

The work of perfecting the organization of the vast army now in the field is going forward with the greatest expedition. Within a very short space of time we will have in the field an army of seven hundred thousand men, the most perfect in discipline and equipment of any army ever organized.

Report of the Secretary of War. WAR DEPARTMENT, Dec. 1, 1861. Sir: I have the honor to submit the annual report of this Department.

Table with columns: States, Three months, For the year, Aggregate. Lists states like California, Delaware, Illinois, etc., with corresponding numerical data.

Estimated strength of the regular army including the new enlistments under act of Congress of July 25, 1861.

The several arms of the service are estimated as follows: Volunteers, Regulars, Artillery, Cavalry, etc.

The appropriations to cover deficiencies are rendered necessary by the excess of the force in the field over that upon which the Estimates were founded.

and the promotion of General McClellan, he says: "On the 1st of the present month, Lieutenant General Winfield Scott voluntarily relinquished his high command as General-in-Chief of the American army."

After speaking of the extraordinary labor imposed upon the War Department. He recommends a reconstruction of the boundaries of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, so as to give to Maryland all that portion of Virginia lying East of the Blue Ridge, to Virginia the two Western counties of Maryland, and to Delaware all the Territory held by Maryland and Virginia East of the Chesapeake.

This portion of the report with the modification of it, made by the President we will give entire in to-morrow issue.

Military. The Lafayette Journal says: "Col Wilson obtained at Indianapolis, on Monday last, four hundred additional over-coats for the 40th regiment; also several hundred more guns. The guns obtained for this regiment are all, we believe, of European manufacture and superior in finish."

Another writing from Missouri says of the 5th and 18th regiments: "The 18th regiment came out to this State with 1,067 men, rank and file. Now it cannot muster more than 550, and this is about the average of the other regiments."

Regiments from Pennsylvania, Ohio and other States continue to crowd into Kentucky. General Buell must have nearly or quite one hundred thousand men in his command.

From the Evansville Journal of Thursday we clip the following paragraphs: We learn by a gentleman from Henderson, who arrived here yesterday morning, that a messenger had arrived at the former place the evening before with news of a severe skirmish between a portion of Col. Jackson's cavalry and a body of rebels.

Capt. Behr's Morton Artillery left for Green river yesterday on the steamer Gillum. They took with them five pieces of artillery, horses, &c. The Gillum was loaded with supplies, and towed a barge loaded with hay, corn, &c., for the army of Green river.

Loomis's Michigan battery and Howe's Regular battery have gone from Cheat Mountain to Romney. It is only forty miles from Romney to Winchester, and over a good tropic road. Look out for something exciting from Winchester and the valley of Virginia before New Year's Day.

The Indianapolis Journal of Saturday says: Capt. S. Coulson, of Sullivan, "the right man in the right place," is authorized to raise a company of 126 men for a battery of mounted artillery, now in waiting at the arsenal, to serve during the war.

We understand through Mr. Tracy Kingman, of this city, who is assisting in the formation of the company, that all officers are to be chosen from the ranks. When fully equipped and prepared for service, this will be the crack battery of Indiana.

The Indianapolis Journal says: Captain J. H. Green, known everywhere as the "Reformed Gambler," has recruited a company for Col. Walker's Regiment, the 35th, and went into Camp Morton with his men on Monday last.

An old friend in the interior of the State says the Louisville Journal, writes to assure us that his motto is: "God first, my country next." The noble words of our friend recall the eloquent expression Bishop Simpson has given to the same thought.

Gov. Buckingham donated a supply of turkeys for Thanksgiving to all the soldiers in camp in Connecticut—three regiments and a battalion of cavalry and light artillery.

HAVING a large Stock on hand and willing to reduce it as much as possible before leaving in my Spring clothes, I will for the next thirty days sell any of my goods at a very small advance over cost.
