

We are authorized to say that the Journal was entirely mistaken in what it understood from an intelligent gentleman who was present at Hartford, on last Saturday...

Colonel Sigel. The magnificent display of military skill which has been recently exhibited by Col. Sigel in Southwestern Missouri, has attracted public attention largely to him.

Col. Frank Sigel, who so gallantly led the United States forces against the Missourians at Carthage, is about forty-three years of age. He is a native of Baden, and a graduate of the military school at Carlsruhe.
