.

Special to The News-Times:
 ELKHART, Ind., Oct. 7.—Oil lands in Russia are extensive and prolific, according to Washington B. Vanderlip, a former Elkhartian who is now in Moscow, negotiating with the Soviet government for the shipment of large quantities of Russian raw materials to America. Mr. Vanderlip, whose trip to Russia is being partly financed by E. L. Doherty of the Mexican Petroleum Co. and the Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Co. has reported that he was particularly impressed by the high grade of the Russian oil and the vast quantities of it that are procurable.

America's Change.
 He was sent to make investigations into the possibilities of developing the oil industry in Russia. Beiler has been expressed in Russia that America, which seemingly faces a petroleum shortage, is the logical market for the Russian wells.
 Mr. Vanderlip, who was reared in Elkhart, became an authority on Siberian matters nearly a quarter of a century ago, his first experience in foreign travel being obtained with a theatrical company. He and James F. Boyer of this city were pioneers
